THE NOBLE ON EARTH

Are those, and those only, who deserve the title of noble, who are distinguished by noble blood, or noble birth?

Beyond all dispute, they're the noble of earth.

Yes, many's nobility, by rightful claim.

Of Heaven's own, patent well worthy the name.

Those who by their pledged promise bravely abide.

Or winning, or losing, what's their bettle.

Who like Socrates, injured, ill-treated.

For the good they can do here, unselfishly live.

To themselves, and to others. Just loyal and true.

With firm trust in Heaven, though earth's friends are few.

Those who grudge not the victor his well earned prize.

Nor with high haughtiness, humble merit despise.

Above the world's favor, a clear conscience hold.

And friendship's pure reward more than silver or gold.

The high road to life's high road will valiantly go.

While low souls will follow the broad road below.

Aye, these are the noble of right royal worth.

This old world's shant anchor, the salt of the earth.

They alone shall inherit that fair, fronted land.

And unquestioned of creed, on the holy hills stand.

In that kingdom above, shine, more brightly than the stars.

And hear those best words, faithful servant, well done.

Real Living

"A little more kindness,
A little more giving,
A little less greed,
A little more courage,
A little less fear,
A little less kicking,
A man when he's down,
A little more love,
A little less 'I',
A little more laugh,
A little more flowers,
On the pathway of life,
And fewer on the grave."
At the end of the strife.

VALUE OF PETS IN THE HOME

Perhaps the sweetest recollections of childhood are those connected with pet—some frisky, affectionate little animal or gay little bird loved and tended in the far-off golden days.

Pets are an endless joy to children. They lend themselves readily to every kind of make-believe, and are available as playthings and confidants of woe. "Taking it over with a cat, a dog, or a bird, has a soothing power not at all times attainable through human agencies.

"My pony is so sympathetic," said a little girl, and "has such a sense of humor." The pure delight afforded by these creatures in their presence in every household. Parents sometimes complain that they are such a trouble, and in the way, and require so much care. Could they realize the value of their pets as a source of happiness and a means of education, these objections would be forgotten. Childhood without pets is bleak and barren, although not complete. Like a vine in the desert, it tends to die in every direction because there is no object to cling to.

Children, like most savages, are frequently cruel. Animals that are dependent have a civilizing influence upon the child, for the savagery of children is that of ignorant and malicious. The many wants of pets, their helplessness, awaken a sense of moral responsibility. A living creature can't be neglected without pain and suffering following. Very different is the condition of toy that is forgotten and left out in the rain. It is spoiled, and the loss is the child's loss. In a measure he is responsible only to himself for the welfare of inanimate possessions. But a sentient creature has a responsibility. It gives a child a deeper claim. Things that feel have rights. Even young children recognize this and learn through affection for their four-footed friends to recognize their claim to health and happiness.

Pets have also a hygienic value, many of them requiring fresh air and exercise at regular intervals. This necessarily takes the child out of doors, in sunshine, on dark days, and in all sorts of weather. It gives an object of interest to what would otherwise be a dull performance. Many a listless girl would rebel at rubbing and raincoat, glides into the room smilingly when it is a question of "walk with Rover" or "Pido." How willingly these burdens are borne for a dumb friend who gains most in the bargain.

Messrs. F. E. Wrightworth & Son have sold their farm, 8 Con. 6, West Caledon to Mr. E. Speira, May 1st.

A ferocious man attacked Mrs. John McDonald, of the fifth line, Erin, the other day, while she was engaged in milking, butting her fiercely in the back. Her spinal column is reported to be seriously injured.

Mr. John Homer, one of Erin's old-time business men has sold his butcher business to Mr. D. Glasford. Mr. Glasford will get possession next Monday. Mr. Homer has been in the butcher business in Erin for 23 years, previous to which time he put in 15 years in the business in Belfountain, and during all these years has never missed a day behind the block.

Motorist Robbed

FURMERS ELLEPPOND CITIZEN IN VICTIM OF BLICK SWINDLER

Mr. Frank Rennie, of Walkerton, a former well-known resident of Clifford, and a likable play on his last week by a confidence man. The story is told in the Walkerton Herald of last week.

One of the slickest confidence games ever worked on a Walkertonian was played over at Clifford on Monday, Oct. 22, by a smooth gent whom he befriended with a ride while returning home from Buffalo on Monday last and who repaid the local kindness by stepping out of the car at St. Catharines, and posing as Mr. Rennie. He was the local wife that an accident had occurred and to telephone him at once $500, which Mrs. Rennie did not believe at first.

The impostor was busy cashing the check and later flopping over the boarder the one and only Frank Rennie was motoring serenely home, which he eventually reached only to find his wife waiting on the porch with a check that amused him when he heard of it, and which staggered him when he realized that it had come from his bank. The police were notified but an investigation showed that the thief with the wad while the going was good. His whereabouts are at present a mystery.

The trip that was featured with the fake telegram call for cash was opened on Monday morning, when Mrs. Rennie called on her son, Jim, at the Elgin City when his car broke down about 11 p.m. on the Sabbath at Clifford and his father, Councilor Frank Rennie, was routed out of bed and summoned to his son's aid by phone.

On arriving at Clifford and finding that Jim was likely to be delayed for some time, his father called on the senior Rennie proceeded to motor his son onto Buffalo in his own chariot, a Ford of 1925, and he was followed through a dense mist prevailed throughout the night they reached their destination safely, and it was while Councilor Rennie was returning home from Buffalo about 11 o'clock Monday morning that he halted at a stop street, sign in "Windsor, Ontario," when a neatly dressed stranger noticed an Ontario license plate on his car, which was covered with mud raised hand and asked for a lift to Niagara, a favor which the accommodating Nick proceeded without hesitation to grant him.

En route the stranger, who purported to be a business man in Buffalo, became so friendly that he gave Mr. Rennie his card and decided that he would ride right on to St. Catharines with him. At the border he heard the Walkertonian tell the customs officer a lot of details about himself and this added to what news he had picked up in the interchange of conversation between himself and him to pull his trick on the unsuspecting ex-M.P.P. without a hitch.

At the Hotel, the Walkertonian declined on the grounds that he had a late breakfast and was anxious to make home for tea.

As the local breeze away about 11 o'clock Monday morning, the man in the dark suit was taking the local bus to Buffalo, and was on the point of entering the station when he was arrested by a constable on duty.

Cattle Rustlers Restored

After a series of tests, the Ontario Department of Highways has decided to change the color of the motor markers for the year 1928. It was originally intended to use the same color as that used last year, but a yellow background was chosen for better visibility. As a result the markers for 1928 will be composed of a "batwing" grey background with black letters and figures.

THE most undesirable citizen or employee is he who is all those knock-out and kicking, who is never satisfied and thinks that conditions in the world have fallen out of existence. For a being is not much use to himself, to his associates or to his employer, until he does his fault-finding and kicking delay, by the way or may not be satisfied until he knows for sure that he is doing it. He should at least be discreet enough to keep silent if he is not satisfied. It is the knock-out and kicking delay, by the way or may not be satisfied until he knows for sure that he is doing it.
