Fred Sinclair Again Wins Silver Cup
In January, 1938, Fred Sinclair won the first prize of a silver cup for increased business for White Rose Service Stations over January, 1937, in the Toronto Division of Canadian Oil Co.'s stations. In January, 1939, he won another silver cup as second prize for increased business for January over 1938. The cup is now on display in Mr. Sinclair's office window. Congratulations Fred.

Presentation to Mrs. Speight
At the annual birthday party held by the Rosefold Mission Band of the United Church on Monday afternoon, Mrs. A. R. Speight, who has been the efficient superintendent of the Band for several years, was presented with an address, expressing the children's appreciation of her personal interest and kindness to all. The president, Mary Dobson, read the address, and Joan Buck, on behalf of the members, presented Mrs. Speight with a lovely cup and saucer as a slight token of their love. The Baby Band, their mothers, and several members of the W.M.S. were welcome guests of this party.

How Bishop Asbury Was Great Help to Wesley

Francis Asbury, pioneer bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church in America, was largely responsible for the rapid development of Methodism in the early history of the United States, observes Leslie Hartley in the Washington Star.

Born in England on August 20, 1745, Asbury came under the influence of the Wesleys during his boyhood and, while still in his teens, became a full-fledged local preacher, much to the delight of his mother, who was very religious.

In 1771 he volunteered to go to Philadelphia as a missionary and soon he had borrowed a horse and was on the first of many journeys he took throughout the country to preach wherever chance offered.

For many years Asbury traveled 5,000 or 6,000 miles annually—often over roads which were almost impassable. His tall, gaunt figure, dressed in a plain coat and a low-crowned, broad-brimmed hat is said to have been seen by more people in America than any other up to the time of his death.

Shortly after his arrival in the Colonies Wesley made Asbury general assistant over the entire Methodist organization in America. After the Revolutionary war, during which he cast his lot with the Colonists, he was appointed joint superintendent of Methodist work here and soon was made a bishop.

Asbury was not a learned man, but he read a great deal and excelled as an organizer. He never married. He was still active up to the time of his death in 1816.

Animals, Birds, Insects Have Odd List of Cries

It is almost impossible to give a complete list, but here are some of the more common cries of animals, birds and insects, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer: Apes gibber, asses bray, beetles drone, bears growl, cats mew and purr, chickens peep, cocks crow, cows moo or low, deer bell, doves coo, ducks quack; eagles, vultures, peacocks scream; flies buzz, frogs croak, geese cackle and hiss, grasshoppers chirp, hens cackle and cluck, horses neigh and whinny, hyenas laugh, jays and magpies chatter, lions and tigers roar and growl, mice squeak and squeal, monkeys chatter and gibber, owls hoot and screech, parrots talk, pigeons coo, pigs grunt, squeak and squeal; sheep and lambs baa or bleat, snakes hiss, swallows twitter, turkey cocks gobble, wolves howl.

It is interesting to note what some of these animals symbolize. For instance: Ape, malice and lust; ass, stupidity; bear, ill temper; bee, industry; cat, deceit; dove, innocence; eagle, majesty and inspiration; fly, insignificance; hen, maternal care; horse, speed and grace; lion, noble courage; owl, wisdom, and the wolf, cruelty and savage ferocity.

English Skylarks Attack Sheep

Edward Lish, in Observations in Husbandry, tells, in the quaint language of his time, of the effects of an encounter of a skylark's nest by a sheep. "I had an ewe in June (anno 1701) that broke out most miserably about her eyes, and had a watery running, with a swelling, with which she was blind, and continued for six weeks; we could not imagine what was the matter with her. My shepherd said, he believed he had been lark-spurred. I asked what that was; he said, at this time of the year, when the larks build their nests, if a sheep should come near to a lark's nest as to trod on it, the lark would fly out, and pood at the sheep, and if the spur made a scratch any where on the eye or nose, it was perfect poison, and would rankle in such manner as this ewe's eye did; this, said he, is certainly true, and other shepherds would tell me the same."

Tailor-Bird Builds Fine Nest

The tailor-bird, of India, Burma and China, is so called because he is very skillful with the "needle." This bird selects two strong leaves of a plant, sews them together and, in the pocket thus formed, builds its nest. The beak serves as a needle, and for thread the bird uses either caterpillar cocoon silk, or vegetable fiber. When the leaves have been stitched together, the tailor-bird lines his nest with vegetable down, horse-hair, and fine grass. Such light bedding does not strain the leaves, and the family live snug and comfy all "sewn-up" in their remarkable home.
