A Diastrous Fire Mr. Hugh Logan's fine Residence and Contents Burned.

At five o'clock last Thursday morn ing Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Logan and family narrowly escaped from their burning home on the ninth line west with the thermometer registering tive below zero. ' As the man who comes to do the morning chores was approaching the house he noticed the entire back of the house in flames He at once aroused the family, who escaped with their clothes, but noth ing more. Owing to the severe wind the fire spread rapidly, and before help could be summoned, the house was a mass of charred ruins. Mr Logan suspects that the fire commenced in the adjoining building, where a Delco lighting system was jewel to Ex. Comp. B. G. Arnold, the installed. Owing to the rapidity retiring principal. with which the fire spread, the contents of the house were totally destroyed by the flames. Mr. Logan estimates his total loss at $15.000 as he carried no insurance.

ing the recent disastrous fire which totally destroyed the handsome residence of Mr. Hugh Logun, on the 3th line, on Thursday morning last, worthy of mention. When the blaze was first discovered by Mr. Thos. Anderson, employed by Mr. Logan to do minor work around the premises, it had gained considerable headway. After arousing the family Mr. Anderson evidently had returned to his room to obtain certain articles of wearing apparel and in consequence had been overcome by smoke. The family on reaching safety missed the old gentleman and Mr. Norman Logan immediately returned to the burning building which was a mass of flames, and found Mr. Anderson lying unconscious on the apper floor. At great risk to himself he carried the old gentleman to safety where every attention and comfort were made availably for all by kind neigh-
