"The interest manifested by fans in the adjoining Bolton and Georgetown areas reached the highest peak in this final and crucial game of the long years of rivalry between the two clubs. A keen, hard-fought series was anticipated. It became a reality. Supporters were not disappointed whether their club won or lost. They realized, and were content, that all players gave their very best. It was a contest of speed, brain and brawn. The laurels going to Bolton were admittedly richly deserved. George-town's slogan, "May the Best Team Win," was apt and b sportsmanlike. Admittedly a good club went down to defeat, but—a better club emerged to carry the torch of the group in the provincial play - downs." (Editor's Note-We do not necessarily agree with all of the above paragraphl.

And still we quote the Enterprise:

"To win is always sweet. To lose gracefully is a real tribute. Manager Ern Thompson, his players and officials of Georgetown showed their tenacious fighting spirit in the contest, but acceded to the final result as a true sportsman should, thus deserving admiration and respect."

And we are still busy clipping:-

"In defeat, we understand Georgetown placed on blame upon their coach, Mr. "Coffee" "Spats" McGinnis, late of Honey Harbor and recently a jolly tar upon the Great Lakes' foamy waves.
