In Memoriam GIFFEN - In loving memory of our dea mother, Mary Emmett Giffen, who died August 23rd, 1924 wife of Robert Git fen, Brampton. A year has gone but still we miss her, Never shall her memory fade.

Loving hearts will always linger

Round the grave where mother's laid More and more each day we miss her, Friends may think the wound is healed But they little know the sorrow. Lies within our hearts concealed.

Far beyond this world of sorrow, Far beyond this world of care, We shall meet our darling mother In our Father's mansion lair.

BACTERIAL BLIGHT OF APPLE

PEAR AND QUINCE TREES. Appearance of Affected Trees-How the Disease Develops -- Destroy illighted Twigs-losects Carry the Discase How to Control Trouble.

Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Torunto.) "Fire Blight," a most destructive bacterial disease of apple, year and quince trees, is prevalent in many parts of Ontario, particularly in Appearance of Affected Trees. Trees affected with this disease frequently present the appearance of having been scorched by fire, hence the common name, Fire Blight. The leaves will become a reddish brown and die and mummify. In some trees a few twigs only may be affected, in other cases practically every twig will be killed off.

Trees that are affected in this way in the early part of the season are either hold-over cases of the blight from the previous season or have been freshly inoculated through the blossom with the bacteria that cause the disease, by bees or other blossom visiting insects that have previously >come contaminated by visiting trees that are hold-over cases from to previous season.

Mow the Disease Develops. Whom a contaminated bee or other tascot visits a blossom for nectar or pollen, it leaves behind it some of the basteria that cause the disease, and pass on sown the blossom pedicel tate the bark of the fruit spur, where they produce a capker and kill the spur with other blossoms on it, then continue their progress within the bark of the twig causing canker and death as they go. The leaves on the twig then shrivel up, turn brown, and die giving the characteristic fire-blighted appearance to the

'If the blighted twigs are allowed to stay on the tree throughout the season the disease will continue to work on down the twigs, sometimes rapidly and sometimes rlowly, until eventually it reaches the bark of the larger limbs, or the trunk of the canker. In cases where the disease does not reach the bark of the thicker branches or trunk before fall there a tendency for the trouble to die aut during the winter. But where it Soir established as blight canker in the bark of the branches and trunk the probability is that it will live over the winter in a dormant condition and begin to extend itself the following spring when the sap flow commences. This in time brings about the death of the larger limbs and trunk as the blight canker apreads in the bark. We have known young trees to be killed out in one year with this disease, although older trees will sometimes live on for a paying crop. Insects Carry the Disease. During mid-season other insects as aphids, hoppers and borers are common carriers of the disease from infected twigs to healthy twigs, either on the same or neighboring trees. In this way young suckers and watersprouts get infected, and, as in the case of the blossom-infected twig, the disease will pass on down the bark of the sucker or watersprout until it

years with the canker slowly developing until finally the tree either dies or has to be removed for not giving reaches the trunk or large limb where a- canker is produced leading to death of the affected part. Where the disease is active during the growing season there is frequently a gummy brown exudate cosing out from the cankers. This exudate contains the causal bacteria in immense numbers. During rain storms this exudate may be splashed to other parts of the tree, thus leading to fresh infections. How to Control the Trouble. To control and stamp out this disease it is essential to cut out all affected portions of the tice. In doing this, care should be taken to cut | value that is worth investigating. well below the visibly affected portion four to six inches, if possible, as the bacteria are usually well advanced beyond the visibly cankered area in the bark. The saw, knife or shears used should be swabbed after each cut with a good disinfectant. e.g., corrosive aublimate 1-1000, formatin, or five per cent. carbolic acid. If the canker is in the trunk or larger limbs the affected part should be removed by cutting well around the canker, two or three inches at least beyond the visible extent of the canker. The wound should then be swabbed with the disinfectant and then painted over. The best time to cut out the disease is the first time it is seen, as each infection, so long as it is allowed to stay, is a centre for continued spreading of the trouble. All material cut away should be carefully gathered and burned .- Prof. D. Jones, O. A. C., Guelph,
