-Thomas Curtis Clark Kaupley the Pears, 13-15 A man who was notorious for quarreliomensis in sports, politics and business was appointed an official of his church. Pollowing a short honeymoon is surely possible to avoid strife in business and in international affairs The way of hate has been tried sufficiently often to demonstrate that it lends to strife and injury. It has also been demonstrated that the spirit of love prevents friction, and is able to cure conflict. The world has to choose between armamenta that will lead to destruction, or education in good will that will make world-wide

"The real enemies of all nations are hate, greed, selftshires, racial and nationalistic bigotry. The real battle-fields of the world are not Planders Vields, but human hearts." The strife that we dread on an international scale exists first of all in individual life. There is a civil war in the soul due to the strife between fiesh and spirit. The work of religion is to uniform the soul due to the strife between fiesh and spirit. The work of religion is to uniform the soul due to Ood this constant dislogue between good and till may be ended. Those who are willing to let God's holy Spirit lead them, find that temporations weaken and good purposes are strengthened. If we allow the spirit of God to direct our lives, great virtues become possible. "The fruit of the spirit of love, joy, peace, long-suffering, kindness and goodness, faithfulness, meckness, solf-control. Against such there is no law." We used laws and penaltics only regarding evil things, and not against virtues. Love is the fulfilling of the law because it creates a spirit in which we may get away from rules, and find freedom in doing right. The way to this power of goodness, under the direction of God's holy Spirit, is true surrender. The floah and the lust thereof come under control once we unreservedly yield ourselves to God. The world has long suffered from personal quarrols and international sirife. With the coming of the machine age industrial conflict between employers and workers in which both sides always lose. The one thing gained is the conviction as to the futility of strife. "Birlies are easentially struggles, and struggles spell war of one sort or another. Now that the world has come to the point of view that wars should be outlawed, the same principles should be applied to our ludustrial strife. Isher disputes with capital also imply a question of rights. Both sides are apt to be right and wrong at the same time. There is never a side that has all righteousness or justice on its side. Then again there is a third party to every labor dispute, namely the public at large which, in the final analysis, is the largest sufferer. For all these reasons strikes and lockouts are in the main unconsciousable. Civilization has reached the point where differences should and can be sottled amicably."
