Many Orangemen Paraded in Georgetown Yesterday

Halt and Wellington County Lodges Celebrated Glorious Twelfth Here—Mayor Gibbons Gives Address of Welcome—Other Speakers M.W. Bro. Hassard, K.C., Toronto, Rev. Bro. Cameron, Bronte, and Lloyd Dingle.

Wm. Gilman Oldest Man in Orange Parade

To the sound of life and drum many Halt and Wellington County Orangemen attended the glorious Twelfth celebration of the Battle of the Boyne held in Georgetown yesterday, under the auspices of Glen Williams L.O.L. No. 346. Although the attendance was not as large as was expected, due to numerous celebrations in adjoining towns, the spirit of Orangemism was more than made up for by the parade which took place at 10 o'clock a long line of marchers paraded the main streets of the town, afterwards assembling at the park where a program of speeches and sports took place.

Among the lodges and bands in the order of parade were:

- Flag Bearer—Bro. Geo. Bluck, Glen Williams.
- Guelph Juvenile Orange Flute Band.
- Guelph Loyal True Blue Lodge.
- Acton L.O.L. No. 161.
- Glen Williams Pipe and Drum Band.
- Glen Williams L.O.L. No. 346.
- Halt's Pride L.T.B. Lodge No. 393, Georgetown.
- Georgetown L.O.L. No. 245.
- Stewarttown Pipe and Drum Band.
- Stewarttown L.O.L. No. 68.
- Milton L.O.L. No. 2385.
- Bronte L.O.L. No. 257.
- Carlisle L.O.L. No. 358.
- Campbellville L.O.L. Georgetown.
- Horby L.O.L. No. 165.
- Glen Williams L.O.L. No. 346.

Keynote of speeches made was the Prime Minister's reply to the British Government's request to be allowed to establish aviation training bases in Canada; election of Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion as Conservative Leader, and the alleged domination of Quebec Roman Catholicism on the rest of the Dominion. Under blue skies which favored the Orange celebration here, speakers exhorted their listeners to keep Protestantism to the forefront and to resist with all their strength all attempts to undermine Canada's loyalty to the Crown.

Lloyd Dingle, barrister, Burlington, acted as chairman for the speaking, and after a few introductory remarks, called on His Worship Mayor Joseph Gibbons who officially welcomed the Orange Lodge visitors to the town, and delivered the following address:—
"Mr. Chairman distinguished members of the Orange Order, ladies and gentlemen:—
"The privilege of addressing a few words of welcome, the opportunity to meet and greet members of the Loyal Orange Order and to present to you the freedom of the Town of Georgetown, is one of the most pleasant public duties that has been assigned to me in recent years.
"May I call to your attention, that seldom, if ever, is it the privilege for one of my faith to officiate on an occasion such as this. May I point out to you that I am proud to call my friends, men who have been staunch members of the Orange Order all their lives and at the same time have been good and kind to me throughout my private and public life, and I take this opportunity to publicly thank them for it.
"You are assembled here today for the special purpose of hearing distinguished members of the Orange Order, who no doubt will deliver able addresses on questions of particular interest to all Orangemen throughout this great province of Ontario, and it is my desire to congratulate the committee in charge for obtaining those outstanding men, and also the splendid sports program they have arranged. They have also provided an opportunity for the members of the Loyal Orange Order throughout this district to renew and maintain friendships and acquaintances of the past, to establish true and genuine friendships for the future and also to create a spirit of friendship, kindness and good-will among the members of the various lodges in the community in which you live.
"Therefore, ladies and gentlemen on behalf of the members of Loyal Orange Lodge No. 346, Glen Williams, your hosts at this celebration, on behalf of my colleagues in Council and citizens generally of this municipality I am grateful for this privilege; it is a pleasure for me, indeed, to welcome you, ladies and gentlemen, all visiting Orangemen, to the Town of Georgetown today."
Other speakers were Rev. Bro. John Cameron of Bronte Lodge, and Most Worshipful Bro. A. R. Hassard, K.C., past master of Queen City Lodge, Toronto. Mr. Cameron presented the religious principles of Orangemism to the audience, and stated that if every Orangeman lived up to the principles set down in the constitution, he would not only be a better Orangeman, but a better citizen in this country. He said that Orangemism must fight to maintain the "open Bible" as did their forefathers, as there were forces at work in Canada today ready to destroy this right of every citizen. "The principles of the Orange Lodge are no surrender, and 'one church, one school and one God'; love thy neighbor and equal right to all and special privileges to none."
Most Worshipful Bro. A. R. Hassard, who was the chief speaker and put their order was by nature and purpose constructive and not destructive. Criticism voiced by its members is not intended to hurt others. It is criticism demanded by conditions as they are and the order has no choice but to offer it. The fervent hope that the new Conservative leader, Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, might prove as impartial as his predecessor, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was expressed by Mr. Hassard. "A man who is a Roman Catholic has been chosen to lead a great political party throughout Canada," he said. "Knowing human nature as it is, can we depend on him, in critical junctures, holding the balance evenly for both great religious sects in Canada? A Manion may not be a Laurier, but if he should prove to be one of our highest wishes will be gratified. We hope our fears will be dispelled," Mr. Hassard declared.

The oldest Orangeman in the parade was Wm. Gilman, Glen Williams, and he was the recipient of a beautiful walking stick.

The George Hillier Memorial cup for the best dressed and largest Orange Lodge went to Acton Lodge. Other prizes were won by: Best dressed L.O.B.A. Lodge, Guelph; best dressed Juvenile Lodge, Glen Williams; best pipe and drum band, Stewarttown; best Orange banner, Georgetown L.O.L.; best juvenile pipe and drum band, Guelph.

A program of sports was run off during the afternoon, and in the evening a dance concluded the celebration. Johnny Waldon's orchestra of Guelph supplied the music.

In charge of the demonstration were Fred W. Norton, chairman; G. Inglis, Roy Norton, Fred Conn, Thos. Owen, Thos. Norton, Verne Kirroy, Geo. Bluck, William Pearson and F. Wood, to whom the success of the day's program is largely attributed.

200 Attend Jersey Breeders' Picnic

ADDRESS GIVEN BY CHARLES MEEK, TROLIO MILK CONTROL BOARD

Two hundred Jersey cattle enthusiasts attended the annual picnic of the Jersey Breeders' Association, held at Lindsay Brothers' farm, near Hornby on Saturday last. York and Ontario counties were also represented.

The day's program was directed by Mr. Ward Russell, of Georgetown, president of the Association, and Agricultural Representative, J. E. Whitlock of Milton. Messrs M. Cockburn and C. D. Graham, agricultural representatives of York and Peel also assisted.

On the program was a cattle grading competition at which Mr. James Bremner of Toronto, secretary Canadian Jersey Cattle Club, acted as Judge. Sports and speaking also had their part on the afternoon's program.

During his address, Charles Meek, Trolio, chairman Ontario Milk Control Board, said: "Between what we are drinking and what they should drink, there is a great difference. Milk producer should cooperate to ease the 'surplus milk problem' and to increase consumption."

"The Milk Control Board asks the co-operation of distributors and producers toward stabilizing the milk industry," the speaker stated. "The milk industry is a big employer—a bigger employer of men than the automobile industry."

"The production standpoint, the milk supply today is good," he said. "We now have sanitary dairies and methods. But survey shows clearly there is not nearly the amount of milk consumed that nutrition experts advise. Something must be done to increase the demand for milk. Tea industries have increased consumption millions of pounds a year, because of wide advertising."

George Kelly Goes to Jail For Creamery Theft Here

Sentenced at Milton on Monday by Judge W. N. Munro

CHARGE AGAINST SLATER IS DISMISSED

"This has been one of the most difficult cases over which I've had to make up my mind," Judge W. N. Munro remarked in county criminal court at Milton on Monday. He sentenced George Kelly, 24, of North Bay, to 18 months determinate and six months indeterminate in the Ontario reformatory on charges of car theft and breaking and entering with theft, and acquitted Vernon Slater, 25 of Vancouver. Slater was charged as an accessory on both counts.

"I must admit," said Crown Attorney W. I. Dick, "that this is the first case in my experience where accused made up their 'snowballs' before being charged. It's unique so far as I'm concerned."

Kelly pleaded guilty to both counts. Slater pleaded not guilty.

Kelly admitted breaking and entering the Georgetown Creamery owned by M. Saxe, and stealing $28 worth of cigarettes and tobacco. He also admitted theft of the car of Albert Livingstone, Georgetown, in which the crown alleged the two made their "getaway."

Slater claimed he was hitch-hiking from Barrie to Alliston on the day of the robbery, arriving at Alliston early in the evening. "I wandered the streets until 10 o'clock," he said. "I walked to the railroad tracks but didn't see a box car. I decided to stay overnight in the shed."

"Early in the morning," he testified, "someone woke me up. It was George Kelly, whom I hadn't seen since 1935. Kelly told me he had been mixed up in a street fight in Alliston and said that if anyone asked me about it, he had travelled from Barrie with me. I didn't want to do it, but he mentioned he had helped me in 1935 and I couldn't refuse."

"When police arrested me," Slater said, "I lied to them about Kelly. I knew they suspected Kelly of stealing a car but I didn't think he had done a thing like that. Accused told the crown that his previous statement to the effect that Kelly had accompanied him to Barrie was not true. He had hitch-hiked alone."

"I told you I was in a street fight in Alliston when I woke you in the lumber shed and I asked you to stand by me, which you did," Kelly stated on behalf of Slater, who was without counsel.

"I have Slater two weeks' parole in North Bay three years ago—that's why he helped me," Kelly explained to the court. "He's not a criminal, he's just a working man."

Georgetown Veterans Attend Dedication

Veterans Burial Plot Set Aside by Caledon Council at Milton

Two hundred war veterans from Acton, Milton, Brampton, Georgetown, Fergus and Orangeville on Sunday dedicated the new burial plot in the Acton cemetery which Caledon township council set aside for the burial of war veterans.

The plot which is perpetually cared for is surrounded by a large flag staff, and as the words of dedication were pronounced, the flag which had been flying at half mast, was raised to the top of the staff. Rev. A. V. Ventum, pastor of Knox United Church, Caledon, himself a war veteran, conducted the dedication.

Music was furnished by the Brampton Salvation Army band, and the Peel Royal life and drum band of Acton.

Following the dedication ex-servicemen marched past the town hall where Arthur Hornsey, of Brampton, representing zone 26, Canadian Legion, took the salute. Also on the reviewing stand were Nelson, Sister Blanche Grieve, Georgetown; Capt. J. M. Macdonald, Acton, and Lieut.-Col. G. O. Brown, Georgetown.

CHAS. RUDDY TIPS OFF POLICE IN $40,000 GOLD THEFT IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

A three-week search for $40,000 worth of gold concentrates stolen from the Dome Mine at South Porcupine ended last week with the capture of Otto Fabbro in a tourist cabin at Lowell Lake in the Timagami forest reserve. Another man, Nick West, surrendered to police officers.

It was a tip from Mr. Charles Ruddy which first put police on the trail of the men, and after a search of the cabin the concentrates were found. Mr. Ruddy has already filed claim for the $5,000 reward which was offered for the recovery of the gold.

Because both Fabbro and West had considerable money on them at the time of their arrest with the gold concentrates, police have expressed the opinion the men were merely the "tools" of an organized gang and that West and Fabbro were financially backed by the ring. Police are conducting an intensive search for other participants in the robbery and the officers expect that within a short while the mystery will be cleared up. The stolen gold concentrates were discovered inside the seat cushions and in the roof of the car used by the accused men.

The Sandbury Star of July 8th carried the above item, also pictures of Lowell Camp, owned and operated by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Ruddy, formerly of Georgetown.

Hon. R. J. Manion New Leader of the National Conservative Party

Won on Second Ballot Over W. A. MacPherson of Saskatchewan—Hon. R. B. Bennett, Retiring Chief of His Party, Presented with Portrait of Himself.

By Spectator

Ottawa, July 12th—The National Conservative party has closed its historic convention in the capital and its delegates from all quarters of Canada have left again for their homes. The outstanding feature of the convention was the appointment of Doctor R. J. Manion to the leadership of the party, to succeed Mr. R. B. Bennett, who guided the destinies of the Conservatives for the past eleven years.

Dr. Manion won on the second ballot with a vote of 830, second in the running being W. A. MacPherson of Saskatchewan with 648 followed by Joseph Harris and Denton Massey both with 49 votes. In the first vote Manion received 726 votes, MacPherson 475, Harris 131, Massey 128 and Earl Lawson, who retired at once from the contest 101. The Province of Quebec solidly supported Manion.

The new leader of the National Conservative party, this is now the official title of the party, practised as a surgeon in Fort William, served in the Great War where he received the Military Cross at Vimy Ridge, was the minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment in 1921. Postmaster General in 1926 and was minister of Railways and Canals in the Bennett regime from 1930 to 1935. He is possessed of a charming personality, has the ability to make friends, has a full complement of courage, and is brilliant and lively in debate. He was considered a competent administrator of a governmental department. As to his powers of leadership, the wheel of fortune has given him now the opportunity to put these powers to a searching test, and the record will be written from the present hour. Dr. Manion takes over the command of his party with the enthusiastic good wishes and high hopes of his friends, and subject to the limitations which are set by party interests the good will of his political foes as well.

The resolutions my consultation and cooperation with other members of the Commonwealth. They oppose railway amalgamation or unification of other forms of railway monopoly. They favor the institution of an employment insurance and retirement scheme. They are also in favor of the exclusion of Oriental immigration and the resumption of immigration from the United Kingdom, Ireland and from France when economic conditions warrant. The party will not take a stand on the question of amending the British North America Act until the Rowell Commission on Dominion-Provincial Relations has brought in its report. "This party," stated one resolution, reaffirms its fiscal stand of the Conservatives "declares its continued adherence to its traditional policy of fostering and sustaining by fiscal protection Canadian labor and Canadian industry especially the primary industries of agriculture, fishing, forestry and mining." The resolutions pledge the party to aid and encourage agriculture by preserving the home market for the Canadian farmer, by preserving the benefits already attained through the Empire trade agreements, by restoring and putting into full operation the Canadian Wheat Board Act of 1935, and in other ways. The interests of Canada can best be served say the resolutions, by enlarging the markets in the United Kingdom and other British Dominions. Trade agreements with other nations are so favored, but on a basis which will not impair the benefits of the Imperial pacts. To cope with the important problem of unemployment, the platform endorses a comprehensive plan of public works, a self-liquidating housing programme, and a non-partisan department of the government to administer relief.

In such a large gathering, with delegates from all sections of the country representing the varied interests and points of view of the wide Dominion, differences of opinion arose on some questions before the convention. When it came to a policy of defence, a representative from Montreal offered an amendment to the proposed resolution. The amendment asked that a referendum should be taken before any troops should be sent from Canadian shores. This amendment was defeated by a standing vote, the majority of Quebec delegates, and some others voting in its favor.

Mr. W. D. Herridge, apostle of monetary reform, injected a sharp protest into the convention proceedings. He claimed that the platform proposed by a standing vote, the needs of the times, the task of democratic government, he said, was to raise the purchasing power of the people to the potential level of productive capacity and only in that way could economic security be achieved. This of course involved a measure of government planning and control of the economic and monetary systems. Mr. Herridge's amendment to the financial resolution which called for a "sane monetary policy" was defeated. The convention committee's resolution, which passed by an overwhelming chorus of "ayes" included within the sane monetary policy, the elimination of duplication in taxation and urged economy in government services.

On the main proceedings of the Convention were characterized by a cordial unanimity of outlook, a sincere desire for a better understanding in all sections of the community and an aim for a stronger spirit of unity in the country.

In the proceedings Mr. Bennett, the retiring chief of his party, and for a five year period Prime Minister of Canada, was presented with a portrait of himself. The portrait was unveiled on the platform of the convention before the throng of delegates in the coliseum. Mr. Bennett, relinquishing the high office which he has held for eleven years, delivered an address which in force and scope was an impressive gesture of farewell.

Mrs. Agnes Young of Ballinafad Nears 106th Birthday

HAS VIVID MEMORY OF EVENTS NEARLY CENTURY AGO

Memories of events that happened a hundred years ago are bright in the mind of Mrs. Agnes Young, Ballinafad, who is within a month and a half of her 106th birthday, which will be celebrated on September 1st. Mrs. Young still has a surprisingly keen memory, but the pictures that form in her mind are clearer when they deal with the things that happened when she was a girl. Her hearing is still quite good, but she is no longer able to read to herself. She spends much of her time in bed, but usually gets up for a little time each day, when she receives callers.

She was born five years before Queen Victoria ascended the throne, and remembers the talk of the day about the girl Queen who was to rule England for so long. At the same time the country was being stirred by the Mackenzie Rebellion, and that event she recalls, because her father hid his shotgun, lest the rebels, with whom he had little sympathy, should seize it.

Mrs. Young was the daughter of James Smith, a pioneer who came from Scotland and settled on the fifth line west of Oshingoussy Township, near Rockside. He got a hundred acres from the Crown, but when he died he had acquired three hundred more. Buying land surrounding that which he had first been granted.

Her first schooling was received in a frame building over the Caledon line. With the other little ones she sat on a form, while the bigger scholars, some of them grown men and women who obtained most of their somewhat sketchy education during the winter months, sat on seats facing the wall and drawn up before desks nailed against the walls. Master Armstrong, a fine teacher, she recalls, marched up and down in the centre of the room.

The sweeping of the barns for the infrequent religious services is another of her recollections, and the placing of the heavy timbers on blocks of wood, to serve as pews for congregations that assembled from miles of woody farms. Most of the church-going was to the "White Church" on the fourth line of Caledon township, one of the oldest Presbyterian churches of Peel County. There the worshippers sat on forms in the old days, sang at the head of pews, and enjoyed or endured, as they were so inclined, the long sermons of the time. In the little cemetery just outside the church lie her parents and sisters.

Mrs. Young can close her eyes and see the patient teams of oxen tugging away at the big trees just felled by the pioneers' axes. She declares that nothing could have taken the place of the animals, who knew just where to plant their feet, when

The Parking Problem

The parking problem in Georgetown's business section is becoming acute. More and more shoppers are finding Georgetown a better place in which to shop, and as a result more cars have to be parked. Early in the evening, almost every Wednesday and Saturday night, every available parking space is utilized, streets are filled adjoining the main thoroughfares, and corners are made obscure by cars parked right up to where the curb bends. Usually too, there are several cars parked double, making it difficult for traffic to get through although Night Constable Emmerson is making a good job in trying to keep these cars moving.

On Saturday nights the traffic problem is even worse, but we seem to reach Sunday morning unscathed. It must be due to the caution of the accident-conscious motorists rather than to the allotted space, that there are not accidents. What is sorely needed is a parking lot near the business section. Mr. Tyers, of Tyers' Creamery, and Mr. Fred Sinclair, of White Rose Service Station, have both offered their extra space for parking on these nights, but this does not seem adequate. More space is needed.

On the main proceedings of the Convention were characterized by a cordial unanimity of outlook, a sincere desire for a better understanding in all sections of the community and an aim for a stronger spirit of unity in the country.
