Christmas In The New Home
 "THE first Christmas in our new home," Janice Wray announced joyously as she stepped across the threshold of Stewart's and her new home. "Christmas in our new home," Stewart echoed, switching on the light. "Oh, isn't it just grand!" exclaimed Janice. "I'll say it is—but slow up—slow up, Janice! I've got about all my arms will hold, without taking you aboard," Stewart warned her as Janice attempted to throw her arms about him. "Oh, keep quiet! You're just as excited as I am—so why pretend?" Janice answered with a toss of her head. Stewart put his packages down and then with his arms around her he assured her. "You bet I am, Honey. I think it is wonderful! Stupid because they were so happy, they both laughed. "Come on—let's get busy with the tree," Stewart suggested. "Right!" agreed Janice, "just as soon as I change my dress." The tree must be neither too large nor too small. Some time had been consumed deciding just the proper size for a Christmas tree for two. They were to be alone this Christmas—the first Christmas in their new home; there was no doubt about that, for they had definitely decided that when they purchased the house. And now here they were ready to trim the much-discussed tree. "Isn't that star lovely?" Janice said as Stewart placed it at the top of the tree. "Yes. But I thought you had planned on something else," Stewart replied. "I changed my mind," was all Janice said. She didn't tell him she couldn't think of a Christmas tree without a star at the top. They always had one on the tree "at home."

"Thought you weren't going to get any red balls," she reminded Stewart. "I changed my mind." Both laughed at Stewart's echo of Janice's answer of a moment before. "Mother would love this silver ball," Janice hung the ball where it caught the most light. "Wouldn't Bess love this blue ball?" Stewart picked up the large blue globe. "Our dads would enjoy that open fire—and Bill those spruce boughs over the mantel"—Bill, the older brother of Stewart, loved anything from the woods. And so each thing reminded them of someone's fondness for it, or of some of the happy times of former holidays. "Well, I guess that's all for now," Stewart said when the decoration of the tree was finished and he and Janice stood admiring it. Janice made no reply to her husband's remark at first. "All but the presents," she said hesitatingly. "Oh, we can put those out later," Stewart suggested. "But I mean the ones for the family," she explained. "Didn't you distribute those today?" Stewart asked in surprise. "I thought it would be more fun to take them together." "Stewart stopped and kissed her. "I think so, too, honey—so let's go." "Wait until I get my hat and coat." "And I'll bring the car up to the door." When Stewart returned to the room Janice was placing packages under the tree. "Janice, doesn't it seem to you there is something wrong with the tree?" Stewart asked suddenly. "No," Janice walked all around the tree, looking at it critically. "No," she said the second time, then suddenly—"Yes, Stewart, there is something wrong—something missing—the loving-sharing-of-decorating the tree. Our families would so have enjoyed it. We trimmed it just for ourselves. It does seem selfish." Then after a moment's silence she cried: "I have it! Suppose we leave the presents here and invite our families here for a good old-fashioned Christmas eve celebration. What do you say?" "I say—great! Here goes," and Stewart hurried toward the telephone.

HIGHWAYS MINISTER PLEADS FOR SAFETY AT CHRISTMAS TIME

Extra Care Needed
 Toronto, Dec. 19th.—Hon. T. B. McQueen, Ontario Minister of highways, today made a strong plea on behalf of motorists and pedestrians for a "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year."
 "Strong efforts, he said, would be made by his department to keep the highways of the province as free from accidents during the holiday season as is humanly possible.

He pointed out that open and safe roads play an important function during the Yuletide season in allowing members of families to go back home for Christmas and in enabling friends to visit each other in town and country. During this season, extra heavy demands are put on streets and highways by commercial users.

"Roads can never be made safe," declared Mr. McQueen, "by means exclusively of traffic signs, police supervision, legislative action or improved highway engineering. There is only one factor which can ensure absolute highway safety—and that is the determination of the people who use the highways."

"If some magic touchstones could be found which would make every motorist, trucker, motorcyclist, bicyclist and pedestrian safe from accident hazards, our troubles would be over. That is the one thing which will make our signs and laws and patrol officers effective. If all who use the highways are determined there shall be no accidents, then there won't be any. But we must not confuse determination with just 'wishing' or 'hoping.'"

Many drivers, the highways minister said, are inclined to relax their careful habits during the Christmas holidays—the one time in the year when the strength of such habits should be increased. Winter weather and heavy traffic conditions make driving at this time a difficult job, he stated, and call for extra vigilance.

Mr. McQueen praised the work being done throughout Ontario by municipalities at this season in the prevention of traffic fatalities and accidents, and believed that many holiday accidents could be avoided by adherence to the rule: "If you drink, don't drive; if you drive, don't drink."
