The Buying Power of a Dollar To-day

The amount purchasable for a dollar has varied greatly in the past 16 years: In 1914 a dollar was a fair proportion of the cost of a pair of shoes; or a bag of sugar; would buy meat for a few days and was about 75 per cent. of the average man's daily wage. And dollars were scarce in 1914 at that.

During the war-boom years a dollar held the equivalent relative value of a five cent piece in 1914 in the minds of many, although its actual buying power had only decreased about 75 per cent. as wages increased.

With a few fluctuations the dollar has remained fairly stable since 1921. But some class or profession always finds that "their" dollar is not buying as much as other people's dollars do—

There has always been, however, one commodity in the purchase of which your dollar bought just as much—Your local newspaper.

With a subscription price designed to meet ordinary requirements, it did not soar when everything else hit unprecedented price heights—even the paper, ink and workmanship which entered into it—but brought all the extra service and news faithfully. And the price is still the same—$1.50 in advance; $2.00 when not so paid.

Keep your subscription paid in advance by watching the label, which bears the date on which your subscription expires, carefully, every week. By the way, it may be due now. Be sure—

FOR THE DAY

Why spoil the day with hate or greed Or any little selfish deed? Why mar the morning with a sneer. Or add one mile to what is here. Of bitterness and wrong and sin Sage petty little gain to win?

Why through the brilliant noontide go As one who lives in gloom and woe. And coming to the afternoon Thank God that night must follow soon.

To end the dreary cares of day And put the toils of life away? Rather I choose to this day's end To play the comrade and the friend; To see in spite of pain and care The joy of living everywhere.

And so to live that none shall say That 'Tis a privilege to live. Lord, through this day let me contrive To prove my right to stay alive.

Let me in some way justify My place beneath this bright blue sky And happy recognition give That 'Tis a privilege to live.—Edgar A. Guest.

ACTON

Mrs. R. Bennett and Miss M. Z. Bennett and Mr. and Mrs. Bertland Conroy and Mrs. Conroy spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Elmer F. B. Terry, Brantford.

A meeting of the Directors of Acton Fall Fair was held last evening in the town hall. Prize money was authorized to be paid and although definite returns are not available, the committee had a most successful year.

The congregation of the United Church of Acton celebrated the return of Miss Ruth Gibson to her place in the choir on Sunday. Miss Gibson has been absent from the choir for several months and has been much missed in the musical services of the church.

Mr. James Conroy has been in St. Joseph's Hospital for the past few weeks, suffering from an accident at the plant of the United Paper Mills Limited, when he was jammed between two trucks. His friends here wish him a speedy recovery and hope that he will soon be able to return home.—Free Press.

ERIN

A citizen of Erin Township for over forty years and a son of the late Richard and Annie Austin, pioneers of Erin Township, has peacefully away at the family residence—Lot 16, Con. 10, on Saturday, October 18th, at the residence of Mrs. Austin, in his 67th year, following an illness of but a few days.

Mr. W. H. Hull quietly celebrated his 82nd birthday at his home, here, on Monday. Although somewhat affected with rheumatic troubles, he has for two years ago he is hale and hearty and enjoying life's sunset. We join with his many friends in wishing him many happy returns of the day.

Friends and neighbors assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon N. Cunningham, on Friday evening, to spend a social evening and present the newly-weds with a miscellaneous in the person of Henry B. Austin, in the person of Henry B. Austin, in the person of Henry B. Austin.

News and Information

For the Busy Farmer
Attendance at the Ontario Veterinary College this year was higher than usual, with a total of 95 students on the roll. Of these, 36 are in the freshman year. The students are from every part of Canada and the United States.

The latest combine harvester-threshers, it is claimed, can harvest an acre in the time of 45 minutes. This is a reduction of over 95 per cent. from the time required in harvesting and threshing an acre by hand. The combine harvester has facilitated work on the farm.

Royal Winter Fair
The next big event from an agricultural standpoint in Ontario is the Royal Winter Fair, which takes place in Toronto from November 19th to 27th. The Ontario Agricultural College is the visit of 230 Ontario girls at the expense of the Provincial Government.

They, with the 500 boys who annually through the Coliseum and take part in the different Junior Farmer contests, should live up to their motto, "Honesty, industry, and perseverance."

Ontario Apiarists' Week
First and second prizes for honey, silver and bronze medals, were won in a competition practically worldwide in the Ontario Apiarists' Week, held in England, by exhibitors from Ontario. The winner of the first prize and silver medal is T. J. Francis, Cannington, a member of the Ontario Honey Producers, and the winner of the second prize and bronze medal is J. McArthur, Park Drive, Toronto, a member of the Ontario Beekeeper's Association. This is the eighth consecutive time that the first prize and silver medal for honey has been won by a member of the Ontario Honey Producers' organization.

Injurious to Wire Fence
Many times the advice is given in the fall of the year to turn out the fence rows to get rid of harmful weeds and insects. This, no doubt, is a good policy from those standpoints, but it should be kept in mind that it is distinctly harmful to any type of wire fence. Zinc melts at a comparatively low temperature and the heat from burning grass or weeds is often sufficient to scorch the protective coating and will probably shorten by several seasons the useful life of the fence.

Superintendent at Hearst
L. A. Hanlan of Kapuskasing, has been appointed superintendent of the demonstration farm at Hearst, according to an announcement of Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Minister of Agriculture.

Mr. Hanlan graduated from the Ontario Agricultural College in 1922, later taking post-graduate work at McGill University where he secured the degree of M.S.A. in agronomy in 1924. He was superintendent of the Kapuskasing experimental station, Hearst, and has had very valuable experience and is particularly well-qualified for the work at Hearst.

Weekly Crop Report
Generally speaking the weekly crop report of the agricultural representatives would indicate that cattle are not in as good condition as they were a month ago, due to pastures drying up. The milk supply is also falling off, many cheese factories only receiving milk every other day. In the western portion of the province fall crops have suffered due to lack of rain and considerable acreage will go into winter with a light top. Heavy snows recently in the County have melted and softened the ground to such an extent that plowing is now facilitated. Not in years has the wheat been so good for the harvest in Kings as this season, and a good revenue is expected from this crop. About ten per cent. of the outside estimate of the plowing done in Kings, the cause being attributed to the drought. Potato digging is being rushed in Kings, and the yield is generally disappointing. Four carloads of western cattle have arrived in Perth and herds in that district will be increased.

Investigate for Membership
A League for the Protection of Henpecked Husbands was once formed in a small Kappas town, and at the first meeting a chap named George was elected president. George had just taken the chair and whacked the table for order with his gavel. When a tall, gaunt, rawboned woman burst into the hall, rushed at George, and seized him by the collar. "You come home!" she shouted, "shaking him." "What business have you got in a league of this kind? You ain't henpecked!"

Welcoming the New Son-in-Law
"Pardon me, professor, but last night your daughter accepted my proposal of marriage. I have called this morning to ask if there is any inauspicious omen."

Gains Seventeen Pounds
Anyone seeing Mary would find it hard to believe that the beautiful young woman was a consumptive. She had the appearance of the best part of the whole story, for she was about twenty years old, had about "curves" and ready to go back to work. She had just gained seventeen pounds in weight, and she had a hint of Irish brogue, and she had a head when it came to that I had to be carried out."

"I DIDN'T THINK"

If all the troubles in the world Were traced back to their start, We'd find out one in ten began With a sneeze of willing heart. But there's a sly woe-working elf Who lurks about youth's brink And sure dizziness he brings away—The elf "I didn't think."

He seems so sorry when he's caught, His wiles are all contrite, He so regrets the woe he's wrought, And wants to make things right. But wishes do not heal a wound, Or weld a broken link. The heart aches on the link is gone—All through "I didn't think."

When brain is omeared to the heart And heart from soul draws grace, "I didn't think" will quick depart. For lack of resting-place, If from that great unfeeling stream, The Golden Rule we drink, We'll keep God's laws, and have no cause To say "I didn't think."
—Ella Wheeler Wilcox.

Canadian Medical Assoc. CLEAN HANDS

Our hands are in constant use and in the course of a few hours, they come into contact with a considerable number of articles. It is because our hands are so constantly used that they are consequently almost sure to be soiled, that, unless properly cared for, they may be our greatest enemies.

In previous articles we have stated that the germs of disease leave the body in its secretions. The secretions from the nose and mouth are those which most frequently carry disease. We should always deal with such secretions as if we were dealing with certain disease germs. The spread of disease depends upon whether the germ-laden secretion from one person gains entrance into the body of another person.

The spread of disease may be direct, as when the germs are transferred by the droplets which are thrown out into the air by uncovered coughs and sneezes. It may also be indirect, and it is in the indirect spread that the hands play an important part.

In considering the indirect spread, there are two important points to be kept in mind. Disease germs die comparatively quickly outside of the body. They require heat and moisture to preserve their lives; drying destroys them, and sunlight kills them. Therefore, we have to fear are the fresh, moist secretions. As our hands are warm and humid, germs can and do persist on them for some time.

In using the handkerchiefs in covering a cough with the hand, we are almost sure to soil our hands with the nose and mouth secretions. If we then shake hands with someone, we transfer some of our secretions to the hand of that person. If our hands are soiled, we soil objects which we touch, such as a door-knob; someone else may touch these objects after we do, and indirectly the germs from our nose and mouth secretions of one person are passed to the hands of another.

There is no reason, however, why this should alarm us. It has, nevertheless, a very practical lesson for us, and it is the purpose of this article to bring this lesson to the attention of our readers.

As long as disease germs remain on the hands, they cannot do us any harm. They must gain entrance into our bodies if they are to cause mischief. We can quite readily protect ourselves from the dangers with which our hands may threaten us.

First of all, we should keep our hands away from our faces, excepting when using a handkerchief, or when eating, or using a toothbrush. It is a dangerous habit, that of touching the face, and particularly the lips, with the hands.

Most important however is that the hands should be thoroughly washed before food is touched. Remember always to do this, and you will have put into practice a habit which will indirectly protect you from disease.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

"I sure thought of the old Sun Life when I was under there!"

A MAN, a mine foreman in Ohio, took out a policy for $2,500.00 on October 16th, 1926.

Four days afterwards, a section of the mine roof fell and twenty-five tons of slate pinned him down. In falling it fortunately formed an inverted "V," else he would have been crushed. Two hours and a half later a rescue party extricated him. As he was being carried to the surface, his first words were—

"I sure thought of the old Sun Life when I was under there."

The Sun Life of Canada will protect you too, at moderate cost.

Send me further particulars of the Low Cost Confederation Series Policies as issued by the Confederation Life Association.

This lady writes:

"Thank you for your wonderful kindness and fair play."

Over a year ago a certain young lady bought a Confederation Life Policy, with Total Disability and Double Indemnity Benefits. A few months later, she became seriously ill. She thought she could not obtain the Total Disability Benefit before the policy had been in force a year, but the Benefit went into effect the moment the policy was issued. Moreover, while receiving disability benefits, she did not have to pay any premiums and the insurance remained in full force.

Confederation Life Association.
Dear Sirs:
Your letter to hand yesterday and today. The cheque was safely enclosed. I have been going to write and thank you for your wonderful kindness and fair play. I only held my policy such a short time and I was under the impression that I would have to have it a year before I could draw benefits. The Confederation Life is certainly a very wonderful and square Company, and I shall always do all I can to further the Company's interests.

Hope that I shall soon be in full health and working, and again thanking you and wishing the Company every success.

Yours very truly,
