LET'S BE CAREFUL

GEORGETOWN, like a great many other towns in the Province, has arrived at a period in its history when it is urgently necessary that our Town Council should use every means possible to curtail expenditure during the next year or two, in order that our tax rate may not become unbearable. Georgetown has pretty much everything a good, healthy, growing town needs at the present time, and while there are some streets yet we would like to see paved, we cannot afford these local improvements just at present, and they should not be undertaken this year, especially when a large overdraft had to be carried over from last year. We are not blaming the Councils of the past for the condition we find our town in at this time. The great responsibility rests with the ratepayers themselves They have been demanding the improvements and they have been getting them, and Georgetown is a better town for having the improvements; but we have been going a Currie, Harris, Buck.
