TOO MANY ACCIDENTH

ford in her and bereatement.

Another long lat of week-end acc dents are recorded. Water and high ways have taken their toll through thoughtlesanes and folly. Press re ports of the accidents would show that had the ordinary precaution been taken there would have been no accidents Why will people not read and learn? Why will people projet in doing those things that came injury and death? It is not because there has not been sufficient warnings. It is not for lack of instruction. It does seem that people are carried away from all precaution on the highways and in the waters for a fraction of a second. The small lapse causes the trouble. Train the mind as you will to act there is limit to its power. Men drive cars till they use up every ounce of energy They are not just as ready to act in the emergency and the faction causes the lance. Iwople go into water holes and on braches and do not herd the signs nor the advice of those who know the shores. They take chances and find that they are not equal to the danger. All them accidents are the direct result of not taking the necessary precaution. Those innocen are very often killed or hurt because someone did not take the precaution There is but one way that these acci dents can be overcome. He sure that you do not do any of those fool hardy things. Plan to drive your car only when you have your full strength and are in a fit condition Plan to enter no waters unless you know something of the tides, the shore and the undercurrents. Plan to stay in shallow waters unless you can swim with confidence and have perfect strength to do the distance. Do not dive unless you know the waters and then be aure that you are physically fit. everyone will only take the necessary precaution of stopping and thinking before they act they will find that there are many pleasant hours in atore

SUMMER MEETING OF HAMILTON JOCKEY CLUB

for them and life is very sweet.

Patrons of the turf, who like to witness their sport among ideal surroundings and in solid comfort, will be intereted to know that the second summer meeting of the Hamilton Jockey Club opens this coming Baturday. August 4th. The Hamilton track is one of the most popular on the circult both with the public and with horsemen. This is largely due to the fact that it is one of the most picturesque and well-kept racing plants on their praise of the splendid condition in which the two tracks, the regular course and the grass track, are always kept, while race-goers enjoy the attractive landscaping and neat appearance of the entire course.

The racing at the pending meetwill be no shortege of horses on hand. All the leading stables now racing in Canada will be represented, together with saveral newcomers, whose presence will no doubt add interest to the sport. The book program, which was issued some time ago, caters to all class of horses and should bring out large fields in every event. There is one or more features offered each day and these should bring together the better class of performers. 2.30 p.m. has been set for the post time of the first race each day.

But England, the Netherland. Belgium, Butterland, and several other European countries will have to

The provinces are slarmed at the threat of the federal government to turn over all unemployment relici costs to them and the municipalities. The plain fact is, that peuber the provinces nor the municipalities can carry the burden alone, and even with much federal help the strain has been almort more than many sections of the country can bear. The Bennett government came into power on the cry that unemployment was a national problem and must be dealt with av much, and the provinces won't let them forget IL. And while it is a vast sum which the federal government has spent on unemployment in the past four years -103 millions, plus large loans-it is less by 30 millions than Canada spent on the Welland Canal. It does not begin to touch the capetue Canada went to help 'win the war' in Europe. At least two billion dollars was added to the national debt in the four years 1914-1918 (with the aftermath) and if we get through the depression by Mr. and Mrs. E. Mascales and spending only one-tenth of that sum from the federal treasury, we should, perhaps, consider ourselves fortunate. Whatever the Ottawa government does it cannot allow people to starve or go naked. I think you will find that a year from now, in spite of its warning about a 'cut off' that the federal government will atill be paying out the millions toward the welfare of the

Glen Williams Resident Re- hallowed in Tom Hill's mind as a good members Brampton Main St. When it was Mud Puddle

The Brumpton of to-day is a mild and domesticated town, in spit of the efforts of strikers and lacrosse teams to create news, compared with the Brampton of three generations ago. according to Tom Hill, now a resident of the village of Olen Williams, but once a citizen of Brampton.

the local musclemen had a free-forall fight on the main street of the town. These large and beety gentlemen, judging by his accounts, were generous opponents, and you didn't have to be a resident of the town to ioin in the battles, 'There were at least two local factions in each engagement, but affiliation with one or the other was not necessary, all that was needed was a desire for action, and the visitor was sure to be obliged. The fights usually began at a dance in the Brampton House Hall, and spread thence down to the business Life on the Ocean Wave." They got section of the town. "Main Street was more of it then they had bereatned a mud puddle from one end to the for, for the raft atruck something in other in those days," Tom Hill de- the river and went to pieces, and the claries, "and I can remember when there were only a few scattered houses up and down the street." At that time Tom was only a little lad, going to school, and the now floutishing town was only a village. He was born in a little house beside the C.N.R. right-of-way, although, of course, there was no O.N.R. in those days, and the Orand Trunk had not been run through. There was a school on John Street. which untedated the Central school.

Dan Rice's circus came to Brampton, and away went Tom with the show. He looked after the "Happy Pamily," a group of parrots and monkeys, in a cage drawn by four mules. He looked after the mules, too, and often alept atop the wayon as the circus moved from one stand to another. Then the ringmaster took sick A Brottish cloric owned a farm and Tem got the job. fine bugler. He didn't miss all the fun, however, One night the home guard caughy a man whom they believed was a spy, and looked the man in the bastille. There was something of a miniature flood in the cell, and he stood all night in water inches deep. In the morning Rosve Kenneth Chiaholm decided to look over the catch, and found that the man was simply a wandsrer in search of work. The home guard apologized, which was gentlemanly of Brampton, in those days, was much more subject to a superfluity of water than it is today. One spring a particularly flue flood came down the Etoblooks, and wags of the town band made a raft, climbed aboard, and floated through the town tooting "A the river and went to pisces, and the bandsmen inhibed a lot of muddy river water before they got ashore. There was a warm welcome everywhere in the town for strangers "We went to all the churches in town by turns," says Tom, "and we did enloy the frequent revival maetings in the Primitive Mathodist Church on Queen Birest East." He voted at the last open' poll held in town, holding up his brawny hand for the Conservative candidates, Mathew Crooks Cameron and John Coyns. One of the great pleasures of his life was association with that great Torontolan, Ned Hanlan. They met at the Island by chance, and cemented a friendship that lasted for years. Proud was the day when Tom could haft Ned's shell and put it in the water for him. Hanlan, Tom says, won his first race because, sculling ddly about the river at the Philadelphia centennial, he was dared to take part to Toronto, was greatly surprised when in the front of the Olan Williams Hotel. He hasn't been out of bed for seven years, an injury to his hip confining him to the covers, but he still keeps in touch with his birthplace. and is keenly interested in the news his papers bring him. He is proud, too, of the many fraternal organizations of which he belongs. He is a Mason, an Orangeman, member of the Knights of Pythias, Knights of Malta. Knights of Rhods, and a host of other
