FAVOURS FEW AND FAR BETWEEN

Favours to political opponents in the thick of an election campaign are few and far between, but here's one for the book.

Through the co-operation of the Conservative Dominion Organization at Ottawa and the Conservative provincial organization in the province of Nova Scotia, a half hour previously reserved by the Conservative party in that province was made available to complete a Canadian Radio Broadcasting Commission coast-to-coast hook-up for Right Hon. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, last night.

The broadcast for Mr. King had been arranged through all provinces except Nova Scotia for 9.00 to 9.30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time. The Conservative party agreed to accept the half hour following, from 9.30 to 10 o'clock to accommodate the Liberal chief.

"The Ottawa Spotlight"

A WEEKLY REVIEW OF NATIONAL AFFAIRS

By Wilfrid Eggleston

Ottawa, Sept. 17th—Election issues grow more complicated as the day of voting draws near. There has never been a general election in Canada in which the number of candidates has been so high nor the issues so complex and varied. When all the names are in there will be between 900 and 1000 candidates, and at least six parties: Conservatives, Liberals, C. C. F. Stevens, Social Credit and Communist. Premier William Aberhart, Social Credit leader of Alberta, says that his party will run 16 candidates in Alberta (omitting an opponent in the case of Mr. Bennett) and that he will win every seat he contests. He also predicts that 30 to 35 Social Credit candidates will be elected altogether. Persons pay more respect to the ex-collegiate principal now than they did before August 22nd. If the Social Creditors do win 35 seats, there will be a scramble among the other five parties for the remaining 310 seats in the federal house.

One Party gets Wiped Out

Every election in which there have been more than two parties seems to have resulted in the complete annihilation of one group or another. In Saskatchewan it was the Conservatives; in Alberta the U.F.A.; in British Columbia the Conservatives; in Ontario the C. C. F. One wonders if this tendency will hold good in the federal election, and, if so, which of the parties will be wiped out? In the straw votes taken in Ontario so far, Mackenzie King appears to be the favorite. Liberal headquarters are also quite pleased over reports from lieutenants in the Maritimes and Quebec. The prairies, they admit, make another story. No one knows what will happen out there, they say, except that some Social Credit candidates are a safe bet.

Can any party secure a majority over all, under these circumstances? A few weeks ago most observers were ready to concede to the Liberals a clean sweep. They still obviously have the best chance. But what will happen in those constituencies where there are four or five candidates? Obviously in a five-candidate riding so small a vote as 21 per cent would be enough to elect a man if the remainder of the votes were evenly distributed.

Votes Versus Seats

Popular vote and the election of candidates are two different things. In Prince Edward Island the Conservatives secured 43 per cent of the popular vote—and did not elect a single member! Such an event is not so likely in a federal contest where the number of members are much larger and the issues differing widely in different parts of the country. Just the same, one of the newer parties might poll 10 per cent of the total vote cast and still not elect a single member.

Premier Bennett has been flooded with messages of congratulation about his radio addresses. He is far from being 'out.' But unless he can poll more votes than he did in 1930 he will be trimmed. There is a normally silent vote of three-quarters of a million to a million which is going to come out on October 14th, and it all depends on which scale that additional weight is placed. Whom are the young men and women going to support? That's another important question.

The Life of Mr. Stevens

A full-dress biography of Hon. H. H. Stevens is being released this week in instalments for the newspapers, thus bringing the Reconstructionist leader level with Mackenzie King, Bennett and Woodsworth in this respect. They have all had their 'lives' published within the past two years. Mr. Stevens' career in some respects is the most colorful and exciting of all, especially in the early passages.

The reaction on Parliament Hill to Premier Bennett's radio series was that he gained ground with some parts of it and lost ground in others. His resourcefulness and constructive ideas will win votes, but his return to the 1930 attitude about tariffs, money and capitalism will not help him much among the younger more radical elements. For every supporter he wins on such things as retirements at 60 he loses another. The mortgage companies and the private mortgage holders were alarmed at the proposal of a 'bankruptcy law' for the home buyer. The monetary reformers ahied at his 'loan council.' The bond-holders here and abroad were disturbed at the thought of a wholesale debt conversion. The western producers, hearing that the wheat farmer had had his costs guaranteed, wanted to know what would be done for them. All these things cut two ways.

Interesting News Items

Take Out the Weeds

Although modern seed cleaning machinery will do a great deal to take out weed seeds from grass and clover seed it will not make perfect separation in all cases. In fields for seed weeds should be taken out in the summer so as to make possible high grades and best prices. Such weeds as mustard, daisies, bladder campion, white cockle, and others classed as noxious should be removed during the summer so as to keep them out of seed crops and, what is just as important, keep them from seeding themselves down again.

Protecting Potatoes from Injury

It has been demonstrated convincingly that potatoes produced on wet land develop a tender skin and are more subject to injury when dug. Potatoes produced under such conditions, therefore, should be handled very carefully. While potatoes grown in dry soil are less liable to injury, they are often injured through the fact that this type of soil is not carried over the digger. To compensate this disadvantage, when elevator diggers are used sufficient soil should be taken up to prevent the tubers coming into direct contact with the moving parts of the machine.

The Market of Rubber Bees

Although honey stealing by bees is likely to be most troublesome in late summer, the beekeeper has to keep in mind that robber bees may start their racket at any time. In warm weather when there is little or no honey to be got from the flowers the bees will easily yield to any temptation to obtain it anyhow. After more or less fighting they will overpower any very weak colonies, and carry the honey to their own hives. Old robber bees have a shiny appearance, the hair having become worn off with entering so many different hives. No colony should be allowed to grow weak, says the Dominion apiarist, and no honey or syrup should be exposed in the apiary.

After Harvest Cultivation

After harvest cultivation is one of the most practical and most effective methods which the farmer can adopt to control weeds. If possible, the work should be undertaken with a view to preventing the ripening of the current year's seed as well as fighting a weakened root.

Heat, sunlight and dry weather will assist greatly in the control of weeds at this time. Experiments have proven and it has been the experience of many farmers throughout the province that the roots even of our most persistent weeds cannot stand heat and dryness when brought to the surface.

For the control of annual, winter annual and biennial weeds thorough cultivation of the stubble is recommended immediately after the crop has been removed, using the disc or cultivator. By following this method, seeds are brought near the surface where they sprout and may be killed by further cultivation. When this plan is followed and the soil is stirred up at regular intervals, millions of young plants will be killed and those which sprout late in the fall will be destroyed by early frosts. Many farmers skim plow immediately after the crop has been removed then harrow and cultivate at regular intervals until freeze up. By plowing shallow weed seeds are kept near the surface where they sprout and are killed by cultivation.

An abundance of moisture together with the methods outlined above will assist greatly in controlling such weed as Wild Mustard, Stinkweed, Ragweed, Worm Seed Mustard, False Flax Foxtail, Lambs' Quarters, Pigweed, Shepherd's Purse, etc.
