DOINGS AT OTTAWA DURING THE WEEK

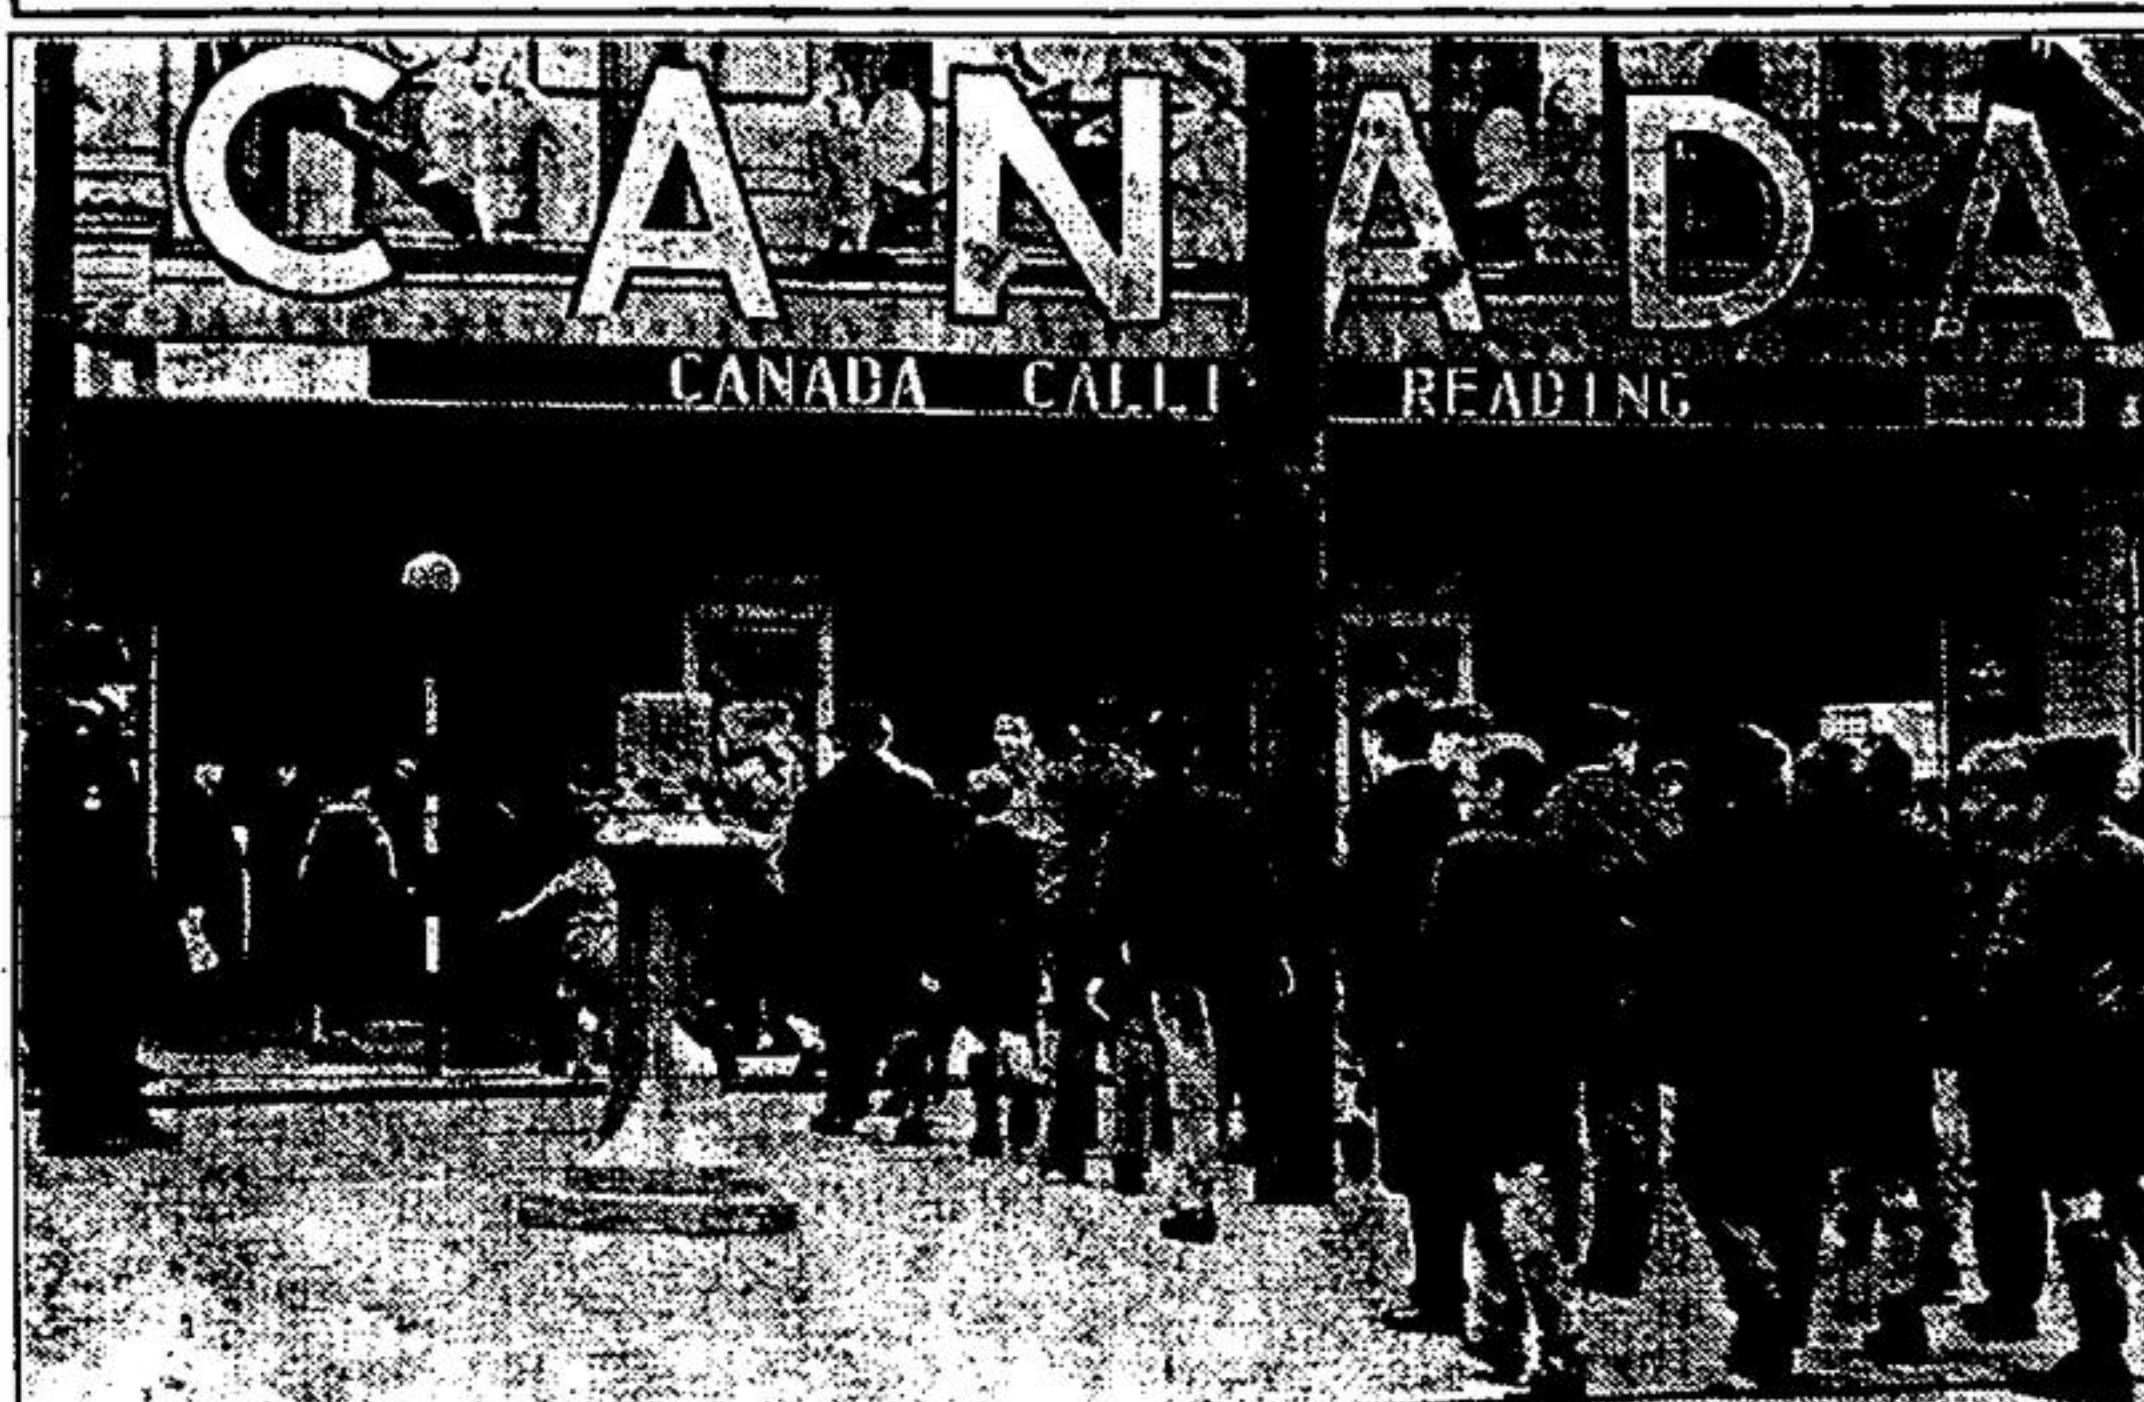

By Spectator
Ottawa, May 23rd—There is something genuinely pleasing and gratifying to all Canadians in the warm and loyal welcome which has been given Their Majesties, and in the equally warm response from our Royal rulers. There can be no doubt whatever that this personal contact will humanize the crown and make it much more than merely a symbol. From the moment Their Majesties set foot on Canadian soil at Quebec city they have been received with open arms by the people of Canada, and nowhere with greater cordiality than in the port of Quebec. It has been a time of jubilation for the children who appear to feel they have a special position in the festivities, not only because when the trip was first announced it was declared that care would be taken that children and war veterans would have special consideration on the routes travelled by Their Majesties, but probably because of the two little princess left at home in London.

When these words appear, the King and Queen will have left Ottawa, will have passed through Ontario and be on their way to Winnipeg. In Ottawa the program has of course been curtailed because of the delay in the voyage of the Empress of Australia caused by drift ice and fog. No important ceremony, however, in Ottawa was cancelled. They were simply cramped into shorter time. The royal assent given by His Majesty to bills that have passed parliament will remain as an historic event. Even in London the last time a monarch signed acts of parliament was in 1854 when Queen Victoria was on the Throne. The outstanding event, however, of the visit of the King and Queen to the capital will be the unveiling of the National War Memorial. An interesting ceremony the King who was himself in action in the Battle of Jutland, will pay homage to the sixty thousand Canadians who died in the war and whose names are enrolled in the Book of Remembrance in the Peace Tower. It will be an act similar to that of King George V when chief mourner he followed the casket of the Unknown Warrior to its resting place in Westminster Abbey. In this case the names of the sixty thousand are known but both acts are a nation's tribute through the sovereign to the heroic people who died on the battlefield.

The Queen who will witness the ceremony of unveiling will take a deep personal interest in it, because she had several brothers at the front. One of them was killed in action and another, Prince George, who was wounded, held prisoner for two years in a German camp. From the reception they are receiving there is no doubt that the generous manly and friendly gentleman who wears the crown and his gracious and Queen have already won the hearts of the people of Canada. It is equally certain that this personal bond will have a lasting influence on the relationship between members of the commonwealth. It augurs well for the future. It is here in the capital that the visit is a tribute to Canada's new nationhood. It sets the seal on the Statute of Westminster and gives a new significance and dignity to the name Canadian and to citizenship in the Empire. Under the constitution of the commonwealth the King, as of Canada acts upon the advice of his Canadian ministers. Prime Minister Mackenzie King is accompanying Their Majesties throughout their tour while other ministers will join the royal party at various stages of the journey.

The Work of Parliament
The houses of parliament continued at their duties until the arrival of the Royal visitors at Ottawa, when a short recess was called for the period of Their Majesties' stay in the capital. Their work resumed in the various bills comprising the elements of the government's agricultural program have caused considerable debate but are gradually passing the various stages in the House of Commons. Some say also the bill setting a 70 cent guarantee for wheat, a matter which passed third reading and was advanced to the Senate. The resolution of the government asking authority to borrow 750 million dollars in the main to pay maturing government indebtedness, with an undefined but relatively small amount "for general purposes" of the government, was again the target of criticism from the Social Credit members who urged the issue of money to take up a part at least of the indebtedness. The point raised was the saving thus effected in interest charges. The argument revolved about the danger of monetary inflation. The Minister of Finance insisted that while the deliberate assembly should make sure that the officials of the central bank should be carrying out their functions in the best interest of the people of Canada, these bank experts were in a better position to determine the amount of money which should be in circulation at any given time. A large part of the departmental estimates have not yet passed the house. They are occupying much of the time of the chamber in the discussion of the estimates for National Defence. The Minister of National Defence made the important and extremely interesting announcement that an adequate defence system for the country could be established with a capital expenditure of 175 million dollars, and an annual appropriation of 53 million dollars, in place of the 63 million appropriated in the present year. He also announced that following the suggestion of Dr. Manion, leader of the opposition, he intended next session to get up a joint defence committee composed of members of the senate and the House of Commons.

"CANADA CALLING" IN BRITAIN

Typical of scenes witnessed at cinemas in some of the principal cities in Britain these days is the above photograph, showing English schoolboys trooping into a theatre at Reading, England, to see a special screening of films provided by the Dominion Government. One of the many activities of the "Canada Calling" campaign, the films depict farm, fishing and industrial scenes which emphasize the importance of Canada as the food basket for the United Kingdom. The campaign, which covers the major population centres in Britain, is being conducted by the Dominion Government's Department of Trade and Commerce. Regarded as one of the most carefully planned efforts ever launched by a British Dominion, this trade crusade also embraces a series of localized drives and extensive newspaper advertising and marketing operations. In addition, it is supplemented by lectures to schools, women's clubs, domestic science classes and other organizations, and has enlisted the support of thousands of merchants who are giving special displays of Canadian products.

CORRESPONDENCE

Georgetown, May 16th, 1939.
To the Editor,
Georgetown Herald.

Dear Sir:
We note in your last week's issue, the statement that the town's Liquor Control Board cheque, amounting to $2183, has been received.

We note with interest that this is $1211 less than last year, representing a decrease in the liquor sale in our two beverage rooms of more than $1600. Does this mean that less has been expended for liquor, or that the drinking public has sought other sources of supply?

Believing that this item of civic receipts above referred to should be viewed in its entirety, we append a statement of receipts and expenditures covering the period of beverage rooms from Nov. 1st, 1934, to March 31st, 1939.

Liquor Control Board cheques received amounted to $955.18. This is 20% of the Provincial revenue from the sale of beer and wine in beverage rooms in the municipality. The provincial tax is 6c per gallon on beer and 5% of the money value of the wine sold. We are informed by those who know that outside of the cities, the sale of wine is negligible, and we have based our estimate upon the tax of 6c per gallon on beer.

An estimate of 16 glasses of beer of the price of 10c, the amount spent in Georgetown's beverage rooms during the time above mentioned is $127,357.33. The fact that this amount does NOT include the liquor receipts of the Legion, nor what may have been spent by residents in liquor stores elsewhere nor what reached the pockets of bootleggers, of whom we are informed our town is not free.

On behalf of community welfare,
Mrs. C. B. Catherine Dayfoot,
W.C.T.U. Press Secretary.
