VITAMINS A NEW NAME

IT EXPLAINS MANY LIFE STOCK PROBLEMS NOT NEW.
It is important to know how the absence of certain elements of food will affect development of animals.
(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto)
Young animals reared in nature's way, where the mother was free to select and pick up the food plants that her instinct led her to, did not suffer from the nutritional diseases common to young animals reared under domestication. All men have not learned the simple lesson from nature, taught to those willing to observe the unrestrained young animal that instinctively banks to the sun and eats green plants. Man's way of holding animals and poultry together by artificial means and the use of dried feeds that do not carry the vitamins necessary to proper nutrition, have from time immemorial, naturally for the young animal. Sunshine supplies something, dry feeds do not. The vitamins necessary to develop properly unless they get in their daily feed the mysterious food elements that we speak of as vitamins. Diseases due to improper feeding have been recognized for many years, but the vitamins that are lacking elements have been known for a short time.
Vitamin A is soluble in fat and is called fat soluble A. It is present in greatest amount in butter, yolk of fresh eggs, green leaves, yellow corn, green alfalfa and cod liver oil. Young animals given feeds that are absolutely lacking in Vitamin A develop a sore eye condition called Xerophthalmia. Chickens lose weight, the comb becomes pale, the feathers ruffled and show progressive muscular weakness. A white exudate collects in the eye. On post mortem, birds that have developed this nutritional disease show small white or yellowish raised nodules in the tissue about the size of millet seed and irregular in outline. These nodules are scattered over the surface of the oesophagus. In addition the nodules in the oesophagus, birds suffering from Vitamin A deficiency show enlarged nodules in the kidneys. They are enlarged, pale in color, and streaked with a network of white lines. Occasionally there is a general distribution of nodules throughout the body and the surface of the intestinal organs appear as if infested with the white nodules. Green feeds, yellow corn or cod liver oil prevents the condition.
Vitamin B is a water soluble B. This vitamin is present in green leaves, fruit, eggs, yeast, and the growing of man. It is particularly present in the feed preventives netteritis in poultry, and beriberi in man. It is the cause of the paralysis in green feeds, yellow corn and cod liver oil. One per cent. of cod liver oil prevents the condition. Rickets may also be prevented by exposing the animal to bright light. The fat soluble Vitamin D is a general nutritive condition of the feathers. In man, the symptoms are the same as known to most mention here.
Vitamin C. The presence of the vitamin in the food prevents the condition known as rickets or leg weakness in young chicks, children and man. It is the cause of the present in green leaves, milk and cod liver oil. One per cent. of cod liver oil prevents the condition. Rickets may also be prevented by exposing the animal to bright light. The fat soluble Vitamin D is a general nutritive condition of the feathers. In man, the symptoms are the same as known to most mention here.
Ideal Apple Tree.
The ideal apple tree is one that has been selected for its ability to give its main limbs are well placed and form strong crochets that will carry the tree to maturity without breakage or injury, and enable the tree to bear annual crops of satisfactory proportions and quality at low cost and without the necessity for the use of props.
Tying on Loads.
For tying on loads, rope cannot be beaten. Any person who has had experience in driving a load knows it is to keep the top in place a rope about feet long, drawn tight around the top course of bales will hold them in one solid cluster. Each bale then helps to hold the other.
Self Feeder for Pigs.
Do not overlook the advantages of the self feeder in caring for the pigs. By getting their feed from a feeder they eat more, thereby making larger gains, and come to marketable size at an earlier date. Less feed is required to make gains and much labor is eliminated.
