

PRINTING - that sells!

Summer months are slack months for most Printers. Have your supply of Business Stationery filled now during our quiet months.

Down Through the years We have tried Most consistently To steadily improve Our Printing Service With the adoption of New Machinery Quality Materials Modern Styles and Type Designs And a sincere ambition To turn out proudly Printing that bears Our imprint.

City Styles and Designs at Country Shop Prices.

Remember Your Local Printers

The Georgetown Herald

Your Eyes

Headache, tired, drowsy feeling are symptoms of Eye Strain. We specialize in a thorough Eye Examination - 15 years experience. Our 1936 low price eye first quality glasses is just as reasonable as any of the large city houses. Contact O. T. WALKER, R.O. OPTOMETRIST, EYE-SIGHT SPECIALIST, Brampton who is at ROM'S DRUG STORE, Georgetown, the second Wednesday of every month. Or you may consult O. T. Walker at his office in Brampton.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

Surrealism Goes Photographic

TWO WEEKS WITH PAY

This table-top photograph was taken with the aid of two photographic floodlight bulbs, "spotlight" on the subject at different angles; exposure 30 seconds at f.22. The candles were then lighted, main lights turned off and the lighted candles exposed for 2 seconds. The following text will (it is hoped) explain the title.

"SURREALISM. A French movement in literature and art influenced by Freudianism, purporting to express the subconscious activities of the mind by presenting images without order or sequence, as in a dream."

So says the dictionary, but we leave to amend by inserting the words, "and which has invaded the field of photography." If you don't believe it, cast a psychoanalytical eye on the above photograph and consider whether it does not truly fit the amended definition.

"Images without order or sequence as in a dream." Who will contend that the images in the above picture do not fit that part of the definition? "Purporting to express the subconscious activities of the mind." Who dares to say that these images do not express subconscious activities quite as intelligently as any of the pictures entitled "Two Weeks With Pay," meaning a vacation, and here, believe it or not, are the subconscious activities purported to be expressed.

"The washboard is the psychic symbol of labor left behind. The open handsets express release from said labor. The liverwort ring represents thoughts of summer hotel."

John van Gilder.

PRE-COOL AND HANDLE POULTRY QUICKLY

The pre-cooling and proper handling of poultry killed on the farm or at a packing plant is particularly important because the bloom will be quickly lost if the birds are not pre-cooled without delay and also handled properly.

O. T. WALKER, R.O. OPTOMETRIST, EYE-SIGHT SPECIALIST, Brampton who is at ROM'S DRUG STORE, Georgetown, the second Wednesday of every month. Or you may consult O. T. Walker at his office in Brampton.

Use for Divining Rod

New hope for the rescue of avian victims and for the early recovery of bodies of birds killed which are not yet rid of his polluted feathers—those considered to have been in the conspiracy against Caesar. They were a flock of about 200, which were seen in the vicinity of a small stream in the mountains of Austria, deeply involved in the snow, and which were being carried by every object, such as a watch, a coin, a ring, and a button, were buried very deep in the snow, and a "diviner" set out on the dividing rod to search for them. In each case the rod revealed the location of the metallic objects. It is believed that the new discovery will save scores of lives in the Austrian Alps every year.

Thoughts of Druids

When you are in Carriacou, France, and you go out to see the mysterious Druid mounds, which are among the most impressive in the world, you will, of course, be told, as you were at Stonehenge, in England, that they mark warrior graves and are stones connected with sun-worshippers and so on. It is well to recall that we know very little of the religion of the Druids, in fact, one of their laws was, "No religious religion among ourselves." Other laws were, "Woman may become a judge." "No child shall be reared in a city but only in a village." and Caesar has left the testimony that "It is a law of the Druids that no man shall be richer than his neighbor."

Not the College Motto

The guard escorting a number of Temple students on a tour of the Eastern "Pen" along the coast of the archipelago leading to the cell blocks.

The guard was followed by one of the "boys," he said, and after a pause, "the only thing wrong with that is those three words—Virtue, Liberty and Independence—was a little out of place."—Philadelphia Record.

I NEED NOT FEEL

I need not fret about the rest of life. I can take off the anxious look of little My little forehead wore. The trivial caller, and the hindrance all. Need never fret my weary me at all. And nothing ever will be waste of time. Not any more. The lonesome cases—those weary hills to climb! Scratched paint, blown floor, I told you, I tell what God will make He may say wings where I see—just a crutch!

I need not fret about the dim to be. Not any more. His golden words hang, the key. Of every fast-looked door. I need not dread the future, nor the past. He'll say my trial—surely, still be my goal! —Ps. Incognito.

Always a Bright Spot in the Dearest Gloom

There is no situation in life so dark, so despondent, so utterly hopeless that it does not have a single gleam of light somewhere, and it is this bright spot that should be the starting point for thought and the basis of goals that surrounds it. While there are who do not say he has not experienced quite a lot of sympathy and friendship in his life. Somebody has shaken him by the hand, and he has said a kind word to him, more than one pair of "shining hands" have touched him in illness. It is that all worth nothing are, for they are every day for people in this world who are really alone. There are a good many who are lonely, but that is not quite the same thing as being utterly alone. The four often lies with themselves, and friendship, comradeship, help, and sympathy have to be earned, like everything else in life that is worth having, and they have to be earned by a willingness to give what we expect to receive.

But, in any case, what's the use of worrying? There is always another day with all its possibilities and its chances. There is always tomorrow. "Let us make haste to live," said a wise old Roman, "since every day to a wise man is a new day." —London Tit-Bits.

Prussian King's Really Good Joke on Voltaire

There was one of the great of Frederick the Great of Prussia an Englishman with an amazing memory. The day Voltaire was due to read to Frederick a new poem in his honor, Frederick arranged that the Englishman should be able to overhear it from the next room.

Voltaire arrived and read out his masterpiece—an ode of great length. "Very nice," said Frederick, "but of course I have heard it before."

At this point the Englishman withdrew in a hasty way, for he had never heard a poem beginning so-and-so.

To Voltaire's horror, the Englishman walked up the next street on the next day and read the ode to the king. "Anguished, Voltaire tore his manuscript to pieces. Then, the joke being explained, the Englishman had to dictate the poem again to Voltaire."—Golden Book Magazine.

Visit to Vik in Norway

In the ancient Haranger village of Vik in Norway, the tourist will find the most interesting of attractions in this region. It is one of the oldest and most picturesque. Here will still be found some of the old turf-roof cottages. The turf is laid on several layers of birch bark and is absolutely watertight. Spinning wheels and looms will also be found in some of the houses. The church is a typical specimen of a church of the twelfth century and one of the first of its kind. It has an ancient fresco and carved furniture, all the work of local hands. An ancient leather collection has been preserved in a long attack, has a small bell attached, to wake the sleeping worshippers.

Novae Scotia Primarily Scotch

Because of Longfellow's "Evangeline" Nova Scotia is popularly supposed to be mainly French and English. But it is primarily Scotch. The opening of its parliament is accompanied by the stirl of bagpipes, and several newspapers there are printed partly in Gaelic. In the Nova Scotia county of Inverness, 72 per cent of the inhabitants speak Gaelic, while less than half of the people in the similar, but smaller county in Scotland can talk that tongue.

Legend of the Stork

The legend of the stork is supposed to have originated in Germany where the stork is regarded with reverence. (In many houses in that country wheels are placed at the nesting places for those birds. In all probability the legend of the stork's connection with babies grew out of the sheer helplessness of the parents to explain satisfactorily to their children where the natural came from and it seemed quite natural to tell them that the tall white bird brought them.)

Man Shoots 6,000 Rats

Relics of South Africa, has the worst plague of rats in its history. Farmers and town-dwellers are united in battling the rodents which are doing heavy damage and are destroying grain stored in metal tanks. Baiting parties are set at a premium and rat traps and poisons are being used. One farmer has been credited with an all-time record of 6,000 rats with an all-guns in the last six months.

Balloon Most Dangerous

Among all the sports, the balloon is the most dangerous. In Africa they are known by the nickname of "lion tamer," for any one of them can whip the biggest lion in the jungle. Lions are deadly afraid of them and a lion will beat himself against a cage wall trying to get away if a balloon is brought into view within sniffling distance.

That wanted to borrow some money

from Michael, who happened to have a small boy with him at the moment. "That's a fine boy you have there with you, Mike. A magnificent specimen of his features. Could you loan me ten?"

"Mike" I could not. "To me wife's child by her first husband."

Some People in France

According to a number of reports in France there are 175 medieval towers scattered in French Flanders, writes a Little United Press correspondent.

The towers have an average height of 22 feet and range in age from one to five centuries. They are the world's biggest toys and the French people are famous for their love of building themselves with their own hands. The towers are scattered all over the country. The towers are built of stone and brick and are used for a variety of purposes. Some are used as watchtowers, some as fortifications, and some as places of refuge. The towers are a unique feature of the French landscape and are a testament to the ingenuity and skill of the French people.

War Call Up to Congress

If President So Urges

The President of the United States cannot formally declare war, but when he finds an actual state of war in existence, he may take the necessary military steps in the absence of congressional action. This is the sole judicial authority a condition exists.

Under the Constitution of the United States the President has the power to veto an act declaring war, and congress has the power to pass it over his veto. A bill or joint resolution that declares war does not differ from any other bill or joint resolution, and cannot become effective until it has been presented to the President and signed by him or he has exercised his veto by two-thirds of the senate and house of representatives. No President has ever vetoed an act declaring war. It would seem to be the policy for congress to pass such an act without the approval of the official who, by virtue of his office is commander-in-chief of the army and navy and who would be charged with the prosecution of the war. As a matter of fact, it is customary for congress to pass an act declaring war only after the President has recommended such a step.

Prussian King's Really Good Joke on Voltaire

There was one of the great of Frederick the Great of Prussia an Englishman with an amazing memory. The day Voltaire was due to read to Frederick a new poem in his honor, Frederick arranged that the Englishman should be able to overhear it from the next room.

Voltaire arrived and read out his masterpiece—an ode of great length. "Very nice," said Frederick, "but of course I have heard it before."

At this point the Englishman withdrew in a hasty way, for he had never heard a poem beginning so-and-so.

To Voltaire's horror, the Englishman walked up the next street on the next day and read the ode to the king. "Anguished, Voltaire tore his manuscript to pieces. Then, the joke being explained, the Englishman had to dictate the poem again to Voltaire."—Golden Book Magazine.

Novae Scotia Primarily Scotch

Because of Longfellow's "Evangeline" Nova Scotia is popularly supposed to be mainly French and English. But it is primarily Scotch. The opening of its parliament is accompanied by the stirl of bagpipes, and several newspapers there are printed partly in Gaelic. In the Nova Scotia county of Inverness, 72 per cent of the inhabitants speak Gaelic, while less than half of the people in the similar, but smaller county in Scotland can talk that tongue.

Legend of the Stork

The legend of the stork is supposed to have originated in Germany where the stork is regarded with reverence. (In many houses in that country wheels are placed at the nesting places for those birds. In all probability the legend of the stork's connection with babies grew out of the sheer helplessness of the parents to explain satisfactorily to their children where the natural came from and it seemed quite natural to tell them that the tall white bird brought them.)

Man Shoots 6,000 Rats

Relics of South Africa, has the worst plague of rats in its history. Farmers and town-dwellers are united in battling the rodents which are doing heavy damage and are destroying grain stored in metal tanks. Baiting parties are set at a premium and rat traps and poisons are being used. One farmer has been credited with an all-time record of 6,000 rats with an all-guns in the last six months.

Balloon Most Dangerous

Among all the sports, the balloon is the most dangerous. In Africa they are known by the nickname of "lion tamer," for any one of them can whip the biggest lion in the jungle. Lions are deadly afraid of them and a lion will beat himself against a cage wall trying to get away if a balloon is brought into view within sniffling distance.

That wanted to borrow some money

from Michael, who happened to have a small boy with him at the moment. "That's a fine boy you have there with you, Mike. A magnificent specimen of his features. Could you loan me ten?"

"Mike" I could not. "To me wife's child by her first husband."

Some People in France

According to a number of reports in France there are 175 medieval towers scattered in French Flanders, writes a Little United Press correspondent.

The towers have an average height of 22 feet and range in age from one to five centuries. They are the world's biggest toys and the French people are famous for their love of building themselves with their own hands. The towers are scattered all over the country. The towers are built of stone and brick and are used for a variety of purposes. Some are used as watchtowers, some as fortifications, and some as places of refuge. The towers are a unique feature of the French landscape and are a testament to the ingenuity and skill of the French people.

War Call Up to Congress

If President So Urges

The President of the United States cannot formally declare war, but when he finds an actual state of war in existence, he may take the necessary military steps in the absence of congressional action. This is the sole judicial authority a condition exists.

Under the Constitution of the United States the President has the power to veto an act declaring war, and congress has the power to pass it over his veto. A bill or joint resolution that declares war does not differ from any other bill or joint resolution, and cannot become effective until it has been presented to the President and signed by him or he has exercised his veto by two-thirds of the senate and house of representatives. No President has ever vetoed an act declaring war. It would seem to be the policy for congress to pass such an act without the approval of the official who, by virtue of his office is commander-in-chief of the army and navy and who would be charged with the prosecution of the war. As a matter of fact, it is customary for congress to pass an act declaring war only after the President has recommended such a step.

Prussian King's Really Good Joke on Voltaire

There was one of the great of Frederick the Great of Prussia an Englishman with an amazing memory. The day Voltaire was due to read to Frederick a new poem in his honor, Frederick arranged that the Englishman should be able to overhear it from the next room.

Voltaire arrived and read out his masterpiece—an ode of great length. "Very nice," said Frederick, "but of course I have heard it before."

At this point the Englishman withdrew in a hasty way, for he had never heard a poem beginning so-and-so.

To Voltaire's horror, the Englishman walked up the next street on the next day and read the ode to the king. "Anguished, Voltaire tore his manuscript to pieces. Then, the joke being explained, the Englishman had to dictate the poem again to Voltaire."—Golden Book Magazine.

Some People in France

According to a number of reports in France there are 175 medieval towers scattered in French Flanders, writes a Little United Press correspondent.

The towers have an average height of 22 feet and range in age from one to five centuries. They are the world's biggest toys and the French people are famous for their love of building themselves with their own hands. The towers are scattered all over the country. The towers are built of stone and brick and are used for a variety of purposes. Some are used as watchtowers, some as fortifications, and some as places of refuge. The towers are a unique feature of the French landscape and are a testament to the ingenuity and skill of the French people.

War Call Up to Congress

If President So Urges

The President of the United States cannot formally declare war, but when he finds an actual state of war in existence, he may take the necessary military steps in the absence of congressional action. This is the sole judicial authority a condition exists.

Under the Constitution of the United States the President has the power to veto an act declaring war, and congress has the power to pass it over his veto. A bill or joint resolution that declares war does not differ from any other bill or joint resolution, and cannot become effective until it has been presented to the President and signed by him or he has exercised his veto by two-thirds of the senate and house of representatives. No President has ever vetoed an act declaring war. It would seem to be the policy for congress to pass such an act without the approval of the official who, by virtue of his office is commander-in-chief of the army and navy and who would be charged with the prosecution of the war. As a matter of fact, it is customary for congress to pass an act declaring war only after the President has recommended such a step.

Prussian King's Really Good Joke on Voltaire

There was one of the great of Frederick the Great of Prussia an Englishman with an amazing memory. The day Voltaire was due to read to Frederick a new poem in his honor, Frederick arranged that the Englishman should be able to overhear it from the next room.

Voltaire arrived and read out his masterpiece—an ode of great length. "Very nice," said Frederick, "but of course I have heard it before."

At this point the Englishman withdrew in a hasty way, for he had never heard a poem beginning so-and-so.

To Voltaire's horror, the Englishman walked up the next street on the next day and read the ode to the king. "Anguished, Voltaire tore his manuscript to pieces. Then, the joke being explained, the Englishman had to dictate the poem again to Voltaire."—Golden Book Magazine.

Novae Scotia Primarily Scotch

Because of Longfellow's "Evangeline" Nova Scotia is popularly supposed to be mainly French and English. But it is primarily Scotch. The opening of its parliament is accompanied by the stirl of bagpipes, and several newspapers there are printed partly in Gaelic. In the Nova Scotia county of Inverness, 72 per cent of the inhabitants speak Gaelic, while less than half of the people in the similar, but smaller county in Scotland can talk that tongue.

Legend of the Stork

The legend of the stork is supposed to have originated in Germany where the stork is regarded with reverence. (In many houses in that country wheels are placed at the nesting places for those birds. In all probability the legend of the stork's connection with babies grew out of the sheer helplessness of the parents to explain satisfactorily to their children where the natural came from and it seemed quite natural to tell them that the tall white bird brought them.)

Man Shoots 6,000 Rats

Relics of South Africa, has the worst plague of rats in its history. Farmers and town-dwellers are united in battling the rodents which are doing heavy damage and are destroying grain stored in metal tanks. Baiting parties are set at a premium and rat traps and poisons are being used. One farmer has been credited with an all-time record of 6,000 rats with an all-guns in the last six months.

Balloon Most Dangerous

Among all the sports, the balloon is the most dangerous. In Africa they are known by the nickname of "lion tamer," for any one of them can whip the biggest lion in the jungle. Lions are deadly afraid of them and a lion will beat himself against a cage wall trying to get away if a balloon is brought into view within sniffling distance.

That wanted to borrow some money

from Michael, who happened to have a small boy with him at the moment. "That's a fine boy you have there with you, Mike. A magnificent specimen of his features. Could you loan me ten?"

"Mike" I could not. "To me wife's child by her first husband."

Some People in France

According to a number of reports in France there are 175 medieval towers scattered in French Flanders, writes a Little United Press correspondent.

The towers have an average height of 22 feet and range in age from one to five centuries. They are the world's biggest toys and the French people are famous for their love of building themselves with their own hands. The towers are scattered all over the country. The towers are built of stone and brick and are used for a variety of purposes. Some are used as watchtowers, some as fortifications, and some as places of refuge. The towers are a unique feature of the French landscape and are a testament to the ingenuity and skill of the French people.

War Call Up to Congress

If President So Urges

The President of the United States cannot formally declare war, but when he finds an actual state of war in existence, he may take the necessary military steps in the absence of congressional action. This is the sole judicial authority a condition exists.

Under the Constitution of the United States the President has the power to veto an act declaring war, and congress has the power to pass it over his veto. A bill or joint resolution that declares war does not differ from any other bill or joint resolution, and cannot become effective until it has been presented to the President and signed by him or he has exercised his veto by two-thirds of the senate and house of representatives. No President has ever vetoed an act declaring war. It would seem to be the policy for congress to pass such an act without the approval of the official who, by virtue of his office is commander-in-chief of the army and navy and who would be charged with the prosecution of the war. As a matter of fact, it is customary for congress to pass an act declaring war only after the President has recommended such a step.

Prussian King's Really Good Joke on Voltaire

There was one of the great of Frederick the Great of Prussia an Englishman with an amazing memory. The day Voltaire was due to read to Frederick a new poem in his honor, Frederick arranged that the Englishman should be able to overhear it from the next room.

Voltaire arrived and read out his masterpiece—an ode of great length. "Very nice," said Frederick, "but of course I have heard it before."

At this point the Englishman withdrew in a hasty way, for he had never heard a poem beginning so-and-so.

To Voltaire's horror, the Englishman walked up the next street on the next day and read the ode to the king. "Anguished, Voltaire tore his manuscript to pieces. Then, the joke being explained, the Englishman had to dictate the poem again to Voltaire."—Golden Book Magazine.

Tea for every Taste

"SALADA" TEA

The King's Highway SAFE - DIRECT - ECONOMICAL LEAVE GEORGETOWN (Standard Time)

To Toronto	4:15 p.m.	4:35 a.m.	6:05 p.m.
7:55 a.m.	12:20 p.m.	9:10 p.m.
11:30 a.m.	1:15 p.m.	11:30 p.m.
3:25 p.m.		4:45 p.m.

Daily except Sun. and Hol. To Detroit daily. To Detroit Sun. and Hol. VACATION TOURS - ALL EXPENSES PAID. Muskoka - Georgian Bay - The Great Lakes - The Quilts. ASK FOR ILLUSTRATED FOLDER. Tickets and information at W. H. LONG - PHONE 89.

AIDS DIGESTION

COOL REFRESHING

Clearing Sale!

of all

Summer Millinery

At Reduced Prices

Misses Claridge

Herald Block (Upstairs) Georgetown

WORRY WILL NEVER DIM HER BEAUTY OR SAP HER VITALITY, THANKS TO

Menstrual-Aid

A safe and scientific preparation for all cases of menstrual disorders and feminine hygienic.

FREE BOOKLET THIS WEEK

MacCORMACK'S DRUG STORE

PHONE 237 MAIN STREET GEORGETOWN

TESTED RECIPES

RASPBERRIES IN SEASON

The raspberry is surely the most important bush fruit grown in Canada. It is now in season, and the recipes given below are suggested by the Fruit Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Raspberry Sifted Tarts

1 cup sifted cake flour
1/2 cup baking powder
4 egg yolks
1 cup white sugar
1 cup raspberries
5 tbsp. milk
1 cup butter

Sift flour with baking powder three times; cream butter and sugar; add egg yolks, one at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition; add flour and milk alternately in small amounts, beating well. Spread in two greased 9-inch layer cake pans. Bake in a moderate oven 250 degrees F. for 1/2 hour. Make a meringue by beating egg whites with 1/2 cup sugar until the mixture will stand in peaks. Bake until meringue is browned. Spread on hot cake and return to the oven. Bake until meringue is browned. Spread with sweetened crushed raspberries between the layers and on top. Serve with whipped cream, if desired.

Raspberry Muffins

2 cups flour
1/2 cup baking powder
1/2 cup salt
1 cup sugar
1 cup butter
1 egg
1 cup fresh raspberries

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Beat egg well; add milk and melted butter. Make an indentation in the flour and pour in milk and egg; mix; add berries and pour into well greased muffin pans. Bake in a moderate oven 130 degrees F. 25 degrees F. 25 minutes. Serve hot.

Raspberry Iceing

Thoroughly crush 1 cup fresh raspberries with a fork. Add 1 tablespoon melted butter and sufficient icing sugar (about 1/2 cup) to make of the required stiffness. This is in excess when you plan white cake or chocolate cake.

Raspberry Cake

1 cup brown sugar
1 cup butter
2 eggs
1 cup raspberries
2 cups flour
2 cups milk
4 tsp. baking powder

Cream butter and sugar; add egg yolks and beat well; add berries and milk. Then flour sifted with baking powder. Lastly fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in a but-

Wood for Sale

Choice Beech and Maple at $10.00 per cord; Mixed Lumber $25.00 per cord; Mixed Wood $18.00 per cord. F. BRANDFOED. Phone 345 or 221. Georgetown.

$25. Reward

will be paid by the Dept. of MOLATED CORN SALVE, for any CORN SALVE. Sold and recommended by MacCORMACK'S DRUG STORE, etc.

Trucking & Cartage

All kinds of hauling done thoroughly and reasonably. F. C. Whitman, Phone 241, Georgetown.

RADIO REPAIRING

12 Years Experience

WE SPECIALIZE ON THIS WORK.

J. SANFORD & SON

PHONE: GEORGETOWN 14

Commercial PRINTING

of all Kinds

We can give you satisfaction

PICOBAC

PIPE TOBACCO

FOR A MILD COOL SMOKE

The Georgetown Herald