Eighth Ten
The St. Patrick's tea in the Library on Saturday afternoon last, claims first place as a fore-runner of spring, despite the efforts of the "Globe" robot, to usurp that honor. The prettily decorated hall, the attractive costumes, the display of shamrocks, daffodils, and green carnations were certainly green and sunshiny enough for spring. The splendid musical program was much appreciated and the Local Council of Women take this opportunity to thank all those who took part in it, also to thank the friends who contributed so generously to the baking table, the collections who acted as waitresses and any others who helped to make the tea a very successful event.

Curling News

As we have said all along, our curling club will soon become one of the fastest and best in the province. Of course we haven't brought home any Tankard or District Cup as yet, but that is merely because we didn't feel that, as a new club, we should go to another town and carry off prizes that other clubs had been trying for years to win. However, as the season is about over, we thought it well to sound a warning as to what is likely to happen to our challengers in the future. Last week we licked Brampton. The scores in our local competition this season have not been very large. That should be an indication that our curling is good, and that our players are evenly matched. That is the exact condition of our club at the present time as anyone can find out by asking any curler in Brampton. On Thursday last, our President received a phone call from the Brampton Club asking if we would oblige them with a game that same afternoon. The President told them to bring along two rinks and when they apologized for the short notice, he advised them that the only notice Georgetown curlers required was time enough to find their brooms. Brampton came, they saw, and were conquered. We can't give the scores here as Georgetown ran out of chalk in the tenth end. Georgetown curlers are good sports though, and on Saturday they went to Brampton and allowed their opponents to win, just to show that good-fellowship for which the club is noted.

Seriously though, we are more than glad that the Brampton club came to Georgetown. We enjoyed having them with us and want them to feel that rinks from their club will always be welcome. We hope that there will be more visiting back and forth in the seasons to come.

On Monday night the competition for the four rosetts of beef, donated by Messrs. Erwin & Goldham, was pulled out. The game was good. Every player went on the ice fairly smelling gravy and having visions of tucking his wife's apron under his chin and digging into the roast. But one by one they fell and retired to the club room with sore hearts and hungry stomachs. The champs kept right on winning and as they went out on the final draw you could fairly see their mouths watering. They remained champs to the end, and right now as you are reading this, Messrs. Mimma, Feller, Tuck and Hamilton are enjoying roast beef.
