OUR SILENCES

What silence we keep year after year with those who are most near to us and dear. We live beside each other day by day. And speak of Myriad things, but seldom do we speak of the things that are most dear to us. These dear familiar friends that loved us so. And sitting in the shadows they have left. Alone with loneliness, and more here. We think with vain regret of some word, some smile, some gesture, some look, that once we might have said and they have heard.

OBITUARY

MRS. MCGARREY
The funeral of Mrs. Sarah McGarrey, widow of the late James S. McGarrey, who died at her residence in Toronto on New Year's Day, took place from St. Jude's church, Oakville on Friday afternoon. ### Can. Medical Association

Power is a word which we frequently use, and which we understand to mean constantly in use, so much so, in fact, that we do not give much thought to the convenience and comforts brought to us by application of power. Certain individuals are admitted, carried, or barred because of their power, and, unfortunately, those who abuse it. In many ways, personal power represents success, because the individual who has power is able to reach the peak in his particular line of work. Work, play, rest and sleep in moderation are all necessary. Overwork to the point of fatigue, over-play resulting in undue strain, lack of rest and sleep, which the body requires in order to regain and store up energy—any one or all of these may result in stress and strain which lower physical and mental efficiency and so decrease personal power. The individual who is apparently enjoying the best of health, but whose power is being worn out, is in a state of personal power, although this may be somewhat apparent, and the day will come when he must pay the penalty in an obvious way.

News and Information for the Busy Farmer

Live Stock Instruction
Short course students as well as regular students attending O.A.C. are all the activities of the Department of Animal Husbandry which has charge of the well equipped Live Stock Farm. For the last two years, the Stock and Field-Crops Short Course has been extended from two weeks to a month's duration, which is so divided that considerable time is allotted to the judging of the principal features of the stock and discussing the important problems of feeding and management common to each class. The 1929 calendar affords an additional privilege to the Live Stock students in the form of a six-day course in farm meats.

Live Stock at O.A.C.

The live stock at O.A.C. has gone into winter quarters in satisfactory condition despite the shortage of fall pasture. This year the college brood mares have a lot of foals of the good draught type needed to improve the horse industry. They are being bred in the stable yard for the present fill an important place in live stock teaching work. Quite a number of cowboys are in the beef barn and are making very good progress in the situation for instruction work in the beef cattle industry. In the dairy barn students are studying up on the type of dairy cattle that are typical representatives of their respective breeds. On the farm has been increased and sheep breeding and feeding practices, certain information should be obtained by those who believe themselves to be here.

Water for Hens

An egg contains a large amount of water and the hen's body is likewise composed of water. The hen should drink approximately twice as much water by weight, as she eats food. One hundred hens that are laying should consume about four gallons of water per day. In view of these facts it is apparent that the water supply should be kept up during the winter months. Failure to supply water properly hinders the hen's ability to produce eggs with a resultant curtailment of egg production.

Protect Fruit Trees

Two methods are adopted at the Central Experimental Farm to protect fruit trees from winter injury. The first one is to wrap the trunks of the trees with straw or paper. The other one is to encircle the trunk with a wire protector with a small hole going through it. In either case the protector must be put close to the trunk and the wire should be fastened to the trunk. These forms of protection should be put on now, particularly on trees up to six in. in diameter.

Crop Averages

A WINTER COMPLAINT

I hate my woolen underwear. I'm mad enough to hawl it higher here, it hitches there. The darned itch seems to crawl! And when I start to scratch somewhere That ain't the place at all.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

SOME day we shall learn the little deeds of fore wrought unconsciously in their helplessness and will shine more brightly in life than the deeds of reborn-which we think of as alone making a life great.

THE ELIMINATION OF THE SMALL SCHOOL

According to the statistical reports of the Department of Education, there have been from 800 to 1000 rural schools in the Province of Ontario for the last fifteen years. Many of these schools have had an average attendance of from 1 to 10 pupils each. These schools are considered to be neither economical nor efficient. It is impossible for the child to receive such training as will fit him to compete in the world of today. He has had in life, when in early years he receives his training in isolation. There can be little if any competition in the class rooms, on the school grounds or in other activities whereby the children learn to work together. It must be very disheartening for the teacher to attempt to interest one or two pupils in a class. She has to put more enthusiasm in her work to make up for the lack of competition. The teaching process becomes a mere routine for imparting information. Pupils may be able to pass the entrance examinations at an early age, but we must remember that the mere passing of examinations is not education.
