

Glanders, Horse Disease, Is Communicable to Man

Few equine diseases are communicable to man. Glanders is the most common one. Extensive outbreaks occurred in the great armies of the Eighteenth and Nineteenth centuries when, for the sake of a horse, a kingdom might be lost, or won. Glanders is characterized by ulcers in the nose, which sometimes spread to the lungs or intestines. To humans it may be deadly, though in horses it tends to become chronic and not necessarily fatal, according to Victor G. Heiser, M. D., in Collier's Weekly.

Another disease the horse shares with man is anthrax, although cattle and sheep are far more subject to it. Direct contact is the only method of transmitting anthrax. But once the soil where the animals have pastured is infected, it may remain so for years unless prompt steps are taken.

In human anthrax begins as an inflamed pimple with a hard center and a gradually extending red zone of inflammation around it. The enormous carbuncle, burning like a little coal, as the Greek derivation of its name implies, extends into the deeper structure below the skin, far into the connective tissue. The patient is simply overwhelmed by the poisons and the high fever. Farmer George Washington, at the beginning of his first term, developed one of these on his leg and we almost lost our first President.

Anthrax has the distinction of being the first bacillus to be definitely associated with the cause of a specific disease. It is easily stained and, because of its great size, was also one of the first in which the great Koch recognized the reproductive spores, the little nucleoli inside the bacilli plainly visible under the microscope. These spores will remain alive for several years in a dry condition; hence anthrax may be conveyed to human beings in all industries using hair or hides.

Pekingese Dog Favorite of the Chinese Rulers

One of China's three contributions to the dog fancy is the haughty-looking Pekingese. This waddling little "lion," as a dog is known in that land in one that has been 100 per cent pure-bred throughout the centuries, writes George Butz in the Philadelphia Inquirer.

Pekes were the coveted court dogs in the regimes of Chinese emperors. They were once the pampered pets of the mandarins, and perhaps that is the reason of their aristocratic expression. Chows and pugs are the other two dogs which originated in China.

The Peke's luminous eyes, set far apart upon his broad skull, serve as a mask of his real disposition. He is a jolly fellow and faithful. Because of his diminutive size the Peke has sometimes been wrongly called delicate. However, he is not by many miles, because he is one of the sturdiest of toy dogs.

Pekes are active, they are strong for their size and would this dog be larger he would be fitted for police work. The Peke has a massive coat for a small dog. The frill of soft hair around his collar suggests a lion. In fact, in his native China, the dog has been called the little "lion dog." That was probably due to the fighting heart of the dog. Pekingese were first imported to England from their native land.

Beagles "Singers" of Dogdom

Beagles are the "singers" of dogdom. These merry little dogs are virtually vest pocket editions of a foxhound. Their main forte is trailing and being equipped with a good scenting nose, they are used to seek the fast flying "Br'r Rabbit." Just as soon as a Beagle gets "on the line" of a cottontail, notes a writer in the Philadelphia Inquirer, he broadcasts his joy of the hunt with a throaty call, which devoted admirers of the hound describe as "clear as a bell." The Beagle is built on compact lines. He is a durable little fellow and will hunt tirelessly over a long period. Although the Beagle is equipped with short running gear, his legs are strong. Due to his short coat of varied white, black and tan hues, he can penetrate thick brush in trailing a rabbit.

Piccolo, Old Instrument

A German invention, the piccolo is just about 400 years old. But its ancestry goes much further back. For, as the name indicates, it's a "little flute," and flutes were probably the first musical instruments. Flutes were popular in ancient Greece, where, legend has it, they were invented by Athena, goddess of wisdom. The story goes that Athena threw her creation away after seeing in a stream how her face was distorted while playing. But the flute came back when another god, Marsyas, found it and became proficient at it.

Bamboo Arithmetic

Japanese arithmetic is done by boys and girls in school on a kind of slate made of bamboo rods. Numbers are represented by colored beads which easily slip back and forth as one counts. Writing letters and numbers are made with a fat brush and black paint. The brush has a fine point for delicate parts of letters and much practice is needed to make the alphabet with its intricate design.

ARMS USELESS ON A WET DAY

Rheumatic Pains Relieved by Kruschen

Here is a noteworthy instance of the manner in which damp weather can affect the joints of one who is subject to rheumatic pains. "I had been suffering from rheumatism very badly," a man writes, "and had such pains in my joints that I could hardly bear it, on a wet day especially. It pained me terribly to use my arms, and I was hardly able to work. I tried two different remedies, but I was still as bad after the treatment.

"Then I was told to try Kruschen Salts, which quickly brought relief. So of course I have kept on with it, and I am now much better and have never felt so fit for years. I used to feel so miserable and sluggish, but now it is a pleasure to be able to work."—S.B.

The pains and stiffness of rheumatism are often caused by uric acid crystals in the muscles and joints. The numerous salts in Kruschen assist in stimulating the internal organs to healthy, regular activity, and help them to eliminate excess uric acid.

YOUR NEIGHBORHOOD DRUGGIST

By R. D. Bruce
We look upon the pharmacist and his pharmacy in a light different from that of any other profession or institution. We have grown to expect a service in a drug store that we do not ask or expect from any other institution. We look upon the pharmacist as a public servant.

How many times have you passed by all other places to ask a question or obtain a service of obligation from a pharmacist? You feel that it is your privilege to do so.

But what about the pharmacist? He meets you at all times at his counter, ready and eager to render to you his service even though it be a service at a loss to him. He stocks his shelves with many things far removed from medicine, not alone because of economic pressure, but because of your demand for this added service—the feeling that the pharmacist and his shop are yours to command has given rise in the minds of some people to the idea that the pharmacist is only a semi-professional man. That idea, the pharmacist, quite naturally resent.

Remember, he is a trained man with wide of profession. One who in college has studied extensively in chemistry, toxicology, physiology, Latin and many other subjects. In addition to his college training, each pharmacist serves a long apprenticeship, and finally undergoes a rigorous examination.

It is the pharmacist himself who has demanded high academic qualifications for entrance into his profession. The pharmacist stands as a safeguard to your health and life. He must know the purity and potency of every ingredient he uses. He must know the action on the body of each medication that he dispenses. He must know that the amounts prescribed by the physician are the correct ones.

Legally, and morally, he shares a responsibility as great as the physician's. He must not fail the public. Your very lives are in his hands. The pharmacist does not fail the trust imposed upon him. He has the confidence of the public. He is entitled to your support and your goodwill.—Canadian Pharmaceutical Journal.

SCHOOL SNACKS

Balance your "school snacks." Milk vegetables and fruits should be used regularly in school lunches. They serve as a balance to the heavier foods that are always essential. Place an orange in the lunch basket. And try one of the following—packed in a proper container that will keep it neat and attractive.

Orange and Peach Salad
5 or 6 orange segments
1/2 large peach, sliced
Alternate orange segments and peach slices. Garnish with four walnut halves.

Lemon Chicken Pudding
(Serves 5 - 8)
5 tablespoons flour
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons butter
Cream and add,
3 egg yolks, beaten
1/4 cup lemon juice
1 cup milk

Fold in:
3 egg whites, stiffly
Bake in individual custard cups, set in a pan of warm water. Bake 35 minutes in oven (360 to 375 degrees F.). Will form a cake top with a layer of custard below.

THE UNUSUAL IN DESSERTS

Women are delighted with the unusual in desserts—particularly when these desserts may be made up quickly and economically. Here are two recipes that will be labelled "Special" in your recipe file, if you will try them once:

Chocolate Coconut Ice Cream
1 package chocolate arrowroot pudding
2 cups milk
1/2 cup granulated sugar
1/2 cup coconut, toasted
1 cup cream, whipped
Mix chocolate arrowroot pudding with milk; bring to boil, stirring constantly. Remove from fire; add sugar. Cool slightly; pour into refrigerator freezing tray to chill. Let freeze about 1 hour or until thick but not hard. Spread coconut in thin layer in pan or baking sheet. Place in hot oven at 400 degrees F. Toast until coconut is golden brown, stirring frequently and being careful not to burn. Cool and fold in with whipped cream. Freeze quickly 3 to 4 hours. Makes about 1 quart.

Coffee Baked Custard
3 eggs
3 tablespoons sugar
few grains salt
1 cup milk
1 cup strong dated coffee
Beat eggs slightly. Add sugar and salt. Add milk and coffee. Pour into greased baking dish or individual cups. Place in pan containing warm water about one-inch deep. Bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees F. about one hour, or until firm. 6 servings.

WHAT HE WENT FOR

A clergyman, who had failed to gain the confidence and esteem of his flock, was giving his farewell sermon.

He stated: "My dear friends, — It is clear God does not love you, for I have not buried any of you. It is equally clear that you do not love one another, for I have not married any of you. It is painfully clear that you do not love me, for you have not paid me my last quarter's salary. I shall, however, be independent of you in future, as I go to take the position of chaplain at a convict prison." He then calmly gave out his text: "I go to prepare a place for you."

Inconsistent

"What's the matter?" asked a colleague of the advertising manager. "Matter enough. The Toole has placed Madam Sourno's testimonial for a cold cure next to the announcement that she had a sore throat and couldn't sing!"

Mrs. Dasher—When we were in Egypt we visited the pyramids. Some of the stones were literally covered with hieroglyphics.

Mrs. Gunter—I hope none of them got on you. They say some of those foreign insects are terrible.
