So far—and yet so near!

"I must call John by Long Distance and let him know I got here all right. Then neither of us will be worrying. It's wonderful to be able to visit you like this, and yet keep as close touch with home as if I were there. What must it have been like in the old days, before Long Distance made it possible?"

"I'll place the call for you while you are taking off your wraps."

"That will be fine. Just act for our number, 124, so I'll get the cheaper Station-to-Station rate. In a couple of days I'll call up again, in the evening, so I can have a few words with the children, too. The Evening Rate after 8:30 is really very low."

A Bridge You'll Never Cross

It's what you think that makes the world seem dull or bright to you: Your mind may color all things grey Or make them radiant hue. Be glad to-day, be true and wise, Beek gold amid the dross; Waste neither time nor thought about The bridge you'll never cross.

There's useful work for you to do: With hand and brain and heart; There's urgent human service, too, In which to take your part. Make every opportunity A gain and not a loss; The best a youngster can do not fear The bridge you'll never cross.

If life seems drab and difficult, Just face it with a will: You do not have to work alone, Since God is with you still. Press on with courage toward the goal.

"With Truth your shield and spear; Be strong look up and just ignore The bridge you'll never cross."

—Grenville Kleiser.

Founding of Parliament in 1830 To Be Commemorated

Delegates in Canada and United States to Attend Millennium at Reykjavik

—Visitors to Camp in Their Own May Take Trip as Their Will.

Several hundred Canadian and U.S. citizens of Icelandic descent are expected to be present at the centennial of the founding of the Icelandic Parliament, according to Dr. B. J. Brandson, of Winnipeg, man, chairman of the Canadian committee. Brandson, who was in Boston recently, said that the millennium celebration will be the most important event in the world which has had a continuous existence down to the present time, antedating the English "Mother of Parliaments" at Westminster by more than 300 years. The celebration will take the form of festivities emphasizing the national culture, taking place in the class rooms of all the schools. The training of character along this degree that emphasis is placed on self-control as the basis of moral habits. Premier Ferguson Writes to the School Teachers

In his capacity as minister of education, the prime minister of Ontario, some time ago addressed a letter urging them to train their young people under their care not only in the prescribed school programme, but in character. The premier's letter follows:

To the teacher, in my official capacity as chief administrator of the school system I am continually being reminded of the difficulties and temptations that beset the young people of the present day, by reason of the changing social and moral conditions that affect our daily habits and even our amusements. To the teaching body the community looks, and has never looked in vain, for the faithful guardianship of the pupils during school life. The school law, as you are aware, contains many provisions to inculcate, by precept and example, respect for religion and morality and the highest respect for truth, temperance and all other virtues. It may not be amiss to remind you of the obligations thus definitely laid down in relation to temperance and sobriety. The compulsory textbooks for use in the schools contain full and explicit warnings of the consequences that follow irregular and intemperate habits that imperil public welfare demands that this instruction should be diligently and systematically given in the class rooms of all the schools. The training of character along this degree that emphasis is placed on self-control as the basis of moral habits. NOTES AND COMMENTS

The place to take the true measure of a man is not the forum or the field; not the speaker's place or the arena; nor, but at his own fireside. There he lays aside his mask and you may judge whether he is imp or angel, king or cur, hero or scoundrel. I care not what the world says of him, if his children's eyes are turned to him with respect and love's own sunshine illuminates the face of his wife when she hears his footfall, you may take it for granted that he is true gold, for his home's a heaven and the number never gets that, near the great white throne of God.

A RATHER unusual reason has been given for the great increase in drink in Great Britain. Much of it is attributed to the fact that motor car driving has grown tremendously in recent years, and an English newspaper makes the explanation in this way:

Time was when the sober horse ran safely home with the tippy driver, but the motor car does not know the road as well.

Apparently the people of Great Britain seem to realize the truth of the saying that alcohol and gasoline make a poor mixture. When a man is driving a motor car he must have his hands steady, his eyes clear, and these things cannot be retained where there is an over-indulgence in liquor. He cannot enjoy both in the same man wishes to continue enjoyment of his automobile driving, he must keep himself free of more if he would rather enjoy his liquor, he should leave his motor car in the garage. He cannot enjoy both with safety to himself and his fellow-citizens.

ARRANGE AIR TRIPS ON EUROPEAN ROUTE

Canadian leaving this country for Europe during the coming winter months may arrange through Canadian National Railways agents, to go to Europe by air routes in the British Isles and on the Continent. It was stated this morning by C. W. Johnston, Assistant General Manager of the National System, The London and Paris offices of the company, Mr. Johnston stated, in the position to arrange bookings for any of the most important air services now operating. It is necessary, however, at the present time, to obtain space in advance, and the department of order service is so great that Canadian National agents in Canada are using the cable to make reservations for their patrons who desire to follow the air routes during their visits overseas.

Why do they call bootleg whiskey "Moonshine"?

"It's the way they test it. After drinking some if you can still see the moon shine, it's good; if you can't see it, it's bad."

ADVERTISEMENTS

are beginning to appear with decorations of holly and mistletoe and smiling faces of Santa Claus. To hint about these days and frolics tell their own story, give their own warning, hint at the important business from which they are barred and in which sooner or later everybody will be engaged. In other words, Christmas shopping has begun. It is little more than a month ahead of the shopping days of last year. There are a great many people who do to-day what can be done to-morrow. The postmaster has urged shipping of Christmas mail, but the last days will probably be bigger than ever. The train leaves for the city every day and does not fill until 5:15. We get there even if we are a last-minute nation. There are a great many people who do to-day what can be done to-morrow.
