PRECIOUS METALS IN USE AS STANDARDS OF VALUE
The gold standard is the measure of value in a monetary system; in other words, if we wish to compare the values of certain articles, we say that one is worth so much gold, another is worth more gold, another less, etc. Before the invention of money, all exchange was by barter or trade. In the early history such objects as wampum, shells, salt, tobacco and beaver skins were used as tokens of value. In America, gold and silver were selected as the standards of value for several reasons; their value is large in proportion to weight, they are easily carried and non-perishable, and especially in the case of gold, their value change but little from year to year. The nations of the ancient world used both gold and silver as standards for their coins, then from the seventh to the thirteenth century the dollar standard was in general use. Then Great Britain and later the United States and other nations adopted the gold standard. In this country the gold standard implies no restriction on gold imports or exports, the redemption of currency in gold coin, and the coins of the country all of gold offered it. Britain abandoned the gold standard, this involving the abandonment of some of these.

Just the Thing
A minister delivered a sermon of only ten minutes duration. At the conclusion he explained: "I regret to inform you, brethren, that this morning my dog playfully ate the portion of my sermon that I have not delivered—Let us pray."

After the service a man who was a member of another church shook the preacher's hand and said: "I should like to know when that dog of yours was put to bed—It'd like one to give to our minister."

SWALLOWS HOLD SECRET OF THEIR WINTER HOME
Exactly where the swallow spends the winter is their own secret. Many students of birds (ornithologists) believe that they go to some island near South America. So far, however, no one has definitely located their winter home. They start going south in July, which is earlier than most birds.

It is evident that birds know when they are to go, and they also know where they are going; for certain birds will return season after season to the same place on the sands of a home, arriving on the same day of the month each year. This fact has been known since the days of Aristotle, on birds' legs before they migrate.

It is nothing less than marvellous that they are able to know where to travel, where to go, and how to get there and return. Gene Stratton Porter, a great nature student and writer, once said, "I am sure that the precise minute of their starting to come to us or to leave us, or how they followed their way, is determined high in air across seas and continents mostly under cover of darkness, we do not know."

One fact is obvious: that some force or influence takes possession of their actions at these times and that they are unable to walk with their legs in air across seas and continents mostly under cover of darkness, we do not know.

There can be no doubt that this man has finished walking with a stick, for it is now four years since he discarded it.

He writes: "For 18 months I suffered with chronic sciatica and rheumatism, and was unable to walk without the aid of a stick. But after taking Kruschen Salts for a short time, I was able to throw away the stick. It is now four years since this happened, and I have had no return of the complaint, and have not lost a day from work since then."

AND TAKE NOTICE that after the seventh day of January 1933, the Thomas Spavin Warrens will proceed to distribute the assets of the said deceased and the persons entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims which he shall then have had notice, and that the said Thomas Spavin Warrens will not be liable for the said assets of any part thereof to any person of whose claims he shall have had no notice.

CORRESPONDENCE

INFLATION OF CURRENCY

The following correspondence from Agnes MacNeill, P., was read with interest by our subscribers:

Dear Editor:—Inflation of currency is a much talked of subject these days; it has entered the realm of practical politics. Efforts are being made to frighten people by the use of the word "inflation" and there is confusion in people's minds in regard to it.

An expansion of national currency to correspond to an increase in national wealth ought not to be called inflation—indeed, unless such increase in currency is accompanied by inflation and falling prices result.

In a Land of Plenty, a land of abundant resources and abundant employment, factories being and an impoverished agriculture, the proposal of government of Canadian farmers dropped by at least one billion dollars in the last four years. Farmers' debts remained the same, but the value of their property has fallen by that amount.

The continuance of such conditions will drive the agricultural industry into bankruptcy and Canadians into yet unknown suffering. The direct cause of business stagnation, the rising tide of unemployment, and the huge loss of national wealth, which is resulting in general paralysis, is the Federal government's policy of increasing the price of exportable farm products.

Enable farmers to pay their debts with dollars nearer in purchasing power to those which they borrowed some years ago.

Enable farmers to buy goods on the market, such as fertilizer, and other necessities, at the same price as they were able to buy when the real revenue of government was increased.

Base the railway problem through an increasing volume of traffic. Stimulate exports and revitalize the West, with accruing benefits to Eastern Canada.

Place Canadian farmers more on a par with their competitors in Australia and South America.

Impair Canadian credit abroad, since Canada has been able to finance in London at 3 1/2% with her currency far below the pound sterling.

Prevent refunding debts in New York, which involves only a change in our American creditors.

Prevent meeting interest charges in New York, as these can be made in gold or goods.

Prevent the price of living to rise as quickly as the prices of basic commodities, and would give at the same time increased security of employment and increased personal revenues.

The economic strain has reached the breaking point. The Government can relieve the strain, will it do so?

Yours sincerely,
Agnes MacNeill
Toronto, December 12th, 1932.

ERIN

Surviving are her husband, two daughters, Mrs. Edward Overland, Erin, and Mrs. Alma Everdell, Hillaburg, and a son, Harold of Alton. Interment was made in Greenwood cemetery, Erin.
