The Coal Dealer's Life

at the present time is a hard old life. Hard coal is not to be had. The hard coal operators are hard boiled and will not give ground in the present controversy to the doubly hard boiled representative of the mine workers, and neither realize that the consumer may get hard boiled too and be darn hard to sell hard coal to after he becomes accustomed to good substitutes.

The Governor of Pennsylvania thought he could take the hardness out of the hard coal operators' hearts and have them accept the demands of the hard coal miners, but as they figured he was looking for votes in future campaigns, they set him down hard. The miners' leader is very hard and figured if he threatened Washington that he would suspend mining, other coal unless they intervened, he tried that bluff. The President of the United States was a little harder and called his bluff and also discontinued plans for an intended intervention.

Summing it all up it is about time that the homesholder with a limited supply of Anthracite, save the same for extra cold weather and burn wood and canal coal in fire places, stove in ranges and small heaters and Pochontas coal in furnaces and large heaters.

We have genuine Hamilton Coke, specially prepared for Domestic use. Also New River Pochontas, smokeless, soft and snaps quick burning Kentucky Cannel.

Remember that it is not likely that you will have any Anthracite to offer you, until spring is here.

RE-OPENING SERVICES AT ST. PLEASANT CHURCH

The re-opening services of the new church on Sunday, Jan. 10th, was an event to be long remembered by those fortunate enough to be present and to join in the services of that occasion. The church was crowded to capacity by both the services. The brightness of the morning, with roads still open for cars, and the event in fact, was a most successful one. The church, which was dedicated by the Rev. Mr. J. B. Mackenzie, on the 10th of the month, was a most successful one. The church, which was dedicated by the Rev. Mr. J. B. GENERAL NEWS

Picking up scattered seeds in rough alfalfa fields after the crop has been cut is accomplished by a machine that works on the principle of a vacuum cleaner.

How taxes have increased in recent years is shown by a West Garraux farmer who says that in 1913 the taxes on his farm were $37.00, while now he pays $137.00.

MILTON

On Tuesday night of last week thieves stripped Mrs. Robert Deform's clothes line, on Mill Street, and that of her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Smades, in the East Ward. So far no arrest has been made, but certain parties are strongly suspected. While they remain at large many washings will be dried indoors.

Robert Agnew, of the C.N.R., Edmonton, Alta., is visiting relatives in Milton and neighborhood, to stay here until the middle of February. He says times are improving in Edmonton, that after several bad seasons and hard times, the farmers are much more prosperous now, the result of good crops and prices, and the outlook is good.

Notes and Comments

A SOUTHERN NEWSPAPER made a very humorous remark recently when it stated that the exercise that reduces the waist line most quickly consists in placing the hands on the table and pushing back. And many of our clever writers would have less ground for their joke if the exercise above were more generally adopted, says Dr. J. W. Barton. They are certainly justified in smiling at some stout people who endeavor to reduce their weight by spasmodic and heroic efforts at heavy exercise and who absolutely forget the exercise mentioned above, of pushing away from the table. Because, after all, where the weight is taken care of is at the table. Men and women will spend hours walking, home-back riding, bicycling, at heavy gymnasium work, to get rid of their superfluous weight, and then will push the table away, and will literally draw it to them, as they take into their system enormous meals which simply add to their poundage.

THAT THE TIME

When the Ontario Government will be prepared to extend its Provincial highway system still in the future, was indicated by Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, in his reception of a large deputation from Ontario County. When the Government took office in 1923 care of the first announcement was that no extension of the Provincial highway system would be made until the program already in hand had been carried through to completion. Such a time, Hon. Mr. Henry intimated, has not yet arrived. The deputation members, accordingly, were not given the assurance which they desired of an extension of the Provincial highway system from Sunderland to Grille, with a diversion through Beaverton. Hon. Mr. Henry declared that extensions to the Provincial highway system had not been contemplated by the Government, which was adhering to its stand of not undertaking any additions until the program which was under way when it took office should have been completed.

Notes and Comments

A CERTAIN big town newspaper in its SUNDAY edition prints short letters from married folk, giving them the opportunity to make public the faults they never suspected their mates had before marriage. As if any married couple couldn't find a few flaws and disappointments in their life partners without egging them on to hunt for them under the microscope. Married life is almost bound to bring forth a few disagreements in each marriage, and it is not in fact, as they say, that every day life, bringing as it does the husband and wife into such close and continual companionship, shows the little contrarieties, selfishnesses and sometimes cunningness that overtake his good qualities known only to the general public. Hubby sometimes finds the "sweet little thing" he married has a mind and a temper of her own. But what of it? If every man and woman who found a few unattractive traits in their life partners after marriage were to rush into print and "tell the world," as the saying is, there would be no room for anything else in the paper. Old married folk will tell you the best way to handle little unpleasantnesses in the home is to keep them in the home and forget them. Other people have enough trouble of their own without wishing to listen to the neighbors. In a world where few are good and none are perfect, it behooves anyone to peddle petty home differences to a reading public to be magnified and added to, when, after all, the most of it doesn't matter.

MANY YEARS AGO

It was then a world without a telephone, a movie, an automobile, radio or Sunday newspaper, the three-seated delivery truck filled with the father and mother and children and driven to church. We often wonder now if the younger generation is departing from ways of our Puritan fathers and beginning to lose the fear of hell. From one of the large families belonging to the congregation, one of the sons decided to become a minister. When on his first mission field he visited the old home and one day was asked to visit an aged Scotchman, who had passed his 90th year, and for whom the sands of time were rapidly sinking. All the friends of his youth had passed away; one by one they had fallen like leaves in wintry weather, and it was easily seen that the old man had a strong grip upon the eternal verities. In selecting a passage to read in scripture he picked up the Shepherd's Psalm, so dear to every trusting heart. As they spoke about some of its truths the student said, "I am but young in the Christian life and you have been walking with God for years. Might I say those words, 'Yes, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me,' express your experience or have you any fear of death?" "Hoops, lad," said the old man, "why should I have any fear of death? I just guess' here and any surely a body shouldn't be feared the ghost that his ain father's bones lie under. I think that death is just the cloak that we gang into for a wee while to get the auld worn-out clothes and get on the pure white robes to our Father's home." The student learned that day from the old man standing on the verge of the Unseen that the Christian can calmly regard death as but a going to the Father.

Signs of Spring

Signs of spring are very much in evidence in Milton and district. Frank Pearson, president of the Milton Horticultural Society, saw a pair of robins in his garden last week, while farmers also have seen robins in their orchards. Last week Mrs. W. Vallance, south of Milton, picked panicles in full bloom from a sheltered corner in her flower garden. — Reform.

Look Out For Bogus Bills

Counterfeit paper money of all denominations is in circulation throughout Western Ontario. Most of the bills have been victimized by the swindlers who are passing the bad bills, have given change for five ten dollar bills for some small purchase. In view of the prevalence of this counterfeit money, police authorities have issued a warning to merchants to be on the lookout for any bogus currency.

Playing With Matches

When his eight clothing caught fire while he was playing with matches, little Charlie Dennis, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Dennis, who reside about three miles from Moffat, was severely burned about the body. The child secured the matches in the floor of the kitchen, where he was playing, touched it to the hem of his nightgown which was ablaze almost immediately. His screams attracted his parents, who succeeded in tearing the burning garment off him before the flames reached the upper part of his body.

The Tarpon Springs Leader

The Tarpon Springs Leader, Florida, under date of Jan. 6th, has the following regarding one of Georgetown's old boys: "The members of the Baptist choir gave a surprise party Tuesday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Drak, pianist, the elder director of the choir for some time. Mr. Barber went to choir practice, as usual, only to find Mr. Drak and Mrs. Drak, pianist, the only ones present. Just as he was beginning to think his choir was lost he was telephoned him to come home for a moment. He and Rev. Denham started for his home and, arriving, found some twenty members awaiting him with a real old-fashioned 'surprise party.' The evening was one of much genuine pleasure and was given in appreciation of the good work Mr. Barber has done for the choir. Refreshments of cake and fruit were served at the conclusion of the evening."
