MEMORY-LAND

Oh, what's the way to Memory-Land?
I fear 'twere quite forgot.
I peer through mist of vanished years,
But no familiar spot
Reminds me of the well-worn way
That leads to yester-year:
I glimpse no old familiar turn,
No acre nor a foot of ground.

Oh, what's the way to Memory-Land?
I seek each path and lane,
But cannot be that I,
Have lost the hill or field,
That lent above my father's house,
The arching elms below:
It cannot be no sign or shade
Can tell me where to go!

Oh, what's the way to Memory-Land?
I look each path and lane,
The orchard near the vanished home,
The sunset windmills,
I turn each way with my breast,
And there, the world apart,
I find the way to Memory-Land,
Close-hold within my heart!

ADVANTAGES OF POOR MEN'S CHILDREN

President-Kenneth Elliot of Harvard University believes that every normal boy likes every man who is worth his salt, likes productive labor and should have his hands busy in continuing some thing in the family. In A Late Harvest, Dr. Elliot sets down some of his opinions.

The country-bred child who has taken active part in the defense of the family against the ravages of the household has learned lessons in co-operation and loving service to his mother and has received much for the adult life.

The thoughtful son of a poor man is sure to learn two lessons that will be useful all his life. The first is to avoid unnecessary spending, and the second is to save money or goods for future use. He distinguishes between transitory and durable satisfactions and avoids spending his earnings for the unsatisfying gratifications in order to use his money later on the discriminating and self-control.

The children of the well-to-do are likely to keep up a professional or a business life, and the children of the poor man have to deny themselves silly expenditures to their great advantage, both physical and moral.

They learn to go without cheerfully; not to spend and not to waste.

Coal Wood

Here and There

More than 20,000 acres of Indian lands, which include some of the best agricultural areas in the Peace River district, are to be sold at auction in the near future. This action will in all probability follow a survey that is being made in the north country by W. Morrison, Inspector of Indian Agencies for Saskatchewan, and his assistants, who are now in Regina.

A new industry—hedge farming—may be started in Saskatchewan by John Rothberger, farmer, of Vanguard. Last spring Mr. Rothberger bought a hedge and four pups. He built a large pen, about 15 feet long and 4 feet wide. During summer he fed the hedges until they are now quite tame, and are said to be larger than any hedge ever raised. Their coats are in excellent condition and offer a $18 for each skin have been received.

A new world record was set by a train when Pacific Railway recently when a train of grain more than a mile in length was operated between Stoughton and Arcola in Saskatchewan. It was the longest and heaviest grain train in history, consisting of 135 loaded grain cars, each approximately 40 feet in length, a water car, a caboose and engine. The gross weight was 6,722 tons and the total contents of the cars were 201,000 bushels of grain.

The enthusiasm of the citizens of Quebec is so infectious that it is an easy matter to interest visitors in winter sports. Listed J. G. Strathdee, winter sports manager of the Chateau Frontenac, in giving a forecast of the winter programs. Skating, skiing and tobogganing will be in full swing as usual; the dogs will be most certainly take place; and the ice caravans and strolling of the 'trottoir' will probably feature. As he said, Mr. Strathdee mentioned the splendid co-operation given the winter activities at the Chateau Frontenac by the Quebec Winter Sports Association.

WRITERS BOYS FOR CANADIAN FARMS

Mr. Arthur Yapp Tells the Story of A Practical Emigration Experiment While Mr. Philip Howden Deals With the Wider International Aspect of the Problem.

"On behalf of the young miners and sons of miners in the distressed coalfield areas, the Y.M.C.A. recently secured an agreement with the United Church of Canada enabling it to send out a hundred of these boys to farm work under carefully-selected farmers in that country. Where necessary, these boys were provided with complete sets of tools and a little money to live in their pockets on landing. Y.M.C.A. welfare officers accompanied them on board the ship, and as far as the training hotel of the United Church of Canada at Norval Ontario," writes Mr. Arthur Yapp, National Secretary, Y.M.C.A. in the "Empire Review."

"Each boy receives a beginning wage of the public money to be used for his outfit, and is encouraged to save so that he may in time buy his own farm, if, by the time he reaches the country, he has managed to save at least $100 and has been able to convince the authorities that he is capable of running a farm, he is eligible for a Government loan of $500 to enable him to acquire a farm. This loan may be repaid in small amounts over a period of twenty years. Every one of these boys has the opportunity of saving money while working, and is always secure in the old country—of building up a happy and successful home to send out to his mother and another six hundred boys under the same scheme within the next few months."

The spirit of adventure is by no means dead in the young Britisher of 1929, and it is not surprising that a great future in one or other of the Dominions. There is far more room at the top of the ladder in Canada or Australia than there is in England. Even round the bottom of the ladder, in both these countries, there are vast unoccupied resources. Both are lands of great hope for the young man equipped with a few pounds of "seed money."

"The world is not over populated," writes the "Empire Review." "The industrial doctrine that the population of the world is increasing more rapidly than human capacity to feed and clothe it is a fallacy. It is not the world that is over populated, it is the world of the industrialized countries. The world of the future will be a world of the under-populated countries. The world of the future will be a world of the under-populated countries. The world of the future will be a world of the under-populated countries."

Good Brakes Prevent Accidents

It is the imperative duty of every motorist to keep his brakes in first-class mechanical condition.

At thirty-five miles an hour, four-wheel brakes should be able to stop a car in 72 feet. But at a 50 mile speed, 150 feet are required.

Some day your life or the lives of others will depend upon your braking equipment.

Keep the highways safe for yourself and others by always having good brakes.
