HERNIA IN YOUNG PIGS

Single Scrotal Rupture Common Among the Males.

What is Known As the Covered Method of Castration Described and Recommended — Monthly Creamery Butter—Control of Black Scurf of Potatoes

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Scrotal Hernia, or rupture behind, is of a very common occurrence in young male pigs. It may affect one or both sides of the scrotum. Single, or one-sided rupture is, however, the one which is most commonly seen. It may be present at birth or make its appearance soon after, and usually before castration. When it occurs after castration it is often the result of a poor method of operating. The presence of rupture in pigs is always plainly noticeable by a tumor-like enlargement of the scrotum and increased bulging of the parts behind, larger than is natural.

Treatment.

The best and most successful means of remedying this defect in pigs is by the covered method of castration. In performing this operation the pig should be so secured and held that its hind parts are kept at a much higher level. This can be done by holding the pig up by the hind legs with the head downwards. This allows the bowels to recede out of the way, or scrotum, into the belly. The scrotum should be washed off clean with soap and warm water and the skin then painted with a little tincture of iodine.

An incision, two or three inches long, is then made with a sharp knife just through the skin down to the inner covering sac, which contains the testicle. This inner sac is easily recognizable by its smooth, shiny appearance. The inner sac is not cut into but is left intact, covering the testicle. Through the incision in the skin, the testicle in its covering sac is drawn out as far as possible. Care is taken to see that the bowel is not drawn out, but kept confined inside. As soon as this is assured, a string, or ligature, is tied tightly around the coverings and the cord of the testicle, as high up as possible. The needle threaded with the ligature should also be passed through the cord and its covering, and the ligature tied tightly around, thus securing it against possibility of slipping off. The [illegible] cord and inner sac are then [illegible] through the cord about half inch below the place where the ligature is tied. The opening in the skin can then be partly closed by putting a stitch or two through the skin. The operation is then completed and the pig may then be let go. As a rule, little attention is afterwards required, other than placing on light diet for that day.—C. D. McGilvray, M.D.V., Ont. Vet. College, Guelph.

Moldy Creamery Butter.

Where cream has been pasteurised, moldiness of butter is almost always due to surface contaminations which take place after the butter has been removed from the churn. The air during the summer is always a potential source of infection, loaded as it is, depending on the surroundings, with a larger or smaller number of mold spores. Untreated or inefficiently treated print wrappers and box liners are frequently the cause. Infection has also been traced in some cases to the unparaffined and untreated wood of the boxes in which the butter prints are stored. Walls and ceilings of the box storage space above some creameries, due to the warm and moist conditions which prevail during the summer, are frequently green with molds, from which crop after crop of ripened spores becomes scattered around.

Until such time as buttermakers take complete and thorough steps to destroy mold spores, which otherwise would come in close contact with butter surfaces, moldiness of butter will continue to occur.—D. H. Jones, O.A. College, Guelph.

Control of Rhizoctonia or Black Scurf of Potatoes.

Experiments have been conducted for four years with the object of determining if the amount of black scurf or rhizoctonia can be reduced by selecting tubers free from the characteristic little black lumps or sclerotia, and if treating them with corrosive sublimate and what strengths of corrosive sublimate, and what immersion, gives the best results, in the control of the disease. From results on these experiments we recommend immersion of seed tubers before they are cut in corrosive sublimate of a strength of one part by weight to one thousand of water for two hours. This treatment also controls potato scab.—J. E. Howitt, O. A. College, Guelph.

Featherless Hens.

Hens may lose their neck feathers from a variety of causes. Either mites, change in feed, or individual cussedness may cause feathers to be removed from the neck. If caused by a change of fed you can rectify this condition. If it is a case of feather pulling this may be overcome by giving the bird more range and a little more animal protein in the ration. If it is a case of mites you should purchase an ointment consisting of five parts of vaseline and one part of oil of caraway. This material should be thoroughly rubbed on the parts affected. This treatment should be repeated in three or four days until the mites have disappeared.

Farm credits are not a national cure-all. Credit can help only the man who is making money, or has a good chance to make money in the immediate future.

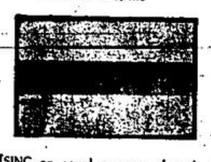
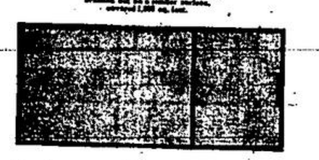
Cheap Paint? Here is the Answer!

No. 1
(From an actual photograph)
A corner of an outlet store" point on $7.20 gal., brushed out on wood. It covered 312 sq. feet.



No. 2
(From an actual photograph)
An equal quantity of Lowe Brothers' "High Standard" Paint at $6.75 per gal., brushed out on similar surface. covered 1,000 sq. feet.



USING an equal measure of each paint, and brushing them out on the same surface, we obtained the results pictured above

Observe that Lowe Brothers' "High-Standard" Paint covered approximately 50% more surface and covered it better than the so called "cheap" paint.

From this actual test it will be seen that it would take approximately 3 gallons of "Cheap" paint to do a job that would require only 2 gallons of Lowe Brothers "High Standard" Paint.

Practically applied to a house it would work out this way:—

These houses are both of the same type, and each has a painting area of 2,000 square feet.

To paint this house (2,000 sq. ft.) with "cheap" paint Mr. A. required 6½ gals. at $4.00 per gal.	$26.00	To paint this house (2,000 sq. ft.) with Lowe Brothers' High Standard Paint, Mr. B. required 4 gals. at $5.75	$23.00
It takes a painter 1 day to apply 1 gal. of paint therefore to apply 6½ gals. of "cheap" paint it took 6½ days at $5.00 per day	$32.50	A painter can usually apply in a day more Lowe Brothers' High Standard Paint than any other, but figuring on an equal basis of 1 gal. per day, it took 4 days at $5.00 per day	$20.00
Total cost	$58.50	Total cost	$43.00

By using Lowe Brothers' High Standard Paint Mr. B. saved $3.00 on the cost of paint and $12.50 on the cost of labor—a total saving of $15.50 on the complete job.

Never Figure the Cost of Paint by what it costs "per gallon." So-called "cheap" paint is the dearest you can buy measured by "job" cost, which is the only true measure of paint performance.

Before you paint consult us. We will be glad to show you how to paint most economically, and to give you color cards and other information for your guidance.
