WHICH ROAD?

If you could go back to the forks of the road, the long miles you have carried the load, the place where you had to decide, By this way or that through your life, the narrow and back of the future, Back to the place where the future was fair, If you were there now, a decision to make, Oh, pilgrim of sorrow, which road would you take? Then, after you'd trodden the other long road, Suppose that you'd to the forks you went back, After you found that its promise were but a delusion that led to a snare— That the road you first travelled with signs and unrest, Though dreary and rough was more successful than the road you now follow, With harm for each bribe and a chain for each ache— Oh, pilgrim of sorrow, which road would you take?

SPECIAL FARES AND TRAINS

Tommy Church keeps popping away at his campaign to have Canada's railways revert to their pre-war policy of giving the public special fares on national holidays. Parliament has agreed to the proposal, but had scarcely convened before he had again had his bill before the committee and all sportsmen without exception will be behind him in his efforts this session. Most of us can remember the good old days when a large excursion train would pack up its duds and respond to the conductor's "All aboard!" to follow the home team to the town or to spend a hot summer day at the lake shore. These excursions were largely patronized because the trip could be made at the moderate cost of single fare or fare-and-one-third on the round trip. It is only necessary to look back twelve years or more to bring back memories of the week-end trips to the city or the burrito trip to the parental home at Easter, Thanksgiving or Christmas. These trips, too, were popular because they could be accomplished at a moderate cost. Mr. Church contends that the old special rate which obtained prior to the war, if restored, will tend to increase the earnings of the railways from this class of traffic and most people will be inclined to think he is right. Go to it, Tommy!

ON A CLOTHESLINE

Two girls were talking over the telephone wire. Both were discussing what they should wear at the party, the matter being discussed in conversation, a masculine voice interrupted, asking humbly for a number. One of the girls became indignant and scornfully asked: "What line do you think you are on, anyhow?" "Well," said the man, "I am not sure, but judging from what I have heard, I should say I was on a clothesline."

NEW WHITE CARNATION IS CALLED "LOCARNO"

Mrs. Cockshutt Named Latest Variety Carnation Propagated by Georgetown Floral Co.

The Spring Flower Show here last week at the King Edward Hotel definitely established Toronto as one of the great rose-growing centres of the world. The riotous wealth of color shown the roses centred in the crystal ballroom were outstanding features. All shown were the product of the rose houses of the well-known commercial growers and the competition for first places was so keen as to give the judges a difficult task. Lieutenant-Governor Cockshutt in his opening remarks referred to the great success that has attended rose development in Ontario. Though the centre sections of the room in which the blooms and quite a number of the rare ones were on display to the eyes of the display of potted specimens planted in the garden. Huge groupings of primulas, schizanthus, iliacs, hydrangeas, violas, cypripediums, azaleas, rhododendrons and others were ranged around the walls and in color and wealth of flower were a revelation. A new white carnation was presented to Mr. Cockshutt, who was asked to name it. She gave the flower the name of "Locarno." It was a development made by S. Kirk of Georgetown from the red variety known as "There." There were about 60 classes in the show, with prizes and awards in each. The professional growers naturally carried off the bulk of the awards, though it was noticeable that here and there the name of a private owner appeared, those of J. S. Laughlin of Oshawa and Lady Eaton being the most conspicuous of the successful non-commercial exhibitors. The Georgetown Floral Company had a splendid exhibit and were among the prize winners. The show was staged under the auspices of the Provincial and Toronto Horticultural Societies, the Floral Club and the Gardeners and Growers' Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ford, Trafalgar, were presented with two handsome wicker chairs and a fernery by their friends at the celebration of their 35th wedding anniversary, quite recently.

Mr. Campbell Steen of Erin happened with a painful accident one day recently, while drawing sawdust. In some manner the sawdust fell in the man's eye. Steen was badly sprained leg, and as a result is confined to his home.

It has been reported that the total bird population on a given area can be raised far above the normal by putting up bird houses. Do it, and you will find that the birds will flock to them. Build and put up bird-houses now.

Due to an alarming outbreak of measles in Cannifton and Corbyville villages, Dr. Ward, Trafalgar, Township, Medical Officer of Health, has ordered the temporary closing of the United Church at Cannifton and the public school attended by pupils from both villages.

W. J. Gerritt has disposed of his 100 acre farm on lot 165, first line west, Toronto Township, to Robert Wood, of Brampton, for $12,000, while W. D. Boyce, Clerk of Chingawany, has sold 100 acres, with house and barn, lot 28, fifth concession west, Chingawany, to John Raine, for $15,000.

Spending reports of the success of the introduction of pheasants into Halton County were made at an enthusiastic meeting of the Halton Game Protective Association at Milton on Saturday. About 40 applications were received for pheasant egg settings for the coming season. Evidently interest in the pheasant is from last year had wintered well.

While descending the stairs in his home in Trafalgar, Township, last Thursday night, a lamp, while lit, fell from J. W. Brown's hands and exploded, covering the floor with oil and shattering the lamp. Mr. Brown was badly burned about the hands, feet and lower part of his body.

INCOME TAX CHANGES

An Ottawa despatch says: Changes in the regulations in regard to the income tax payable by the living of returns with the inspectors of taxation for the district in which the taxpayer resides. Last year returns were made to the nearest Collector of Customs and Excise, but this practice is now discontinued. The change requires a return to be made in the practice which prevailed prior to 1925.

MEAT SECURE PERMITS

Inspector Hill of the Amusement Tax Department has announced that in future all churches that intend holding an entertainment must make an application to the Department at Toronto ten days prior to the date of the intended entertainment. He gives as the reason that many churches have been evading the law by paying artists and other talent who have helped on the program. This is a contravention of the law.

Notes and Comments

ABOUT THREE-QUARTERS of the townships of Ontario have completed with the Highway Laws Amendment Act, 1924, and are receiving grants accordingly. Hon. George S. Henry stated in the House in reply to a question: Two hundred and seventy-five townships have completed and 103 have not. The Minister advised that the department is advised that a considerable number of townships have abolished statute labor, but have not yet passed the necessary by-laws to enable them to obtain the 30 per cent. payable by the government. Asked if it were the wish of the department to have all townships participate in this assistance, the Minister replied in the affirmative.

FEW PEOPLE, perhaps, realize how many of the disagreeable things of life, its stings and irritations, might be avoided simply by being ignored. If we were to stop to chase every cur that barks at us as we go on our way, we would often be held up and have our temper ruffled to no purpose, and in many cases, no doubt, we would make ourselves ridiculous. The hogs we chase would soon become our enemies and multiply their annoying attacks. So there is the petty quarrel in life that is not worth minding. To stop to notice them humiliates us. Someone makes a disparaging remark to our pride and we watch for an opportunity to pay him back in kind. This cherishing of an injured feeling causes the wound to fester and to give us needless pain. Better never notice so trifling a matter. If the criticism made upon us is not true, probably far worse might be truthfully said about us. But in any case, the sooner a disagreeable incident is allowed to pass out of our mind the better for our peace and happiness.

ONE of the strange things about this mortal life is the non-concern we show towards death. Did you ever stop to think that six feet under the ground there are rows and rows of dead who lie unmindful of the tumult that is raging above them. To see men piling up dollars and planning leases that are to run for 99 years, you would think they expected to stay on top of the earth for some considerable time. Yet deep down in their hearts they must know that soon the grave will open for them. Life is not measured by money, and when the damp death settles upon the soul the great pile of money in the world will not buy health. Then why sacrifice your friends, peace of mind and health in the mad rush to get ahead of someone else? The man of great wealth. Perhaps he would give thousands of dollars for your good opinion. Remember that death takes all ranks and lays the shepherd's crook beside the sceptre. Real success in life comes from health, happiness and enough money to put you in a position to help those who cannot help themselves. Do not let yourself out trying to leave a big fortune for others to wrangle over. Perhaps they will be happier and better off if they have to hustle for themselves.

THE FEAR OF DEATH is not so great as the fear of punishment that is being physical pain. The strongest law-breakers and criminals this has been apparent for a long time and the wonder of it is that as a preventative for crime the lash is not resorted to more freely. Recently a man in Toronto charged with assaulting his wife was sentenced to six months in jail with ten lashes to be administered at the end of the first month. The jail sentence had no effect on the man, but when the lashes were mentioned he cringed and nearly collapsed. The same thing occurred in Walkerton last week at the court when Kupferschmid was sentenced to four years in the penitentiary. The fear of being hurt gripped him and his cowardice came to the fore. Criminals fear the lash because they have been known to grovel on their knees and pray for mercy. If the lash has any effect, why is it not used in every case on a criminal found guilty. Should the penalty of being lashed hang over the heads of law-breakers there would be less crime in the country. To be hurt physically is what the criminal fears. Then hurt those physically, who, through crime, injure and hurt others. There is altogether too much compassion shown for the criminal and lawbreaker, and this is one of the outstanding contributing factors to the prevalence of crime.

THIS IS THE TIME of the year when winter, looking much bedraggled and slatternly, sneaks quietly off for the stage of time to make room for another and more welcome season. The signs are not wanting that tell us "spring has come." The winter's supply of coal is almost used up, red flannel underwear has become hot and uncomfortable, and the prospect of a bright and sunny day is a nightmare of upheaval and turmoil—the spring house-cleaning—is already spreading its baneful influence over the life of the gentle householder. Printers, in common with those other migrants of commerce, who throughout the winter months have been putting in long hours at their business, now talk a strange language of nickle and dimie, of stance and stymie, and recently I overheard a couple of them planning to soon leave their offices in the afternoon to make up "foursooms." (I think that's what they called it.) The days are lengthening out, and it's getting darned hard to keep one's mind on work. By some subtle and mysterious alchemy, mother Nature inoculates many of us at this time of the year with a little more than the ordinary quantity of restlessness—or to use a more fashionable expression "wanderlust." But call it "wanderlust," the "lure of the gypsy trail," "spring fever," or whatever else you like—it's much like measles—nearly all of us catch it some time or other. Every season has its own peculiar beauty and charm, and its own devotees, but spring—so meandering with its days of bright sunshine and warm rains, with its budding trees and flowers, that promise a greater beauty to come; with its winds blowing clean and fresh as a newly laundered shirt—is the glory of the year.

Right W. L. Rev. W. L. Lawrence of South St. Marie, Toronto, visited Toronto, was re-elected as Grand Master of Ontario West at London last week. He will attend the meeting of the Imperial Grand Orange Council of the World in London next July, and will speak in Belfast on the 12th.
