Life

A little laughter, and time for tears,
A stretch of duty and a hour for play
"Tis thus we march life journey through the years
From baby curls to tresses thin and gray.

A friend or two whose faith in us remains;
A roof where love has sheltered every dream,
Has counted all its losses and its gains—
These make the fabric of life's noblest scheme.

I saw a game played with a crowd of boys;
Men gave them wire and string and nails and tin
And said "A prize to him who best employs
These useless things and brings his product in."

Then from those trival bits grew ships a-sail—
One lad the model of a castle made
And there I saw us all, who aim, who fail,
Although 'twas but a game the youngsters played.

Life gives us bits of joys and bits of cares
And bids us fashion something as a whole,
We choose our own design, and if it bears
The stamp of merit—God rewards the soul.

Edgar A. Guest.

The Culture of Roses

By Henery J. Moore

The best position for Roses is a fully sunny one. If such is protected from the prevailing winds so much the better for the bushes during winter and the blooms during summer. Hedges or masses of shrubs afford splendid protection in our colder localities; though not essential, if the Roses are adequately protected over winter.

Roses require a cool and moist soil for best development. The perfect soil is a deep rich clay loam. Usually such a soil is light in colour and thus is relatively cool in summer as light coloured soils do not absorb the heat of the sun to any extent. It is also a moist soil, as being composed of very minute particles packed closely together it will hold the moisture considerably longer than a porous sandy loam. When preparing the soil, dig it deeply and work therein during October or November manure from the cow or pig stables. These are manures which do not heat on decomposition but which give off a lot of moisture. Thus they favor the conditions which are necessary to an ideal soil, namely, coolness and moistness.

The most popular Roses are the Hybrid Teas, which are crosses between the Hybrid perpetuals and the true Tea Scented Roses. They have inherited some of the hardiness of the former and much of the free blooming quality of the latter. They bloom from June until October. The Climbing Roses are perhaps a good second with the dainty Polyanthas and the rugged Hybrid perpetuals, but less free flowering types following. The Baby Polyanthas are fast increasing in popularity and merit a more general use on account of their free blooming qualities and extreme hardiness.

April or early May is the best period to plant Roses in our colder winter localities. In mild localities November planting is equally as good. Dig the holes so deep that when the roots are in position the bud-graft is two inches below the finished surface of the soil and so wide that the roots may be spread out so that they radiate from the root stock. Cut away all broken roots and immerse the plants in water for an hour and when planting keep the roots spread well apart by means of fine soil placed between. Having tramped and firmed the soil, water it adequately. Always plant Roses firmly and in such a manner that the roots are not cramped. Plant Hybrid Perpetuals 3' apart; Hybrid Teas and Baby Polyanthas 2, apart.

As Roses flower upon the year's wood it is necessary to prune in spring. April planted roses should be properly pruned when planted. If autumn planted the stems should be shortened somewhat and in April proper pruning be effected. In all cases remove the dead and weakly growths first, leaving in the case of the Hybrid Teas three or four of the strongest, and shorten these three inches above the graft. In the case of the Hybrid Perpetuals leave five or six strong ones and shorten these six inches or so above the graft. Always see that the remaining growths are well spaced and shortened above a bud that points outward. During subsequent years prune away the growth of Hybrid Teas or Hybrid Perpetuals respectively the same distance from the wood of the previous year. Prune the Baby Polyanthas in April by simply cutting away all dead growth. From climbing Roses the dead and weakly canes should be removed at the same time.

Summer pruning is practiced to cause a continuity of bloom in the case of the Hybrid Teas and Baby Polyanthas and also to favor the production of basic growths which the following year will produce flowering growths. As the flowers fade they should, whether as individuals or trusses, be removed by cutting the stems above the third leaf down, not later however than July. This will cause the production of growth which will flower during the current year. During August the old canes of the Climbers which have flowered should be removed and the strongest young canes be trained to replace these. The long and wayward growths of the Hybrid Perpetuals should be shortened to about two feet in length before winter.

To control such as aphides (green flies) which suck the sap, spray with a solution of nicotine sulphate, 1 oz. to the gallon of soapy water, and to control red spiders, spray with the same solution but to which is added a handful of flowers of sulphur, the whole being well stirred. For leaf eating insects spray with arsenate of lead, paris green mixture, or dust with a mixture of pyrethrum 2 ozs., paris green 1 oz., flour 3 ozs., when the foliage is wet.

Notes and Comments

THE weed crop found blooming annually on our side streets and along the highways is threatened with extinction if a bill now before the Ontario Legislature becomes law. That bill requires every municipality, urban or rural, to appoint and pay inspectors, whose duty it shall be to compel property owners to destroy weeds of all sorts and take every precaution to prevent spread of the seed. The bill is a good, one for hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of crops are lost or partially destroyed annually through encroachment of weeds, which in some parts of the country are allowed to grow without let or hindrance. The act provides for the appointment of inspectors in every municipality, who must, before the 15th of June each year, send a notice to every resident of what weeds on his place require attention. Penalties from $20 to $50 are provided for

AN increase in gross earnings, an increase in net earnings and a diminution in operating ratio for the month of January, are shown in the statement issued by the Canadian National Railway. During January last the gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways, including the Grand Trunk System lines in the United States, reached a total of $20,168,259, compared with $18,701,154.49 in January, 1926, an increase for January this year of $1,467,104.51. During January, 1927 the working expenses amounted to $18,133,905.55 as compared with $16,972,772.88 in January 1926, an increase of $1,161,132.67. Net earnings in January amounted to $2,034,353.45 as against net earnings in January, 1926 of $1,728,381.61, an increase of $305,971.84 in favor of January of the current year and equivalent to a gain of 17.70 per cent in net earnings.

LAST week the Legislature had the Liquor Control Bill as chief feature in legislation, as the debate thereon will no doubt be the outstanding item this week. Some of the bill's main features had been correctly forecasted, but among the points made clear by perusal of the actual clauses are the following: supreme administrative authority in the Hanna commission, with enforcement of the law, like all other laws of the province, through the attorney-general's department; permits to persons over 21 good for one year, and to tranients for one month; no public advertising of liquors; constables need no warrant for search. No liquor may be consumed in a public place. Druggists may use alcohol only as a solvent or preservative, and sale of essences and extracts is rigidly restricted. Any person convicted of selling is to be imprisoned upon first offence. The Act is to come into force upon proclamation, probably May 15.

Educational Grants

The following grants were made by the council at Tuesday's meeting as recommended in the report of the Standing Committee on Education:—

J. M. Denyes, Public School Inspector, for clerical assistance in 1926	40.00
Halton Educational Association	40.00
Burlington High School, balance	11,975.22
Georgetown High School balance	4,220.98
Milton High School, bal.	13,118.13
Oakville High School, bal.	11,984.07
Acton Continuation School balance	548.07
Brampton High School	294.32
Waterdown High School	777.17

Oakville Board of Education, $615.82 being the difference between the cheque received from Peel county and the amount overcharged this county by Oakville on requisition, 1924 and 1925, less $73, the amount of the committee's fees in obtaining the adjustment with the county of Peel.

The committee did not recommend the payment of 100 per cent. for maintenance of Halton pupils attending Waterdown High School, as asked by its board, on the ground that this would be contrary to the Act. It was suggested in the report that the townships should make arrangements for next September.

The four High Schools got $2,000 each in January, and Acton Continuation School got $800.00.
