YE OLD TYME DANCE In Casey's flat the other night, The radio was heard. The concert sure came over right And Casey thought it ought of sight, "Be jabers, it's a bird!

He took the middle of the floor And hollered "Do-si-do! It's forty years or more Since I have heard those tunes before Sing louder, radio."

Then Casey kicked the rugs aside, And told the company Just watch a bit-I'm stepin' wide. Old fashioned dancing is my pride, An' you can learn from me. "Salute your partners! Balance all, . An" Birdie in the nest!"

The neighbors heard old Casey cal And gathered gally at the hall, A learnin' with the rest. "Bucks hop out! Does hop in; Now awing your partners all! Alcemond left and jig like sin,

An' grab the lady by the fin,

An' balance down the hall!" The fiddler paused, and Casey too, Quit calling off the dance. Says he, "That's how we used to In happy days you never knew Whenever we'd the chance."

We'd push the chairs against We played the Jewsharp too, We'd do-si-do and balance all With ladies short and ladies tall The winter evening through!"

"It sort of warms my heart," says !
"To feel the old-time charm Of evenings lived in memory When it seems doggone good to be Jest livin'-on the farm!"

Here's a thought to those who are holding back on paying their bills: If you pay, the one you pay can pay another. It will go around the circle if it is started, and when it gets back, start it around again. Money is good only when it is in circulation. Busy money, money that keeps going around, makes this country.
