Of Course... you can serve it hot

Most people want a hot breakfast dish for a cold day. Shredded Wheat is deliciously warming when eaten with hot milk. Crisp the biscuits in the oven and pour hot milk over them. The savory shreds retain enough crispness to encourage thorough chewing—that's one reason it's so good for children. Delicious for any meal with fresh or stewed fruits.

MOODS
Comes a time, now and then, When I like my fellow-men, Good and bad and all together, Rich and poor and high and low; When it seems as if they had Nothing in them very bad, But were like a field of daisies, Good to see and good to know.

And on happy days like that I can stop awhile and chat With the tramp upon the highway Or the boy upon the street. Then it somehow seems to me Good all that I can see, And there's nothing much the matter With the people that I meet.

But come other-mornings, when I am sick and tired of men, There are some that irritate me; For there are some I can't abide, For their faults are all so plain; Some so greedy are for gain That they'll do anything to get me all wrought up inside!

Now I think I've worked it out, People everywhere about: Seem to show upon their features Just the things that are about them. When I have a cheerful mind Good is all that I can find; When I'm bitter and complaining, Just the things that are about them. Perhaps the fault is all in me. Edgar A. Guest

HALTON RIFLES
By Col. Jas. Ballantyne, D.S.O., V.D.
THE NATIONAL CAMP AT VAL-CARTIER
Odds and Ends: What's in a Name?

"They gathered in their thousands, with a will and a shout, From the shoreland of Cape Breton, From the highways and the byways, From the busy mart and lonely moor, Came the band of brave crusaders, Came the men of yesterday."

They awoke this sleepy hollow, where the searching feet of change Had been in the valley, as they gathered to the range They sang of Tipperary, and with shape and surplus metal and brass, They yearned for coming battles, did the men of yesterday.

They disturbed the solemn mountains with the thunder of their marching; We heard the tramp of marching feet on the hillsides of the range. Along this beautiful valley, by the river winding clear They laughed and sang and laboured, did the men of yesterday."

—Published anonymously in the Quebec Chronicle in June 1915.

There were many camps in Canada during the war, Niagara, Borden, Barryfield, Peterborough, and the Prairie, and a host of other Divisional and Provincial Camps; but there was one National Camp, and that was Valcartier, which lay about fifteen miles to the West of North of old Quebec in the Province of Ontario. It was not far from the escarpment of the Laurentide Hills. Here it was that the twelve Tribes assembled with Joshua at their head; and here it was that these tribes, from every nook and corner of the Dominion, from the Yukon to Cape Breton, were hammered and tempered into the fine sword that was to be the pride of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. It was here that the Divisional Staff in England for the Jacques Cartier was the envy on the part of the British Expeditionary Force, and the Divisional Staff in England for the Jacques Cartier was the envy on the part of the British Expeditionary Force.

The Burlington Company of the Halton Rifles; but at the outbreak of the war on the reserve of officers, and living at Rigger Saskatchewan. The call was too strong for him, to resist and he came East and secured a position in the 88th Battalion, and filling this position, he gave his life, as so many of his brother officers and comrades have done.

In connection with that sojourn in Georgetown, I recall two fellows who turned up to enlist, Scotty Andrews and Martin; and I remember an Armourer along with Alfred Cummings, and the latter a signaller, for which he was admirably trained; and seven years service in the British Army. These fellows were overjoyed when we signed them up, and as I remember they solemnized the event in due and ancient form.

Andrews was a machinist, but not a soldier, but he had a remarkable vocabulary of words and phrases that were more interesting than those in the Regulations. He was very much of a democrat, and strongly disapproved of saluting as a symbol of the hierarchy that had no place in his world of dreams. He called saluting giving the "High Sign" and when he gave it was the outward and visible sign of an inward and visible reluctance to all such undemocratic trappings. He made one great contribution to the amusement of the command when he called one of the officers, a very tall one, by the name of "Splice". He developed into a good soldier, and finished with a fine record.

NOTES AND COMMENTS
AIMING to improve the appearance of rural schools in the province, the Department of Forests is distributing a booklet giving information on tree planting to all rural school boards in Ontario. "Every teacher and parent should have noticed the fact that very little attempt is made to beautify the rural schools," declared Hon. William Flinn, Minister of Forests and Game. "Generally there is a fairly substantial schoolhouse set in an acre or two of barren land, and no attempt is made to plant trees or make the property attractive. The purpose of the present booklet is to improve the appearance of rural schools by planting trees in the form of wind-breakers, hedges, ornamental trees, and the general use of trees in improving the property."

QUANTINE AND WHY?
If they are to do us any harm, the germs of disease must first be introduced into our bodies. In tropical and sub-tropical countries, the diseases spread by the bites of insects are the great problem. In our country, the insect-borne diseases are not a serious consideration. Those which come in large numbers and ravage are the communicable diseases which are spread by the transfer of nose, mouth and throat secretions. Approximately ninety per cent of all the cases of communicable diseases in this country are due to the germs which are usually spread from the sick to the well by the transference of the secretions of the nose, mouth and throat.

SCOTCH BLOCK
Pine weather and good roads lent their aid in making the house-party luncheon at "Crofton" a most successful one. The two large front rooms of the farm house were crowded with dancers all evening long. A bountiful supper was served at mid-night, and the collection was taken, and after the committee announced that there was a surplus of ten dollars, and that this sum would be forwarded to the Poppy Fund. Mr. and Mrs. Nicol of Limehouse furnished the music, assisted by Mr. T. Mackenzie, who played some selections with banjo accompaniment. Thanks are due to Mr. W. Brennan for the success of the party.

MILTON
Miss Alice Kenton, who was seriously ill in Georgetown recently, is now convalescing at her home here. Miss Mae Lindsay of Aledo, visited at the home of Mrs. G. E. Brantford, over the week end.

Miss M. Field and her Sunday school class of St. Paul's United Church gave a miscellaneous show at her home on Saturday afternoon in honor of Miss Muriel Cartwright, a popular member of the class and a bride to be of this week, who received many beautiful and useful gifts. Daily refreshments were served by the hostess.

The funeral of the late John E. Robson, who died on Wednesday of last week, after an illness of only a few days, took place from his late residence, 471 Dovercourt Rd., Toronto, on Friday afternoon to Park Lawn Cemetery, Toronto.
