Writes Radio Plays

MERRILL DENISON the Canadian playwright, whose "Brothers in Arms" and other humorous pictures of life in "The Unheroic North" have made his name well-known abroad, has turned his band to the writing of radio plays: He is now busy completing a series of 25, which will be broadcast this season by the Canadian National Railways' trapscontinental chain of stations. Each play will deal with an aspect of Canadian history, and in his researches, the writer has found that Canadian history is almost flamboyant with romance. Although he was educated an architect—he studied at the University of -Toronto, the University of Pennsylvania and in Paris and began his theatrical work" as a designer, Denison soon discovered that writing plays was his forte and deserted architecture. He-has published four books, including \"Boobs in the Woods," a number of sketches of what he calls his "unhappy"
