KEEP RATS HUNGRY

The number of rats in a place is always in direct proportion to the available food supply. If a farmer, a house or a barn is overrun with rats, it is evidence that some one is generous with rat food.

Well-fed rats multiply rapidly and always increase to the utmost limit of the available food. If the daily rat rations will support only twenty rats, there will be no more, and no fewer, rats in that place. When the number exceeds the food supply, their ill-nourished bodies fail to reproduce and disease takes a heavy toll of them. That is true of all animals, including man. You cannot in any circumstances raise more fish in a pond than the food there will feed.

A farmer noticed that during the summer there were very few rats around the barn, and that even they had hard pinking to live. The granary was rat-proof. The chickens got no more than they could eat in a hurry. A few rats survived by foraging in the fields and garden. But soon after the big mow was stored with unthreshed wheat, the rats began to come. It was early winter before a thrasher was available, and by that time the rats were alive with rats—hundreds of rats, big rats and little rats, brown ones and grey ones. You could hear them squawking and scrambling in the straw. They ran boldly round under foot. A few months later a well-fed rat was hard to find. The few that the farmer trapped made little difference, but the thrashers came and beat out the grain. The straw was sold and hauled away, the wheat was locked in the granary.

Beyond question rats will migrate. That farmer's rats had to move on starve; so one dark night they just went away, no one knows where, but most certainly to some place where they could get food.

The moral is that, if you keep rats hungry, you can get rid of them. A hungry rat is easy to trap, a fat rat takes poisoned bread with gusto; to the last rat get rid of rats is not to have any.

Keep every bit of rat food securely covered. Put the chickens feed into tin boxes or iron barrels and keep the covers down. Feed the chickens, not the rats. In other words, feed the chickens no more than they will clean up. Nothing encourages rats more than grain scattered over the chicken-house floor and left over night. Dispose of kitchen garbage by feeding it to stock or to chickens or by burning it. A garbage pile behind the house or barn will feed many rats. Urinary and corn crib should be rat-proof. Do not store grain in the straw any longer than necessary. Protect the horse grain boxes so that rats cannot rob your animals. Rats have been known to drive a horse away from his grain.

Trapping rats is no easy matter, especially when they are fat. Poison is always dangerous. The rats have an uncanny way of carrying the poison-soaked bait to some place other than where the dog or the cat get it. Poison-soaked bread is best, if you must use poison, but it is best to use traps. Nothing else except rats and mice can get into a trap.

A steel trap "snap down" dead-fall trap is very efficient. Bait it with a piece of bread, a slice of apple or of chicken can testify, rats will eat when they can get meat. If the dead-fall falls, rat a common trap buried just out of sight in a pan of corn meal or ground feed. Be sure the trap is well oiled and springs easily.

Two Vegetable Relishes Your Family Will Enjoy

Relishes Made New With the Welcome to Winter

During the fall-making and preserving season your bottle of fruit pectin is used regularly with fruits and berries. Remember that it lends itself to use in delicious vegetable relishes as well. Here are two that should be upon the shelves of every preserver's closet.

Vegetable Relish
3 cups (1 1/2 lb.) prepared tomatoes
1 cup (3/4 lb.) sugar
1/2 cup bottled fruit pectin

To prepare tomatoes, scald, peel and crush about 3 1/2 pounds ripe tomatoes, or use canned tomatoes. Boil 4 cups crushed tomatoes 10 minutes, uncovered, stirring occasionally. Add 1/2 cup lemon juice and grated rind of 1 lemon. For use with meats, add 1 teaspoon each ground cloves, allspice, and cinnamon, or Worcester-sauce. For use with vegetables, add 1/2 teaspoon each ground cloves, allspice, and cinnamon. Add prepared tomato, filling up last cup with water if necessary. Stir well and bring to full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Skim; pour quickly. Purstrain a cup. Makes about 9 glasses (8 fluid ounces each).

Pepper Relish
3 cups (1 1/2 lb.) prepared peppers
1 cup (3/4 lb.) sugar
1/2 cup bottled fruit pectin

To prepare peppers, cut open about 1 dozen medium peppers and discard seeds. Wash, wash, wash. Wash constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Skim; pour quickly. Purstrain a cup. Makes about 10 glasses (8 fluid ounces each).

JAMS AND JELLIES ARE QUDEST

When company walks in unexpectedly at meal time, let the lolly lolly jam come to your rescue. Every lover of good food, no matter how picky, enjoys these tasty fruit or berry spreads, either on plain white bread, or crackers, or in sandwiches. Here is a novel jam:

Cinnamon Apple Jam
4 cups (2 lb.) prepared fruit
1 cup (3/4 lb.) sugar
1/2 cup bottled fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, add 3/4 cup water to about 1/2 pound dried apples, apricots, cover, and let stand 4 hours or overnight. Drain fruit, grind or chop fine, and mix with juice.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, filling up last cup with water if necessary. Add cinnamon, nut, mix well, and bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes. Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Skim; pour quickly. Purstrain a cup. Makes about 11 glasses (8 fluid ounces each).

THE BIRDS OF DARKNESS

Night—dark night—silent gray shadows move about us stealthily, unobserved against the deep night sky; strange sounds, dolorous and mournful issues from dark-roofed Owl-houses of darkness—Owl-houses of darkness.

In search of food. Although nearly all species of owl appear to see equal well in daylight and at night, some are night hunters, and some are day hunters. In fact, they are all night hunters, and some are day hunters. In fact, they are all night hunters, and some are day hunters.

MONKEYS IN WARFARE

The use of monkeys in warfare goes back many thousands of years. The Chinese used one species that because of its peculiar and harsh cry was called the "monkey" or "howler" (task was a highly important part of the war).

The war monkeys were captured when very young, and their training continued until they were about a year old. They were trained to carry a small bundle of sticks or other material to a certain place, and to return with it. They were also trained to carry a small bundle of sticks or other material to a certain place, and to return with it.

IT WAS A HOWL OWLING

Stories of the Londoner's difficulties with the letter "W" are common enough, but this still amuses. Here is one that the Argonaut attributes to Mr. Frank Swinerton, the English novelist, who is not ashamed of the fact that he himself was born within sound of Bow Bells.

"I was born," he said, "in a country house that he was thinking of buying. As the head gardener was showing him over the grounds, he heard the peculiar cry that was the signal for the 'what was that?' asked the cockney."

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS

A useful export outlet for Canadian dressed poultry has been opened up in the city of London, Ontario, having gone forward during the first week of August.

Canadian consignments of both barley and oats to the United Kingdom during the first six months of 1935 were the highest since 1924.

SCARCITY OF PARTRIDGE MAY RESULT IN "NO REASON"

Scarcity of partridge has raised doubt there will be a hunting season for that bird in Ontario. It was stated recently by officials of the Fish and Game Department, that game protective associations and field clubs for the Department are engaged in a survey of the fall hunting prospects generally and have turned in reports which would indicate the Department would be ill advised to permit a season for partridge. The Department, it is understood, is considering a plan of extending the pheasant season over that of normal years.

MAY WAGON

Now, where the road goes winding And the gold haze of afternoon hangs warm, A crawling wagon loaded high with hay Makes the old pilgrims from field to farm.

The agile vehicle, more swiftly paced, Comes up behind and angers passengers with horns of haste.

Pulling the country road with hie and cry, Lazing, the driver scarcely seems to mind As from his seat he pulls a languid rein And then pass—like one aware of speed Who lives within a steeper domain.

For here the scented air is drowsy-sweet, The feathered wings brush gently on Or cling to branches. Let us pause to meet.

The year's abundant harvest, home-ward bound, —Helen Britin McKinney, in the New York Times.

PEACE

We travelled in the print of olden wars, Yet all the land was green, And here we found, and peace Where fire and war had been. They pass and smaller, the children of the sword— No more the sword they wield, And, O how deep the corn Along the battlefield! —Keritovian
