Good Time at Olde Tyme Dance.

There was a large attendance at the olde tyme dance, held in the Parish Hall, Norval, last Wednesday night and everybody had a good time. Hull's Orchestra supplied splendid music while Wm. Anderson very ably performed the duties of floor manager. An ample supply of tasty refreshments were served during the evening. The Committee in charge was N. Robinson, W. Fiddler, W. R. Cromar, R. M. Morrison and G. Leslie.

Will Enforce By-law

There was a by-law passed by the Council of Georgetown some years ago prohibiting the riding of bicycles on sidewalks in town. There have been many complaints regarding cyclists using the walks and instances where pedestrians have had narrow escapes from being seriously injured. Chief Marshall has already warned several riders and it is his intention to strictly enforce the by-law. If you happen to get "pinched," boys and girls, don't say we didn't warn you.

Date Palm Rates First

Among Important Trees

The ten most important trees in the world, according to an official of the Society of American Foresters, are: 1, date palm; 2, coconut palm; 3, almond; 4, apple; 5, fig; 6, mulberry; 7, olive; 8, lemon; 9, cinchona; 10, rubber.

Unquestionably, the foremost families of trees are the palms. First in importance is the date palm. This tree is known to have been in cultivation for more than 4,000 years. It supplies the date of commerce, oil, wood and fiber.

The coconut palm, originated in the Malay archipelago and has been cultivated for at least 3,000 years. Its chief products are the coconut and its kernel, which when dried produces copra, a product valuable in the manufacture of commercial fertilizers.

The almond, probably originated in western Asia and the Mediterranean region. The almond is mentioned in the works of Theophrastus, a naturalist of the Third century B. C.

The apple produces one of the leading fruits of the world. It is the most important in North America and probably in the entire north temperate zone. It was known in prehistoric times.

The fig tree grew originally in southern Asia and Europe, whence it has been introduced into other subtropical lands. In America, the fig is grown in the Gulf states and in California.

The white mulberry is native to India and Mongolia. It has been grown in China since ancient times for its leaves, the chief food of the silkworm.

The olive tree is mentioned prominently in Homer's "Odyssey."

The lemon tree originated in India. The lemon has been cultivated for some 2,500 years.

The cinchona of Peru and Bolivia is the source of quinine. It was introduced in Europe in 1639.

Although under cultivation for less than 100 years, and extensively grown for less than 40 years, the rubber tree is among the most important in our civilization.

Cactus Family of Dwarf and Mammoth Varieties

The cactus family is one of extremes in many ways. Some are a half-inch high and others reach skyward more than 60 feet. A tiny mammillaria may weigh a quarter of an ounce while its neighboring giant cereus weighs several tons. Some are as bare and smooth as an apple while others have forbidding, strong spines.

Extremely small flowers an eighth of an inch across are all some cacti can present when in full bloom, says a writer in the Los Angeles Times. Contrast with these the varieties that bear blossoms 16 inches long and are as wide across the mouth. These great blooms are not without color, for many are of brilliant scarlet, others white and in every shade of pink, yellow and on into orange and bronze. The color range is great, and the flowers, for satiny texture, are unsurpassed. Water lilies are their nearest rivals in spectacular effect but the lilies are hard, cold and unwhimsical compared with the dainty finish and delicate fragrance of cactus flowers.

The Americas claim the great cactus family as their very own, no cactus being native elsewhere. While it's true that a few plants of the tiny straw-like mistletoe cactus are found on trees in South Africa, they are believed to have been transported by birds or a similar agency.

Offerings to Moon

The day of the full moon in Japan is a great day for the poets, real or fancied, as well as for those at all mindful of ancient usage. A temporary altar is placed on the veranda or where the moon is likely to shine, laden with offerings to the moon, beans, cucumbers, chestnuts, persimmons, as well as 15 white dumplings made of rice, symbolic of the fifteen-night moon.

Gas Used in 1859

Gas had first been used for cooking in 1850 when an English chef conceived the idea of roasting an ox by projecting gas flames through holes punched in a sheet of tin. However, the gas range was not used extensively in the United States until 1859 and there was still much interest in the gas stoves at the Centennial exposition in Philadelphia in 1876.

Best Words to Indicate Letters

Very Little Pure Iron

There is very little pure iron as such in nature. Ore is really a sort of rust-iron oxide. Burn out the oxygen in the form of this oxide and we have iron. Unfortunately, the ore is combined with other elements besides oxygen. There are carbonates, silica and alumina, the chief components of ordinary clay.
