Cariboo and Caribou

1. Casting on Quesnel Lake; 2. A fair morning's catch; 3. Cleaning the gun for the last.

WHAT is one of the finest big game and fishing sections of North America and one of the best great stands for big game, lies within easy reach of the Canadian Pacific Railway in the Cariboo district of British Columbia. Here, as nowhere else on the continent, are found in abundance the bear, grizzly, brown and black; the moose and caribou, and the wary mountain goat and sheep. The cougar is often seen and heard and the smaller fur bearing animals make a trappers paradise of this vast virgin territory. As will be seen from the picture above, the fishing is exceptionally good; it is the fishing territory of the west.

"Who is the man with soul so dead and heart so hard as to hunt, who had not something to him said, 'I'll seek the Great Outdoors?' Each year an increasing number of hunters and fishermen are attracted by the district but so vast and extensive is it, that there are yet parts of it that have never been visited by the hunter, and streams that have never had a line thrown over them. To reach the Cariboo district one usually takes the railway at Ashcroft from which place, arrangements having previously been made, one starts out by automobile over the famous Cariboo road to Quesnel Lake, Harpers Camp, Horseshoe Lake or one other of the numerous camping sites. The road, which winds among the foothills for hundreds of miles, climbs to an elevation of 5,000 feet and drops gradually to below the 2,000 foot level by the lakes, was made famous by the horde of gold seekers who passed over it in the days of '49. The old road horses built in those days are still there, and while many of them are used as headquarters for the large ranches in the district they afford simple but comfortable accommodation on the trip.

From the camps one can just paddle along the still, black, green bordered streams and lakes over which the snow capped ranges tower, or one can sit at ease by the camp fire and watch the sun sink behind the hills and abate with its glory, listening the while to the soft rustle of the wind in the tree tops and the gentle gushing of the water on the rocks. If one is of a more aggressive nature one can, accompanied by a careful and well tried guide, strike through the wilderness in search of its natural doings, or, armed with rod, fly and other bait, angle to the heart's content. One may spend weeks, making short trips by boat, canoe, or saddle horse, fishing in the lakes and streams near by, and getting back to camp each night, or travel with the necessaries for business and commence with the white for days or weeks at a time.

The Cariboo hunting and fishing grounds are located in the Great Interior Division, lying between the Rockies and the Cascades, east of the Fraser River. Ashcroft, the jumping off place, is on the main line of the Canadian Pacific 203 miles east of Vancouver. Equipment for trips can be purchased there or at one of the various hunting centres in the district close by. Guide and outfitting companies cater to every necessity and the Cariboo's and other lodges adequately care for the wants of the business or professional man who does not care for an extended hunting or fishing trip but desires to get away from something or everything for a while.
