Lt. Col. Thos. P. Bradley, M.D. Died at Sarnia on Saturday June 30th

LEGNORNY ILLNESS PROVED FATAL TO NOBLES MAN AND EX-COLDIER

Plans were at half-mast throughout Sarnia on Saturday last, in memory of one of its best known public figures, Lt. Col. T. P. Bradley, M.D., who died early that morning at his home 377 N. Christian street.

A keen sportsman, Col. Bradley had taken a great interest in all branches of sport in the city and was amiable and popular with many.

During the war Col. Bradley took an active part in the organization of the 14th Battalion. He was appointed to the rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1915 and served with distinction in the military hospital at Sarnia.

He was interested in service club work in the city, besides being a member of the Sarnia Reading Club, the Sarnia Golf Club, and the Sarnia Lawn Tennis Club.

Col. Bradley was given the chairmanship of the Finance Committee of the Sarnia Board of Health in 1932 and was re-elected to the same position in 1933.

Georgetown Band Wins Contest at Waterloo

Omar Diggins First for Trombone Soloist and Frank Carter for Clarinet Soloist

Georgetown stood well to the front at Waterloo Musical Festival last Saturday afternoon when the band won in competition with some of the best musical organizations and institutions in Ontario.

In class C, open to bands of not over twenty-five instrumentalists, the Georgetown band placed first in the class and the standing was as follows: Lorne Holmes (Scottish) Band, Georgetown, 81 points; Oakville Citizens Band, 80 points.

In the clarinet competition for boys under 13 years of age, Frank Carter of Georgetown won first prize with 84 points.
