$50,000 FIRE AT ORANGEVILLE
SEVEN RESCUED IN NIGHT CLOTHES - IS BELOW ZERO

An spectacular blaze that for several hours plagued the town of Orangeville, Ontario, Saturday morning, a large brick building owned by Roy D. Bryan, garage, hardware and two apartment houses, was burned to the ground. The Garage, situated on West Broadway, just across the street from the firehall, had 11 cars, eight trucks and a large quantity of goods inside. The building was packed to the brim and all went up in flames. In the two apartments above were Roy Bryan, his wife and two small children, a boy and a girl, and a dog. The dog was also rescued in their night attire by firemen who brought them down ladders from a balcony. In the front of the house there was a small child, a boy and a girl, and a dog. HOWARD MAY, proposed by G. H. Hunter and George Wood.

At the close of nominations Township Clerk L. M. Bennett was elected to the chair and called on those nominated to have their names checked.

George Currie said: "At the close of another year our thoughts turn to the future. We are here to help our men who will represent the destiny of the township in the year 1936. This is the ratepayers business and it is by your advice and suggestions that the council can be most effective. We have been your representatives at County Council during a time when it has been necessary to keep our taxes as low as possible, and the tax rates have done unusual work in reducing the obligations of the country."

But the theme began to develop in the early days. She also wrote another little story for the Sunday school magazine, and let me see the one quoted above and thought this would do as a peg for the requested story.

The result was her book "Anne of Green Gables," a novel which has sold over 10 million copies and sold numbers were all well received.

The author recently records that she received a request from the teacher of a Sunday school weekly for a seven-chapter serial. Looking through her notes of ideas, she came to the conclusion that she could do it and that would be a peg for the requested story.
