MANY ONTARIO WINNERS AT WORLD GRAIN SHOW

Early results in judging at the World's Grain Exhibition in Regina, Sask., indicated that Ontario growers had captured a fair share of the awards. Chief honours in red top grass went to J. N. Vanloon of Waterford, with Ether H. Snively, also of Waterford, in second place. L. R. Mahlenbachar of Cayuga was first in the class for Pea species, Mastodon blue, Canadian blue etc., with Nixon L. Hold of Fisherville second, and nine other Haldimand growers following in order. In Flint corn, requiring more than 110 days to mature, first place went to W. M. Weaver, Turnerville, Ont., and first place in the class for small field peas, white or yellow, was won by R. S. Lee, Chatsworth, Ont. H. Fraleigh, M.L.A., Forest, Ont. was second to the agricultural ministry of Northern Ireland in the flax seed section. W. Davison of Hillsdale had eight Ontario growers in the soy beans, yellow or greenish colour. Ralph Moore and Son of Norwich took second to the B. C. winner in mangel seed and third in the collection of vegetable seed, while Ethan Barnhart and Wilmer Beatty both of Stevensville were amongst the winners in the Dutch Clover seed class. Cameron Edgay of Ayr took thing place in mangel seed. While incomplete, this list is sufficient to indicate the enviable showing made by Ontario growers at the big exhibition.

Weekly Crop Report

Although fortunately relieved by recent rains the continued drought over the greater part of Ontario during the months of June and July did irreparable injury to all classes of crops. Pastures and root crops were the greatest sufferers, although spring grains are very short and the yield will be light. Nevertheless, judging by the spring grain already harvested, the sample will be good. Fall wheat is reported as an excellent crop in many cases and yields of 35 to 40 bushels per acre appear common. As the result of lack of pasture and shortage of other succulent feed, milk yields have been low. The tobacco-growing districts at the southern counties have suffered and the flue-cured yield will not be much more than 50 or 60 per cent of last year's crop. Apple orchards generally are in good condition, but the fruit is likely to be smaller than usual in size when reaching maturity.

MOVIES OF ESKIMOS

Young Scientist Spent a Year In Far North Obtaining Films for Government Records.

Danger and excitement have been wrecked into the experience of Richard Finnie, son of O. H. Finnie, of Ottawa, who lived a year in the Arctic regions and obtained 15,000 feet of movie film of the famous "blonde" Eskimos.

This young Canadian dared the rigors of the Arctic in the interests of science and Government records. He lived at times with the Eskimos in their igloos, pictured them after making friends by an infectious smile, and made valuable records of their habits and conditions of living.

Mr. Finnie was a member of the Major Burwash party that made the hazardous trip to King William Land and found relics of the ill-fated Sir John Franklin expedition. On that trip, Mr. Finnie handled the cameras while valuable map work was done by Major Burwash.

Leaving Edmonton Mr. Finnie proceeded by boat to Aklavik and later by schooner to Peterson Bay on King William Land. It was at this point that he was picked up by an airplane piloted by Gilbert and carrying Major Burwash for the dash in search of Franklin relics. That trip was extremely hazardous as ice was forming on the lakes and it was necessary to receive as nine as possible to the base at Peterson Bay. Leaving the machine on returning to the base, Mr. Finnie boarded a schooner which was to carry him to Coppermine where he made his headquarters. The hand was wrecked three days after the trip ended.

He found the Eskimos friendly at all times. No alarm at the sight of the moving picture machine was shown by the Eskimos. It was found advisable to set the machine up, then let it be examined by the natives who, after becoming accustomed to it, paid little or no attention when it was in operation.

Speaking of the blonde Eskimos of Victoria Land or King William Land, Mr. Finnie said they intermingle with those along the coast, where they come to trade and fish. These Eskimos are not actually blonde but of a light complexion, while those along the south coast are rather dark skinned in comparison.

"SHUT-IN" BROADCASTS

Rev. J. Roy Van Wyck, D.D., himself an invalid because of a strange malady that makes his bones liable to easy fracture, has undertaken to produce messages to "shut-ins" daily, which is broadcast by the Radio Fellowship of a Toronto church.

MOW MAYH PARROTS.

Some Women Seem Unable to Live Without Them, Says Noted Doctor.

Two thousand men of medicine, members of the British Medical Association, foregathered at Eastbourne, England, and discussed the ills of mankind, including national unrests, manipulative surgery, colored road signs, and the hardships inflicted upon certain sections of the population through the ban on importation of parrots. The ban on parrots was occasioned by the outbreak of psittacosis, which later spread to North America.

Sir George Buchanan said the doctors were unable to contemplate the ban on parrots without dismay. "You may laugh," he said, "but if you had received as many communications as I have had from women, in some cases high functionaries, who seem unable to live without parrots, you would realise I am stating the bald truth."

MAN CAN'T GROW NEW LEG.

When a man loses a leg he cannot grow a new one, but some animals can, notably the embryonic amblystoma, a salamander. The reason why is a mystery, but science has struck a new trail seeking the cause.

The trail is made public in the wake of the discovery that X-rays destroy this regenerative power, reducing amblystoma to man's condition of legs. Previously the power of X-rays to deter regeneration in invertebrates was known, but this is the first application so far as he knows to a back-boned animal.

Hollywood Pikes for Britain.

Sixty million dollars of British money goes to Hollywood every year for American films and not one cent of income tax is paid on it, though if British companies made the same profits they would have to pay $1.12 on every $5.60, says a special despatch from London to the Southam newspapers.

Bad News For Him.

"I simply cannot stand the sound of an automobile horn."

"Why not?"

"Some months ago my chauffeur stole my car and eloped with my wife, and every time I hear a horn toot I think he is bringing her back."

Soybeans in Kent

About ten thousand acres of soybeans are now growing in the Chatham district to supply the oil and meal factory now established there. Inspections of a few fields have shown the bean standing up better than most crops under the drought conditions. The entire product of last year's operations of the mill was sold some time ago and deliveries are ordered up to next October. The plant was bottomed for three months in manufacture of last year's crop into oil and meal. With four times the acreage it is expected that a full year will be required to handle the coming crop.

Carrick township farmers, who estimate that they have lost a thousand or more chickens this year due to the depredations of skunks, can commiserate with Norman McDonald, of 7th Con., Bideraile, one of the township's big raisers of turkeys. At the present time Norman has 900 turkeys which he is getting ready for the fall market, but this number will be increased by over 100 btu for the numerous raids of pole-cats; who have killed that number of little turkeys.

FAMOUS OYSTER BEDS

Malpeques of Richmond Bay Again Coming Into Prominence.

The oyster industry in Richmond Bay, P. E. I., original home of the famous Malpeque oyster, is coming back, after more than 15 years of complete exhaustion, according to A. W. H. Needler, biologist who spends his summers in the service of the Marine Biological Board of Canada.

Richmond, or "Malpeque," Bay was at one time the greatest oyster producing area in Canada, but it has been fallow since 1915 when the oysters were stricken by a disease due, it is said, to infection from imported oysters planted for experimental purposes.

While this important area has been withdrawn from production, "Malpeques" have continued on the market, though in smaller quantities. Some years before the year "Malpeques" from Richmond Bay were used to stock beds along the northern shores of Nova Scotia from Pictou to Bay Verte, and these transplanted oysters have provided a certain supply. The present production of Canadian oysters is about 30,000 barrels a year.

While there has been some criticism of the quality of the Canadian oysters on the market in recent years, at one time their superiority was a matter of general recognition. In fact, they won first prize at the International Exposition in Paris some years before the war. These first prize oysters were collected in various places in the Maritimes, and were standing in barrels on wharves, in some cases in the hot sun, before being shipped across the Atlantic. But notwithstanding rough usage and a change of climate, Paris epicures pronounced the Canadian oysters superior to European oysters that had been taken out of the water only the day before.

Richmond Bay once produced upwards of 10,000 barrels of oysters per season. Due to over-fishing, the yield began to decrease about 1894, and at the end of a decade only about one-sixth of the maximum yield was being taken.

SCALPS AND JAILS

Observant Japanese Official Says Hot Nuts Are Merely Criminals.

The Imperial University in Japan has awarded a diploma to a medical censor at a Japanese jail for his thesis on the proposition that hot nuts are merely criminals. Ottawa, says the writer, are almost invariably committed by the nuts and shelter. Presumably this deduction is founded on years of observation, and if true it leads great significance to a recent announcement from across the seas. An American writer says that twice as many men as women are now taking slimming treatments to New York. He suggests, as a possible explanation of this fact, that to keep slim is an outward and visible sign of solvency, only the rich and leisured being able to afford the expense and fag of being massaged, pounded, baked in Turkish baths or taught to throw medicine balls about. The man of moderate means, on the other hand, has to vary truth to take his figure as it comes, or, at least he can afford whether it's nursery or not, and presumably keep his mess, however fat, to the grindstone.

Was it because of his confidence in their superior morality that Cæsar said, "Let me have men about me that are fat"? Is Mr. Al Capone's generous figure really a disguise? Was Henry VIII. so worse than a dear old thing with a passion for variety in family life, and must Nero really seldom sit the beast?—From Toronto Saturday Night.

COAL MERCHANTS ON BOARD.

Owner of Wagons, Trucks, and an Employer of Labor.

What the prosecution described as one of the worst cases of fraud the British Ministry of Labor had ever dealt with was revealed at Coventry when Herbert Wright, of Longford near Coventry, was charged with fraudulently obtaining about $119.00 unemployment pay.

It was stated that Wright had been carrying on business as a coal merchant with a coal-yard at Stockingford, and that he employed two or three men. He had several vehicles on which his name appeared, and two coal-trucks which also bore his name. During one month Wright paid for coal purchases the sum of $178.00, and during the week mentioned in the summons he paid a colliery company over $165.00.

Wright, in a statement to the magistrates, explained that he took the business over through sheer kindness for his brother and his children, and that he considered he had done no harm. Asked who had the profits, he or his brother, he replied that there were neither profits nor wages.

Wright was sentenced to two months' hard labor.

SKY PAINTED IN REVERSE.

Of the millions who pass annually through the Grand Central terminal, New York, probably not one-half of one per cent. turn their faces skyward to look at what was once proclaimed the most beautiful ceiling in the world. It had a fine effect with stars, etc. But some cruel person came along and vowed that the whole works was incorrect in that the starry heavens were inverted. A painter's error put the stars on backward—that is, their arrangement is a mirror image of the same stars' real position in the Heavens. An interior decorator copied a "celestial globe" from the outside, instead of viewing it from within.

WHALE CHOKED ON CABLE.

Cruising the ocean bottom near the Panama Canal Zone, with its mouth wide open, a whale recently made the miscalculation of getting a submarine cable between his lips. He broke the cable all right, but in trying to get away from it he wrapped 180 feet of it about his body and choked himself to death. He weighed about 80 tons.

News and Information For the Busy Farmer

Ventilated Trap-Nests

Open trap-nests are being advocated in some quarters for summer use. The sides are constructed of laths or other similar material, admitting cool air freely, and these are covered with wire screening to keep out other hens, mice and other nuisances. The usual trap-door is situated at the front and the top is boarded over, but three sides are ventilated.

In addition to first placing and scholarships, the Ontario teams secured a total of $770 in individual cash awards. The Saskatchewan University team placed second and also took first honors in individual cash awards, the amount being $300. Many student teams from Canadian and American colleges competed. Eleven classes of grain and small seed were included in the judging.

Barn Fires

The Ontario Fire Marshals' records show that more barns are destroyed by fire originating from spontaneous combustion in hay than any other cause except lightning in unroofed barns.

Harvest weather conditions in 1933 were so dangerous that more barn fires than ever were expected. Instead there were 276 fewer barns burned in Ontario and a decrease of 17 per cent. in the number of fires known to be caused by spontaneous combustion.

Credit for this is given to the more general use of salt. The adequate use of salt is the most certain way of retarding and preventing spontaneous ignition fires.

Potato Growers Advised Not to Sell Too Cheaply

Growers would be well advised to refuse to accept less than $1.50 to $1.75 per bag at the farm for good-quality potatoes, says C. W. Baker, secretary of the Ontario Growers' Markets Council. Many growers who are familiar with crop and market conditions are refusing to accept less than $2 per bag, realizing that with the short crop this year will be easily obtained before the late crop is ready to be harvested.

Even with the increase in price, the net returns per acre of potatoes will be considerably below that of a year ago.

From information obtainable from other potato-producing districts in the Dominion the 1933 crop will be considerably below that of the last several years, while reports from the United States indicate a drop of over 60,000,000 bushels from last year.

The unscrupulous trucker travels miles daily from grower to grower bearing down on the price, and usually is successful in finding some grower who is not up to date with market conditions and possibly strikes a bargain away below market values. His plan is to pretend to understand the competitions, resulting in a general market weakening, not at all in keeping with the law of supply and demand. Naturally the grower suffers.

Recent estimates received from reliable sources place the early potato crop at no more than 50 per cent. of a normal crop.

Prices to the trade on the wholesale market recently were $1.75 to $2.15 per bag, according to grade and quality, while other sources were quoting $1.35 and $1.50 for the same quality delivered to Toronto.

Horticultural Notes

Hardy Phlox is best transplanted in late August. They should be divided about every third year. When dividing clumps the centre should be discarded and the outside pieces replanted in good soil. Good varieties are Elizabeth Campbell, Le Mahee, Frau Anton Buchner and Baron von Dedem.

The Autumn Crocus, Colchicum autumnale is an interesting bulb planted in late summer, and blooms in early October with pale lavender flowers; the leaves grow in spring.

This is the proper time to transplant the Madonna Lily, Lilium candidum. They should be placed about five inches deep, and given good drainage by setting bulbs on a layer of coarse sand.

Death of Prof. Millen

Professor F. Eric Millen, head of the Apiculture Department at the Ontario Agricultural College, died after an illness of only a few days. He had undergone a serious operation and failed to rally.

Since 1919, when he took up his duties at Guelph, the late Professor Millen had been head of the Department of Apiculture. He was a graduate of the College, receiving his degree in 1912. A native of Kent, England, the deceased was in his fifty-first year. He was Provincial Apiarist and secretary of the Ontario Beekeepers' Association.

The late Professor was recognized as one of the outstanding apiarists in North America and a widely known authority on the subject of beekeeping and honey production. He was very popular with the many beekeepers of Ontario.
