his derby to them. Only once, it is reported, did King George venture to walk out of the April, 1936;-Palace. About 100 yards up the Mall from the main vate, is the huge and beautiful marble memorial to Queen Victoria. The King had driven past it probably thousands of times, and he said one day he would like to have a closer look at it. So he walked out and looked. Queen Victoria once expressed a desire to ride in a street car. But of course, the never could.
