 Business Over Half a Century Old Closes Down
 The old established knitting machine factory of R. I. Creelman, Ltd., closed its doors last week-end after being in operation fifty-nine years. Throwing a number of hands out of employment, Mr. Creelman began the manufacture of knitting machines in a small room in the factory building in 1871. His business having been steadily built the factory on Main St., which has been successfully carried on ever since. His machines have been shown at the C.N.E. for many years, and were at one time in use in many foreign countries. The factory was bought out by the Canadian Needle Works which he operated in conjunction with the knitting machine factory. "The shutdown is the result of Mr. Creelman's advanced age and his inability to cope with the present business situation." Mr. Creelman has been a resident of Toronto for many years and has a splendid industrial asset to our town for many years and all deeply regret the discontinuation of his factory. His discontinuous operations, but join in wishing this veteran manufacturer continued and happiness in his declining years.

POULTRY MEETING

An excellent lecture was given in Georgetown, Town Hall, Tuesday, after- noon, this week by Mr. James Francis, Poultry Department, O.A.C. A good attendance was recorded in spite of the bad weather.

The Halton County Representative, Mr. A. P. MacVannell, opened the meeting and dealt with the important points of the poultry industry. He stated there are over 2000 blood tested hens in Halton County and that the following information regarding eggs for hatching from those flocks, is available on application to Mr. MacVannell, whose office is at Milton:

Mr. Francis gave the results of many years' investigation work in poultry. The larger birds in the flock are usually the best layers and lay the largest eggs. When cod liver oil is added to the ration the hatchability of the eggs is increased 10 to 20%. About half of grain fed should be ground. Various rations are given for good results for laying hens costing about $3.25 per 100 lbs. it is as follows: 50 lbs shorts, 30 lbs ground corn, 5 lbs oil cake meal, 15 lbs alfalfa meal, 10 lbs buttermilk powder, 5 lbs fish meal, 5 lbs, best quality, 4 lbs bone meal, 1 1/2 lbs iodine salt, 3 lbs cod liver meal, 1 pint cod liver oil.

A good chick mash recommended as follows: 65% ground wheat, 2% cod liver meal, 3% cracked corn, 3% yellow corn, 10% buttermilk powder, 5% alfalfa meal (omit if used as litter).

Mr. Francis stressed the importance of rapid feathering in growing chicks. The slow feathering pullets are poor winter layers. He advised attention to proper sanitation and control of intestinal worms and diseases causing diarrhoea in chicks.
