HALTON RIFLES

Beyond the last horizon's rim,
Beyond adventure's farthest quest,
Somewhere they rise serene and dim,
The happy, happy hills of rest.

Above their sunlit slopes, uplift,
The castles we have built in Spain
While far amidst the summer's drift,
Our faded gardens flower again.

Sweet hours we did not live go by,
To soothing notes on scented wind,
In golden lettered volumes lie,
The songs we tried in vain to sing.

They all are there, these days of dream,
That built the inner lives of men,
The silent sacred hours we deem,
The nights we and the night have been.

Some evening when the sky is gold,
I'll follow day into the west,
Nor pause, nor heed time's heed,
The happy, happy hills of rest.

—James C. Pagan.

THE WAY TO HEALTH

"Give me health and a day, and I will make the pomp of emperors ridiculous," wrote Emerson. There is no greater blessing of greater importance in our lives than health, because health is necessary for success in practically everything which we undertake.
Health is not merely a matter of evading disease. We do, of course, seek to evade disease, but in order to enjoy health we must give attention to our manner of living. A condition of health is a normal condition which is acquired by the full development of the needs of the body, abuse or neglect of the body, sooner or later result in a loss of health, if not in actual disease.
The benefits of good health are so obvious that it is not necessary to present arguments in their favour and take time to discuss what everyone is willing to acknowledge. The question of health is in fact, all mankind desires to enjoy the benefits which good health has to offer.
The way is not difficult. It requires that a simple, sensible regime be the regular habit of life. "The habits which lead to health are neither numerous nor difficult to understand, and they can readily be made the habits of our own individual lives."
We come into this world with a body which has been given to us. It may have certain imperfections, but what we are interested in are its potentialities. Physically and mentally we have possibilities, and whether or not these are developed, the full determines what measure of our attainable physical and mental health we enjoy.
Some have a more difficult task than others, but practically all can arrive at a condition which makes life a pleasure, providing the effort is made. Like everything worth while, health represents an effort, but also like things worth while, it is worth striving for.
The beginning of the road to health is marked by a sign-post pointing out the need for an understanding of your own body. The road you will follow depends somewhat upon your condition as you start out. You would have an appraisal made of your body to know if there are imperfections that require attention, you can certainly be known so that you may reach your goal to it.
Start out with a Periodic Health Examination so that you may know yourself and your needs. From that on to a full measure of health by living according to the simple rules of health.
Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

ASHGROVE

A very enjoyable afternoon was spent when the meeting of the Women's Institute met at Mrs. Earl Wilson's home on Tuesday, April 15th. With the president in the chair the meeting opened in the usual way. Each member answered to the roll call with their grandmother's maiden name.
A pleasing feature of the meeting was the visiting friends from Mount Union. Miss Wise was present and spoke on her work of coaching the junior members of the W. I. on the following subjects: School lunches, house furnishings, and good dressing.
Mrs. Cartwright spoke of Institute work at the beginning, thirty three years ago, and of its work at the present time. We were pleased to have her with us at this meeting.
Two of the Grandmothers assisted with the program. Mrs. Clifton sang very sweetly. "The end of a perfect day," and Mrs. S. E. Kuddell gave a talk on the "Entertainment of the young people of fifty years ago."
Miss Lulu Graham favored with a piano solo entitled "Romance," by Schubert.
The meeting was closed by singing the National Anthem, after which a look part in a song contest. A very good lunch was served by the hostesses.
Bound Over for a Year
Miss: "The main thing here is honesty. The last maid stole the all-year spoons."
New maid: "You needn't fear anything from me, ma'am. I'm bound over for a year."
