ONTARIO PLANS JOB INSURANCE

Ontario's plan to inaugurate unemployment insurance without waiting or clearance of the obstacles to a national scheme, may be widened to embrace one or more of the other provinces.

In a cautious amplification of his preliminary announcement, Mr. Heenan advanced the hope that "more than one province will join with us in establishing unemployment insurance in Canada."

The labor minister, recently appointed to succeed the late Hon. M. McBride, declined to specify what province might collaborate but proximity as well as political harmony suggests Quebec as a probable source of co-operation.

Mr. Heenan has now urged Mr. Heenan, the latter reveals, to go ahead with the necessary preparations and implement the recorded intention of the government.

Judgment of County Councils is Sound

Cattle from T.B. Free Areas in Ontario Can be Exported to U.S. Freely While Others Must Pass Through Rigging Does Not Include Cattle for Immediate Slaughter.

The judgment of the majority of county councils in Ontario in supporting the Live Stock Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture in its efforts to have every county in Ontario made a T.B. restricted area for cattle has proven sound in view of the recent action taken by the United States Department of Agriculture governing cattle being shipped to that country.

These regulations in substance state all Canadian cattle being exported to the U.S.A. other than those for immediate slaughter, must have a qualified veterinarian's certificate showing they have been tested within 30 days of date of shipment and found free of bovine tuberculosis.

The reason given by American officials for the new law is that practically all United States cattle are tested and they wish to maintain this status and keep T.B. out of their herds.

This new ruling will probably require the testing of 100,000 Canadian cattle annually sent to the U.S. for feeding purposes.

MRS. AGNES YOUNG OF BALLINAFAD NEARS 106th BIRTHDAY to haul, when to pause, and how to let their drivers know that the load was not properly traced.

Logging supplies within her memory when the tables built beneath the huge pile of substantial food. Eggs were then eight cents a dozen, currants six cents a pound, butter ten cents and sugar four and five cents.

It was easy enough to get up a feast in those days," she smiles.

When she was a young girl Mrs. Young went to Toronto, and engaged with a Mrs. Lyons as a seamstress. There, with 30 other girls, she sewed for "the quality," a strange episode of her life in the city was that much of her work was done for a daughter of William Lyon Mackenzie, an invalid confined in one of the Toronto hospitals.

One of her most treasured possessions is a gold brooch, given her by her husband on their wedding day. She smiles quietly to herself as she exhibits the jewelry, and admits that they were as up to date as any of the young folks of today, with the "gift of the groom to the bride." Her wedding dress, she remembers, was of word and silk a very fancy gown for the time, but she cannot remember how it was made.

Mrs. Young went to Ballinafad on her marriage, attended Burns' Presbyterian Church, Erin, for many years, and made herself a host of friends who help to pass the time for her now that she has passed the century mark, and is no longer as active as she would like to be.—Toronto Evening Telegram.

Women's Missionary Society

The members and friends of the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church enjoyed the great privilege last week, of holding their July meeting in the beautiful grounds of Cedarvale School, as guests of Miss Oliver, and her staff.

In her address, which formed the main item of the program, Miss Oliver reviewed the history of the school since its establishment ten years ago, and told of the purpose of her work to provide in this school-home the type of Christian education which its founders conceived to be the right of every child in every home of our fair land.

That this purpose is being accomplished in a very wonderful way, was very evident to the guests who later were conducted by Miss Oliver and some of the pupils, through the buildings. The chief interest of the tour centering in the new wing completed last October. This had been provided for through the generosity of the Industrial School Association of Toronto and other interested friends of Children's Aid work.

METHOD OF CONTROL FOR GARDEN SLUGS

Garden slugs are frequently numerous on heavy land where they do considerable damage to beans, lettuce, cabbage, cauliflowers and similar crops. Like other pests, slugs can be more easily controlled if remedial measures are applied when the animals are small and few in number.

to cover the upper and lower surfaces of the leaves and the soil immediately surrounding the plants. Hydrated lime is effective only when in the form of a light, dry powder.

Lime becomes hard when subjected to moisture and in that condition is non-injurious to the slugs. For this reason, a few light applications of lime at intervals of three or four days are much more effective than one heavy dose.
