Married
NORTON—JAMES—At St. George's Church, Georgetown, on Wednesday, August 25th, 1926, by the Rev. F. H. Wray, Wm. H. Wray, daughter of Mr. George James, Georgetown, to Donald Allen Norton, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. Norton, Glenwilliams.

SAYERS—At Meyerson, Sask., on Monday, August 30th, 1926, Mrs. Georgina Marshall, beloved wife of W. F. Sayers, aged 42 years, 6 months and 22 days.

In Memoriam
McDONALD—In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Carl McDonald, who passed away Sept. 1st, 1926. One year has gone our hearts still sore, as time goes on we miss him more. The blow was great, but we know better. We little thought his death was near. And only those who have lost can tell. The pain of parting without farewell. —Sally missed by Mother and Brothers.

Notes and Comments

SO many people are reported as having died of heart trouble that the user will wonder a great boon to humanity. But, like perpetual motion, this is one of the world's impossibilities. When the motor plays out in an industrial plant a new one can be installed, but there's only one motor for every human system.

JOHN D. Rockefeller, the oil king ascribes his good health to the fact that he drinks about 3 quarts of water every day. That is not 12 cups, but falls into flushing out his digestive system. If the young men of today who are looking for booze, either of the big distillery or swamp manufacture, to quench the craving of a false appetite, would concentrate on copious draughts of cold water they might reach the nineties as the wise old oil refiner has.

IN reflecting upon the conduct and action of many of the young people of today, one seems to be naturally inclined to ask them: "How much is your self respect worth?" Some young persons evidently hold it cheap. The boy who cheats to pass his examinations has parted with his most precious possession for a song. The girl who does as her companions are doing, though she violates her conscience, sells her self-respect for almost nothing. No one is rich who cannot respect himself, even though he is rated as a millionaire. No one is poor who has retained his self-respect, although paying his last bill took his last dollar. Hold fast to your self-respect, for to lose it means that you have made a bad bargain, regardless of what is paid you, or what your present gain.

Correspondence

Bus Service to Exhibition

Mr. W. J. Hollinger, President of the Toronto-Kitchener Bus Line, writes the Herald as follows:—
"During the Toronto Exhibition will run our buses directly into the grounds and after the grand opening performance at night our buses will be waiting to take our Georgetown patrons the same evening. After a perfect day when one is tired and dusty I am sure this extra service will be appreciated by the public because no one likes to have to push through the crowds to get a street car and then have to change cars with all the attendant bother which spoils an otherwise perfect day at the Exhibition."

LACKS THE PERSONAL TOUCH

A big car, bearing the name of a big city and the dust of an unappreciated country, pulled up at the square of hard pressed brakes in front of the office the other day. A driver, an opulent appearing gentleman of the hard driving type roared without hesitation: "How do you manage to live in these Jay towns?"
It was, perhaps, meant in a spirit of humor, but it was irritating. He had failed to grasp the viewpoint of the small town people, although his youth probably was spent in some rural part of Ontario, where he got the stamina and intelligence to withstand the deteriorating influences of the big city life. What ignorance is displayed in the remark "How can you live in these Jay towns?" Think of the opportunities the man has missed. The personal touch and sympathy has gone from his soul. His life is a battle of wit against others in a small circle. He gets no sympathy, no kindly understanding, from his community. "How do you live in a Jay town?" That is where one lives. There may be arguments and differences of opinion, but it is overshadowed by a great community interest in which each citizen knows the opportunities, the difficulties and troubles of another. With it there may be gossip, but mankind loves gossip. The townman knows what attitude to take regarding the wagging tongue, but there is no great quarrel. Love and respect rise above hate and greed in small towns. "How do you live in a Jay town?" The whole town lives. One portion does not roll in wealth, while the other starves. There are no boasts of what is done for charity. No charity needed. "How do you live in a Jay town?" Our friend stayed five minutes in town and the appearance of his car told the story of his life through all the district. It takes more than five minutes to get the spirit of a small town. Anyway, perhaps your friend will realize in his leisure moments, if he ever has any, that without the rural districts the city citizenship would decay. It needs the breath of the pure, clean country to maintain its manhood in its deteriorating whirl. Meantime the small town, with a quiet, contented chuckle, tolerates the criticism of its big city visitors. —Kindergarten Review-Reporter.
