So, this is life! To fight in vain... With faith that never seems to die... To try, and fail, and try again... To fail again, and still to try... To know, in all the wearying strife... The highest things that we intend... We shall not know. So this is life! To fight, and fall without an end!

To fall, but know the happiness of parting out each day anew... To fall, in failure and success... Knowing there's nothing left to do... For he who hears a pretty soul... Who quits the battle with a sigh... Lays down his arms and numbs his soul... With the calamity of Pride... For he who walks to victory... Will meet defeat the whole long way... And he who would successful be... Will fail in something everyday... He fails who wins, to scale the height... A little farther on, but more... He fails who finds his last delight... In some success and strives no more... Contaminated or adulterated milk... And so, since this is life, I say... No more to this I may fight... Commissioned to an endless task... With all my patience, all my might... And know the glory and the pain... Of hopeless hopes that never die... And try, and fail, and try again... To fall again, and still to try... -Walter Reed, in Toronto Star

News and Information for the Busy Farmer

Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture will accompany Premier Ferguson to London, England, next summer to open the new Ontario Government building there.

About 50,000 tons of hay have been recently exported from Eastern Ontario and Quebec to Great Britain. The 1929 exports of hay from Canada are greatly in excess of those in the previous year.

Ontario Potatoes Appreciated Good success is being attained by the Central Ontario Potato Growers' Association. This organization is marketing potatoes under brand names and graded to a standard above Canada No. 1. To January 10, thirty car loads were sold in new trucks bearing the brand name. Some of the largest retail firms in Ontario are now handling this stock. The price compares favorably with that received for potatoes imported from eastern provinces.

Co-operative Marketing Co-operatives grow not simply by an increase in membership, but more surely by an increase in the loyalty of the members. Not necessarily according to the number of cars, or tons, or dollars handled, but according to the extent the business aids in improving the conditions of each member. Not by an increase in quantity, but constantly by an increase in the quality of the marketable product of the individual grower. The co-operation which brings groups of uncertain minds into the field at one time, but by constant missionary work which brings into membership, one by one these sober-thinking, yet perhaps conservative and individualistic producers who, once convinced of the value of co-operation remain loyal to the end.

Use Tested Seed That price should be the last consideration in the buying of seed is the advice of a well-known seed specialist. Quality as indicated by purity, germination, and trueness to name is the important thing. Experience has repeatedly demonstrated that it is the cheaper in the end to buy the best seeds obtainable than to take as a gift quality, seed-infested seed. Canadian seed authorities advocate the same policy in view of the results of seed surveys which indicate clearly that the average farm seed used is badly infested with weeds. It is constantly urged by men well-informed concerning seed conditions that seed purchased should be confined only to the tested varieties. Seed may be tested at the nearest government laboratory.

Combating Fires A Western Ontario farmer in commenting on the number of barn fires caused by lanterns upsetting or exploding suggests a remedy which sounds practicable. The base of the lantern is stuffed with cotton batting until completely filled. A small hollow is then made with the finger to take the wick to lie in it. The lantern is then filled with oil and the surplus fluid drained off. The wick will take the oil from the cotton batting as needed and this method undoubtedly precludes any possibility of the troublesome fluid spilling.

Milk-Testing Pays There is sound common sense in the suggestion of a farmer keeping five good cows in place of fifteen "just cows." The case is cited of a farmer who lived off the work of the select grade in the bacon class and who reduced his herd to five "good ones." The surprising thing was that the net returns from the five were greater than had been had from the fifteen. This should prove conclusively the value in the use of weighing out the milk-paying members of the herd by milk-testing. The local department of agriculture stands ready at all times to advise the farmer in these matters.

New Hog Grading Rules The new hog-grading laws which came into effect last September have resulted in some confusion among the test well-informed breeders and shippers. The new qualifications are as follows: Hogs shall be divided into two classes, the bacon hogs and the non-bacon hogs; the bacon class is divided into two classes, the "selects" and "bacon." The standard for the select grade is the same except that the minimum weight is now set at 190 lbs. weighed off car. The second grade of bacon hogs or "bacon" must weigh from 170 to 220 pounds off car. The first grade of the non-bacon class is known as "butchers" and its weight range runs from 150 to 230 pounds weighed off car. All hogs of smooth fleshing and tending not conforming to the standard are included in this class. The old shop grade has been entirely removed and hogs under 150 lbs. are known as "lighter" or "feeders" and requirements for killers are filled from the feeder grade.

Protecting Cattle The stockman must be perpetually on the lookout to prevent his chosen or even scrub cattle from attacks by vermin, particularly lice and ringworm. The former are most persistent and cause much annoyance. Cement and kerosene, six parts to one, have been used but it has been found that this dries the hair. Kerosene oil may be rubbed into the parts attacked by lice or sabadilla powder or some insect powder may be dusted into the hair. One application will kill some but a second application will be necessary.

Water for Cows

Cows producing large amounts of milk require large amounts of water. With faith that never seems to die... To try, and fail, and try again... To fail again, and still to try... To know, in all the wearying strife... The highest things that we intend... We shall not know. So this is life! To fight, and fall without an end!

Milk Market Improved

Market milk has been greatly improved in quality recently. Health departments in many cities have been applying scientific tests in order to prevent the masses up seven pounds of milk produced, there is contained, on an average, 87 pounds of water. The cow requires 500 pounds of water including that in the feed, for every 100 pounds of milk produced. Good cows should be supplied 12 gallons or more of water per day, and should have access to it at least twice a day. This supply need not be warmer than 45 degrees if available at all times, but if only supplied twice a day it should be warmed to 65 degrees above. An abundant supply of water will prevent digestive troubles and assist in the production of the maximum quantity of milk.

APPENDICITIS IN CHILDREN

It is generally known that appendicitis is a comparatively common disease. It is not so generally known, however, that appendicitis is responsible for between 1,200 and 1,400 deaths each year in Canada. Particularly it is not known that it is a condition occurring among children. During one year, of the 1,231 deaths due to this disease, 470 were those of children under fifteen years of age.

We have seen recently from the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, some information regarding appendicitis, containing statements of great public importance. The experience of this institution shows that appendicitis is a common ailment of children at all ages. When the condition is recognized early and is properly treated, the results are satisfactory. If, however, there is delay in securing proper treatment, and the condition is allowed to progress until the appendix ruptures, the result is the death of the child despite all efforts to save him.

When appendicitis occurs there is pain. Children say it is cramp-like and usually point it out as being in the region of the umbilicus. Younger children just point to the abdomen when asked where the pain is, and cry as if in pain. Usually there is nausea and vomiting. There is only one remedy which should be given, and that is to call the doctor and refrain from giving any household remedies. This may seem a needless amount of fuss and bother, and we are not suggesting that every stomach ache is appendicitis, but we do say that stomach pain is always regarded seriously, cause of appendicitis will be neglected and children will continue to be sacrificed to procrastination.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

EXTRACTS FROM DIRECTORS' REPORT

New policies paid for numbered 161,391 for a net amount of $654,451,143.27, an advance of $213,207,000, or 75.23%, or more than forty-eight per cent., over the previous year. This marked increase and the fact that the average policy, for the first time, exceeded $1,000, afford impressive evidence of the ever-increasing popularity of the Company.

The special amount entered as a liability to provide for unearned contingencies has been maintained at $12,500,000.00. After making all these deductions and allocations, $5,869,000.96 has been added to the undivided surplus, bringing the total over liabilities, contingencies and capital assets to $603,307,762.44.

In accordance with our usual conservative practice the securities owned by the Company have again been valued at figures much below the market quotations current at the close of the year. This undervaluation represents an important element of strength to the Company additional to the specific provisions in the statements. Your Directors are pleased to announce that the high scale of profits at present allotted to participating policyholders will be continued during the ensuing year, while the Special Dividend on maturing policies, introduced last year, has been extended to include policies maturing after having been in force five years or longer and the scale of benefit has been increased.
