THE UNDYING BEAUTY

Give me the loveliness that is undying. The radiant look of welcome in the eyes. The echo in my spirit for the sighing of every broken heart beneath the sky. The healing in my voice for pain or sorrow. The beauty in my heart for grief or love. The open hand for all who come to me. The judgment that is tempered from above. Give me the deeper mind of undying standing. The fortitude that will not waver. The courage for the sceptre of commandment. The humble heart contented but not servile. Then come, old age, to crown my life's adventure; Come, wrinkles, I will wear them without tears; My blood I'll pour with joy to take the quencher. My flesh I'll give to feed the hungry years; And when my walls are high in heaven's trying, And all my guilts hours are white with snow, Give me the joyfulness that is undying. And I will let all other beauty go.—William MacDonnell.

SHOULD GIVE INFORMATION

Unless merchants are willing to make it a practice to give some information by advertising about the goods which they are selling they cannot reasonably expect the public to take them seriously. The small order houses do this in a most effective manner. They realize the value of the investment and are not slow to spend their money generously for such a purpose. If people care to handle the money intelligently they must know something about the things they are buying in towns where the stores have formed the advertising habit people look through their announcements to obtain an idea as to the prices of goods, and which give the greatest satisfaction. Money will go further in such a community. The thinking public realizes this, and feel that they can buy most intelligently when they go to places that have described their goods in advance through the home paper.—Observer in Brampton Conserver.

A Pioneer of Halton County Called by Death

On Monday, April 6th, Mrs. Alexander Warren, 82, passed away at the home of her son, Alexander Warren, Jr., at Glen Williams, Dorset, Ontario. She was born in Scotland, and came to Canada in 1847. She was married to Mr. Alexander Warren, and in 1876 moved to Ashgrove, where she died leaving a wife and eight children. She moved with her family to Glen Williams where she has since resided. She was a member of the Methodist Church at Ashgrove and later at Glen Williams, and has been a member of the United Church since 1907. She was industrious, sociable and loyal to her family and friends. She has been a patient sufferer for many years and especially since her fall six weeks ago, since when she has been confined to bed and under constant care. The following are the members of her family: Helen (Mrs. J. Hink), Mrs. M. M. Cullough, Mrs. Walter E. Edgar, Nebraska; Agnes (Mrs. Neil Wehrman) Angus, Nebraska; Erin; Will of Toronto; Samuel, who died April 25, 1925, Toronto; and three children of her son, Glen Williams. There are eleven grandchildren, and thirteen great-grandchildren. Flowers were sent by Alexander Warren, the United Church and Hinkson's employees. A short funeral service was conducted at the home of Mr. Alexander Warren on Wednesday, April 8th, at 3:30 p.m. at the United Church at 3 p.m. Rev. G. I. Stephenson, assisted by Rev. W. G. O. Thompson, conducted the service. The body was laid to rest in Glen Williams Cemetery. The pallbearers were: sons, Alexander, William, and John; grandsons, Frank McCullough, grandson, Clifford McCullough, and Bert Hill. Those present in addition to the family were: Mrs. E. M. Davis, Toronto; Mrs. J. Hink, Toronto; Mrs. M. Cullough, Erin; Mrs. B. K. Riddell and Mr. Fred Wigglesworth, Ashgrove; Mr. William Wilson, Mrs. Vint and Mrs. J. Arnold, Georgetown.

Canadian Social Hygiene Council

The Canadian Social Hygiene Council will bring "Damaged Lives" to Georgetown, at the Library Hall, Friday, April 17th, at 7:30 p.m. With the picture there will be added a lecture dealing with the anatomy and physiology of the sex organs, and giving detailed information as to the technical aspects of Venereal Disease.

The Canadian Social Hygiene Council is a national association carrying on health education work in all provinces of health throughout the whole of Canada. The Council has as its aim the supplying of the need for prevention in order that the extraordinary high costs of unnecessary illness throughout the Dominion may be avoided. While the cost of the Great War was approximately 600 million dollars a year for four years, the cost of illness in Canada, including the cost of post-payable death, is estimated to reach more than three times this amount every year, namely $1,311,000,000. The C. S. H. C. publications state that 180,000 people (2% of the entire population) are constantly ill and unable to work.

The Council has taken an interest in such matters as purification of milk, prevention of diphtheria, periodic health examination and the establishment of County Health Units.

The Council was established ten years ago for the establishment of the first grants for health purposes to be made to the provinces, namely the Venereal Disease grants amounting to as much as $200,000 a year. These grants have been given continuously until last year when the grant of $100,000 for the support of Venereal Disease clinics was withdrawn from the Dominion estimate, in addition to the grant for the Council's own work.

The film "Damaged Lives" with its supplementary lecture, constitutes a remarkable example of the extent to which the education of the people is possible.

The educational program for the eradication of Venereal Disease carried on by the Canadian Social Hygiene Council throughout Canada.

PROFESSIONS ARE OVERCROWDED

There are 2300 students at the University of Alberta. A survey of the city of Washington discloses that there are 500 graduates in medicine driving a cab. At Toronto University there are 5000 students. There are more doctors, dentists, engineers and lawyers today than there is work for, says a social report.

Of course, in the general unemployment situation professional men could not escape the effects of the depression. But the idea is spreading that there is too great importance attached to turning many university graduates.

The idea of making every man a university graduate is being put forward by the professional men and the alleged shortage of good plumbers, blacksmiths, and what not. The feeling in educational circles seems to be that technical training in the trades has been neglected and that there has to be a big shift from secondary schools to trade schools. Most people will agree that with the Department of Education's new plan of intermediate schools, streamlining vocational training, it may take time to bring them in because of the cost, but they are coming.
