"I'll Be Home Soon, Mother,"
Writes Sammy
Sammy is a keen little lad. He once managed to get only sixteen—and he has much more wisdom than is usual at his age. For two years he worked in a foundry doing a man's work. His father worked beside him and helped him master the art of pouring molten metal. One day Sammy complained of a sore side but his people didn't worry much. "It'll be all right in the morning," his mother said. "Go and take a rest." But it wasn't all right in the morning. It was then time for a doctor to examine Sammy. The doctor looked him over several times, then took him to a specialist. Both medical men agreed that Sammy was consumptive and both held out some hope if he "took the cure" of one year.

Limehouse
Mr. H. G. Meit was a visitor to Mrs. Phoebe Kirkpatrick of this village on Thursday last. Mrs. Kirkpatrick is in her 92nd year and, though physically somewhat handicapped, is in full possession of all her mental powers. She takes great interest in the many questions of the day such as Church Union, and remembers and discusses events of 76 years ago with ease.

LIGES INFESTING FOWLS
Vermis Are a Source of Great Loss to Poultrymen

The Various Species Named and Described—As Affecting Chickens, Turkeys, Ducks, Geese and Pigeons—Stable Ventilation—Carrying Young Pigs Along.

Losses due to infestations of the various forty species of lice that infest domestic fowl are in the aggregate many thousands of dollars annually to the poultry keepers of Ontario. Small insects working out of sight of the human eye, their presence is often unsuspected until the birds show unthriftiness, loss in weight, lower egg production, and reduced vitality, causing the owner to make an examination. If the examination is thorough, the lice are generally found in the great majority of flocks. A few may not be serious, but if they are not removed, they are permitted to increase to thousands the effect on the poultry keeping part of the farm business is serious. Infested birds present a grouchy and uncontent appearance, the wings drooped, the feathers ruffled, and the birds may suffer from diarrhea.

Infesting Chickens.
The forty species that infest fowl, seven have a decided preference for and infest chickens. The body louse "Menopon pluviale" is a light yellow in color and sticks pretty close to the skin. It lays its eggs in large clusters on the small feathers below the vent. It takes about three weeks from egg to maturity. This species sticking close to the skin and feeding thereon is very irritating. The "Menopon pallidum" is similar to the preceding, only somewhat smaller and has the habit of spending its life on the feathers. It is not so irritating as the body louse. Its eggs singly on the downy stage and two weeks for the young louse to grow to maturity.

The large head louse "Gonolobus abdominalis," sometimes called the "blue louse," is smoky grey in color and one-third larger than the preceding. It sticks close to the body, may be found anywhere and is easily recognized by its size and large rounded head.

The wing louse "Lipeurus capensis" is a small, long and slender species with a large rounded head. It consumes its activities in the wing feathers.

Two other species, the "buff louse" and the "thrush louse" are rarely present in numbers. Both inhabit the body feathers.

Infesting Turkeys.
Two species are commonly found on turkeys, the "Gonolobus stylis" and the "Lipeurus subtrapezoides." The "Gonolobus stylis" is the most common. It is a large louse bearing some resemblance to the large head louse, and may be distinguished from it by having the posterior angles of the head extended backward and terminating in long bristles.

Infesting Ducks and Geese.
These species infest ducks and geese to a limited extent, the only nature of the skin of waterfowl being a good preventive against these external parasites. The species commonly found are "Doronicus leucorodis," a very small parasite, and the "Lipeurus squallidus," a long, slender, yellowish colored louse.

Infesting Pigeons.
These birds are frequently infested with one or all three species—"Lipeurus haustus," "Gonolobus dimidiatus" and "Gonolobus compar." Methods of controlling these vermin will be given in a later issue—L. Stevenson, Dept. of Extension, O. A. C. Guelph.

Stable Ventilation.
When planning the chances to be made in the farm stables next season, give the provision of ventilation first consideration. Aimal life is dependent upon oxygen. Food that is eaten would never be of service to an animal or to human if it were not oxidized or combined with oxygen in the body. Fire cannot burn without air, and food cannot be burned in the body without air. It is strange that so much time and study have been expended on the problems of breeding and feeding, and that so little attention has been given to the most important demand in the life of a domestic animal—pure air. Pure air will be available to the animal every hour of the day. See also, L. Stevenson, of the Ontario Agricultural College.

Carrying Young Pigs Along.
Nature's tonic for young piglets, piglets are exercise, sunshine, plenty of grass succulent food, and clean surroundings. Squeezed with the butter, therefore, will depend on getting the sow and pig on pasture as soon as possible. It is just as important to the health and thrift of the little that the mother get exercise, as it is for the piglets.

1924 Christmas Seals
The National Sanitarium Association is to be congratulated on the handsome Christmas Seals now on sale in aid of the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives.
To meet a persistent demand for a real Christmas Seal, not merely an advertising sticker, quite a new departure has been made. The seals, beautifully colored and embossed, are designs, are put up assorted in packets of different denominations.
The Hospital is in need of funds to carry on its work. Why not buy these seals in lieu of others? Not only will you get good value in return, but your money will be made to serve a greater end, for it will go to help someone in distress.
For sale by school children, and banks, or direct from Xmas Seal Department, Gage Institute, Toronto, Ontario.
