The bride was shopping for a veil—when the cloth was exhibited several different ways. "What is the name of that coat?" she inquired, indicating a machine. "That is the Belvidere," replied the cloth. The bride gave him a wistful glance. "And can you recommend the Belvidere?" she inquired icily.

"Mother—take that dress off right away!"

"Daughter—Why?"

"Mother—When you stand in the sun it can burn your body."
