GEORGETOWN'S Junior goalkeeper had only 20 goals scored against him in ten games, an average of two a game. This is a record for the league and one to be proud of. Burrows is the league's outstanding net-minder, and we wish him all kinds of luck in the play-offs.

TRANSPORTATION is becoming a serious matter with the Hockey Club, and anyone with a car who would volunteer to take the Juniors to Milton on Friday night, would be doing an act of public service which would be greatly appreciated. Call Harry Goldham, manager of the team, if you can go.

THE HALTON MIDGET League is producing some splendid hockey. The Redwings and Maroons appear to have the edge on the other two teams. Don't fail to see the double-header in this group when Milton plays here next Tuesday.

THE LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL hockey team has entered in a league with Acton, Milton and Erin, and the first game was played here on Tuesday afternoon. Georgetown took on the Acton team and won by the score of 9-1. In the first period Henry scored twice on passes from Beaumont and Boyle, while Early added another on a pass from Murphy. Henry also scored twice in the second frame on passes from the same players, with Early still adding another. In the final period Boyle bagged three, two of which were on passes from Beaumont and Henry. Savage counted the only Acton goal. Acton—Goal, Wright; defense, Hasard, Lamb, Cooney, Savage; forwards, Blow, Bilton, Holmes, Lambert, Masales, Agrew, Masales.

Georgetown—Goal, Clark; defense, King, Long, Early, Arnold; forwards, Beaumont, Henry, Boyle, Wilson, McCumber, Murphy.

IN THE MIDGET LEAGUE games last night, Canadiens won from the Maroons 3-2 and the Black Hawks and Bruins tied 3-3.

CANADA'S FASTEST GROWING SPORT ORGANIZATION — THE ONTARIO RURAL HOCKEY ASSOCIATION

Back in 1929-30 the Blair Hornets were the champions of the Waterloo County Rural Hockey League. The Embro team from the Rural League of South Oxford had won the championship of the league in that county. Lorne Johannes, of Blair, who was the founder of the Rural Hockey League, brought the two teams together and Blair won the deciding game. Mr. Johannes then decided that the game was not all it should have been because the two teams had played their local group under different rules. He called a meeting of representatives of all the rural groups that were then operating. The association was formed and Mr. Johannes was appointed secretary, which position he still holds. Meetings were held, a strong executive formed and they soon learned the problems of rural hockey.

Since the forming of the association a complete set of rules have been adopted to conform with the rules of the Ontario Hockey Association, and the rural association is affiliated with that body. It has often happened that "ringers" could be injected into play-off games, thus spoiling the idea of pure amateurism. The rules of the Rural Association are so strong on that point now that whole teams have been disqualified for using one ineligible player, and by adhering strictly to that rule the executive has been able to discourage the unfair practice. Each team, club and player must abide by the rules or else they go.

Last year there were over 100 teams connected with the association. Arena owners were loud in their praise of the rural hockeyists as drawing cards as nearly every game saw packed rinks as the rivalry is very keen all over the province.

The organization is not out to make money, it is a business simply to enter good clean hockey on an amateur standing and it has done more to promote that idea than any other association in existence in Ontario. There are three divisions, intermediate "A" and "B" up to 1000 population and senior for centres over 1000 population.

The Ontario Rural Hockey Association has as its slogan "Where real amateurs play for the fun of it." It means just that and nothing more. Those who don't like the idea are not wanted.

Here are some of the rules in vogue:
A player can play in only one team in one series in one season—Senior or Intermediate "A" or "B."
No release can be granted after a player has played his first league game of the current playing season.

Any player having signed an O.H.A. certificate for the current season will be barred from O.R.H. competition. Any player who has held a Senior O.H.A. or Professional Playing Card is debarred from competition in any series.

Players are signed in triplicate. Here are a few of the reasons why the players like playing in the Rural Association:

Because they know they will be matched against their equals and they do not fear some team putting on a few "ringers" for a crucial game.

They know that their disputes will be handled by men who are not in touch with local prejudices.

No member of the Executive can have anything to do with the settlement of any dispute raised by or affecting his own league.

The Rural Association gives the young fellow from the sparsely settled districts a chance to play in organized hockey which in turn may be the beginning of a great hockey career which could not be obtained in any other way.

Is there any reason why the Georgetown district could not sponsor a league in this Rural Hockey Association? Yes, we know it is too late to think about it this season, but it is worth giving a thought for another season. There are numerous villages in this neighborhood that could sponsor teams in this association, while not prepared to enter in the O.H.A. Georgetown, Hillsburg, Brampton and Inglewood are all prospects for another season to enter teams in an association that has such a fine motto: "Where real amateurs play for the fun of it."

"The Ottawa Spotlight"

By Spectator
Ottawa, February 8th—The debate on the Speech from the Throne which occupies several days at the beginning of every session, while not immediately productive of legislation, gives a panoramic picture of the economic and social conditions existing in the country. It lays before the people the difficulties which confront the people, and suggestions are advanced for their amelioration. Not that all the suggestions are very profitable. They too often bear the mark of a stilted political partisanship. But the speeches cover a wide field and from the ore of oratory which fills the pages of Hansard may be extracted a good deal of gold of sound common sense. It is the work of our leaders to smelt the gold and coin it into legislation for the good of the people.

This session Mr. Bennett started the ball rolling by making a general attack on the Speech from the Throne and on the record of the government. He criticized the ambiguous language of the Speech. With vigor and an occasional flash of satire he attacked the National Defence department for not maintaining secrecy about its defence of the Pacific coast; on the economic side he pointed to the change from a favorable to an adverse balance of trade with the United States. He found fault with the "political" nature of the administration of the committee in charge of Western rehabilitation and relief. He thought an independent committee should be in charge of this work.

On the very important question of the revision of the constitution Mr. Bennett thought the will of the people should be on amendments contemplated. He gave as an example the way constitutional changes are carried out in Australia. The government he said should have a policy for building up domestic markets to take up the recoil when international depression some foreign markets might be lost or decline in value. He charged that there was a great deal of electoral corruption rampant in Canada. On these and a number of other points he made out his brief against the government. He moved an amendment to the Speech from the Throne in which regret was expressed that the government have not taken or contemplated taking efficient measures to deal with unfavorable economic conditions in Canada and that no legislative action is proposed to deal effectively with the prevailing uncertainty and insecurity resulting from the inadequate incomes of large numbers of our people.

According to custom the prime minister replied to the attack of the leader of the opposition. In his speech Mr. King mentioned the pride he felt as a Canadian in hearing at the Coronation the oath of the King which recognized Canada's nationhood in regard to the amendment moved by the opposition leader. Mr. King said figures speak more eloquently than any speech from the Throne. Drought lessened the amount of wheat available for export and this accounted for the decline in recent exports of which Mr. Bennett complained. The total trade of 1937 was the highest since 1929. The balance of trade last year was 316 million dollars. Revenues had expanded, employment had greatly increased and the number of people on relief was much lower than in any year since the beginning of the depression. Relief camps have disappeared; over 26,000 young people have received training in various types of useful and profitable work. Large numbers of single unemployed have been placed on farms. Mr. King touched on differences of opinion which had arisen over the Shaw report on the marketing of agricultural products in Britain. The report has been in certain particulars revised. Referring to Mr. Bennett's expressed opinion that the discussion of constitutional amendments should be in the hands of a conference rather than a Royal Commission, Mr. King said the Rowell commission had been appointed not to change the constitution but to examine facts on economic, financial responsibilities, etc. "When it comes to a question of change this parliament," he said "and the provincial legislatures would have their full say."

In regard to the much discussed question of the export of power, Mr. King said the matter would be fully discussed in parliament and the question of policy "further and fully considered here."

Mr. Blackmore as leader of the third largest group in the house the Social Creditors continued the debate. He felt that a grave year was before Canada. There had been too much "jockeying for political advantage" in the speeches so far. There should be a spirit of cooperation in this trying time. The propaganda which has been going on in Alberta he said was "standing disgrace to the people of the Dominion." He pleaded for the cessation of shipments of metals used in armaments to Japan. In relation to the record of the government he felt they had done good work under the financial structure but the structure was "fundamentally wrong." The country would never solve its problems until the financial structure was changed.

Mr. Woodsworth spoke at some length on the inquiry of shipping war materials to Japan and on the apparent inflexibility of the constitution in the face of economic suffering. He was followed by a number of other speakers of all shades of politics.

A Sable Difference
Two doctors lived together; one a doctor of medicine, the other a doctor of divinity.
A caller, asking the servant if he might speak to the doctor, was asked:
"Do you mean the doctor who preaches or the doctor who practices?"
