NEED TWO PAIR TROUSERS
According to a story going the round of the press, a housewife hung her husband's trousers on the line for an airing, but on finding that a pair of wrens were building a home in them, decided to let the garment remain. The incident constitutes an unusually strong argument and selling point in favour of the suit with two pair of trousers.

INCORRECT SPELLING
With several students from this vicinity attending different out-of-town universities and colleges, we feel that parents will be interested in this short letter that one father wrote his son at college:—"The spelling you did on the list is correct, but you drew attention to your incorrect spelling. It is written with one thought, not two."

Number (arriving late)—Well, how is it?
Happy Husband—Not so bad, while we were waiting for you I taught my wife to sew.

COMMON THINGS

God, I would pray that I may always keep
The joy of common things that thrill me now—
A rain-drenched robin singing on his perch,
The sky, small thoughts I think before I sleep,
Warm sun and a brimming cup of milk,
The scent of lavender and apple blossom,
The fresh, cool odor of a new-leaved room,
And busy-willow, thimble-soft as silk,
The bright gleaming on my copper bowl,
The "usual" worn leather of my boots to touch,
May fame or fortune never point to much
That these give power to satisfy my soul.

HALTON TEACHERS' CONVENTION

The annual convention of the Halton Teachers' Institute was held in Milton on October 19th and 20th. The sessions were fully attended, and the program proved to be both enjoyable and profitable. Miss Ella Levey, Oakville, was in charge during the four sessions. Devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. A. B. Irwin and Canon T. J. R. Nafel, who also delivered inspiring addresses. Miss Iris Phillips, British Exchange Teacher, Managias Senior School, Newport, England, who on the 19th of October gave a splendid address on Wales and described the organization of Senior School in England. The main feature was the study of the New Course of Study, Grade 1 to 7. Interesting and helpful discussion was inspired in each subject by the following leaders: Health, Miss Eleanor MacDonald, Exeter, Ontario; Science, Miss J. M. Denney, social studies, Miss Charlotte Tanner, natural science, K. Prater; arithmetic, F. L. Barrett; and English, Miss J. M. Denney, art, Miss Margaret Young. Mr. Denney paid tribute to the work of the late Miss Mary E. Brown and to the work of Miss K. E. Brown and Mrs. P. R. McCall, of Oakville, who have retired from the profession. A message of sympathy from the Institute was sent to Mr. E. F. Sen and to the family of the late Miss Mary E. Douglas, in their recent sad bereavement. The following officers were elected for next year: Honorary President, J. M. Denney, B.A., Milton; president, Miss Edith Denney, Milton; vice-president, Miss Charlotte Tanner, Oakville; secretary, Miss Margaret Gemmill, Milton; treasurer, Miss Christina Elliott, Milton.

"THE HAVEN TIME CLUB"

Cancellation of membership in "The Haven Time Club," whose meetings are held in hospitals and churches, is urged by the Industrial Accident Prevention Association in a recent booklet for its members throughout Ontario. "Members of 'The Haven Time Club,'" the booklet states, "are persons who haven't time to consider the safety of themselves or of others. They go about their daily rounds in a hasty and unplanned manner, refuse to take reasonable precautions for the protection of life and health, yet how often they are hurt through their own thoughtlessness. The club is a world-wide organization made up of a large membership of thoughtful people."

In Ontario's industries, it is estimated, there are over 100,000 "club members" registered on the roster of the club, and members lose more than 300,000 hours each year simply because they "haven't time." The following are examples of members' activities carried on in the home as well as the factory and shop, and each points to the obvious moral that a little forethought can prevent a lot of trouble. Starting the day wrong with a "grab-and-run" breakfast. 2. Trying to carry more bundles or parcels than you can reasonably and safely handle is courting trouble. 3. If you stand on boxes or chairs instead of safe ladders to reach a top shelf or hang curtains, you are courting on the verge of an accident. 4. Eating before you eat your hands, a touchy point with boys, can be just as dangerous to adults who fail to take such precautions. 5. The most tried, but often neglected, rule of safety should be given immediate attention and first-aid treatment. "If you have been a member of this famous 'Haven Time Club' for your membership at once, for the person who takes time to be careful can get more work done in the same time and will be happier in the long run," the I.A.P.A. booklet urges.

—Have you renewed!

ACTON

At last meeting of Acton Council a by-law was passed and read as required, appointing C. F. Leiferland, Milton, and Treasurer pro tem. The permanent appointment was left until after the new Council was elected. In police court in Acton last Thursday, Richard Sharpe was sentenced to 18 months in the Ontario Reformatory, when he pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery. He is serving a similar sentence for a like charge at Guelph and the sentences will run concurrently.
Terribly lacerated about the head and face, Harold DeForest, of Acton, was taken to the Guelph Hospital as the result of an accident on the Guelph-Rockwood highway just outside Guelph, early Sunday morning. DeForest was driving east when his automobile was involved in a collision with a car, driven by Oscar Roebrecht of Waterloo, who was proceeding west. Jack Alger, Company Sgt.-Maj., of the Lorne Scots, Peel, Dufferin and Hastings Regiment, is taking a six-weeks' course at the Royal School of Infantry in Toronto.—Free Press.

It is now over a year since the Society closed the Shelter and adopted the Boarding Home System. This type of care for the children is proving quite satisfactory. They have readily adapted themselves to their new homes and without doubt have new outlook on life. The interest and co-operation of the foster mothers is very encouraging and with their assistance we feel the children are on the way to becoming useful citizens.
Separation of parents is still one of the large factors in respect to neglected children. Even with increased employment for the children the last consideration of the parent is the welfare of the child. The unmarried mother and her child is also one of the big problems of the Society and practically no change is noted in this regard from year to year.
G. P. Thompson, Superintendent

Wife—How much is it?

THE little frame farmhouse looked like a shanty boat stranded in a sea of mud. It had rained, intermittently, for over forty days and forty nights and it was still raining as if it would rain for forty more.
Jonas Smith, agriculturist, standing at the kitchen door, looked at what he could see of his eighty-four soggy ancestral acres and groaned.
"If a snow was put in 'it'—it would brood," he would go to China."
He turned and stared morbidly at his wife, Martha, a brisk, fair-haired, blue-eyed widow of a woman of uncertain age, who rolled biscuit dough on a square oak-table and hummed "The Arkansas Traveler." "The Arkansas Traveler," it seemed to Jonas, for a cool thousand years.
"Martha," he croaked, "this year keeps up another day, I'm ruined."
Martha determinedly rolled biscuit dough, but the humming ceased abruptly.
"You said that before, and it didn't stop, and you ain't ruined—or are you?" Her quick blue eyes stared coldly. "You said in the summer of thirty if it didn't rain, you'd be ruined—go on out to the barn, Jonas. I'm tired of looking at you, as 'tired of listening' as you are."
"The barn was a gloomy cavern, draughty and damp; it smelled of cows, sheep, horses, and hoked and hoked and hoked and hoked. Sam, leaned on a pitchfork and listlessly contemplated a pile of hay. A short, unlighted cobpipe sagged from his loose mouth.
"Jonas' dull countenance brightened. He stamped up, looked sagged, spat.
"If this year rain keeps up another hour," he said abruptly, "I'm ruined."
"Them people out West yonder," Sam said, "air a-prayin' for rain."
"Pray an' be damned!" Jonas rapped. "Well, I didn't mean that, exactly." He chewed vigorously. Suddenly, he stiffened. "Where's Rannan?"
Sam removed his pipe and pointed with it toward a V-shaped, white-washed edifice, about which a few chickens stood and clucked feebly.
"Fin'n' them trap nests of his'n. I keep a-tellin' him 'it'—"
In the chicken house a sixteen-year-old hamper of General's, formerly in Milton, called on friends in town on Friday last.
Wm. Fraser, who recently broke one of his hips, is now in Hamilton General Hospital and doing nicely.
