Hitler
Say, how about a pact with me?
It won't hurt much, because, you see
A pact to me, if old or new,
Means no more than it does to you.

Stalin
This is so sudden, Adolph, that
It takes my breath and knocks me flat
Your books and all those things you said
Convinced me you were anti-Red.

Hitler
I like to do things by surprise
And sock the world between my eyes
A pact would make an awful fuss
And still not mean a thing to us.

Stalin
But what of John Bull? He and I
Are waiting now to ratify;
While I sit here and beatate
His envoys wait and wait and wait.

Hitler
Well, let 'em wait; that is their way;
They never mind a long delay;
John never pledges and never clear
He's not like you and me, old dear.

Stalin
You've said some bitter things of me,
And said 'em pretty candidly;
To team with you I must confess
Would make me feel a mild distress.

Hitler
Say, less'n, I'm no more for you
Than you're for me—and that is true—
But pacts, we sign 'em by the score—
So what the dice is just one more.

Stalin
I guess it's all in good clean fun—
This pact is but another one;
Your name's here, if mine goes above
it
I trust you'll not remind me of it.

Hitler
I understand just how you feel,
I'll sign and bring the proper seal.
The newswall cameras are grinding
You have my word this WON'T be binding!

Stalin
Heigh ho! Here goes with fountain pen!
But never bring this up again;
I'm now for you and you're for me—
Until we think we shouldn't be!

Hitler
'Tis done! The Russians and the Dutch
Aren't ow in one embracing clutch!
We're buddies under one bright star!
We're bosom pals—like hell we are!

WEE HUGHIE

He's gone to school, wee Hughie,
And him not four,
Sure I saw the fright was in him
When he left the door.

But he took a hand o' Denny,
An' a hand o' Dan,
Wi' Joe's owid coat upon him—
Och, the poor wee man!

He cut the queerest figure,
More stout nor thin,
An' trootin' right an' steady
Wi' his toes turned in.

I watched him to the corner
O' the big turf stack,
An' the more his feet went forrit,
Still his head turned back.

He was lookin', would I call him—
Och, my heart was woe—
Sure it's lost I am without him,
But he be to go.

I followed to the turnin'
When they passed it by,
God help him, he was cryin',
And maybe, so was I.

EXPERIMENTAL FARMS TREE PLANTING WORK

Tree planting on prairie farms is one phase of the work of the Dominion Experimental Farms. Part of this service is the provision of free seedlings to farmers by the Forest Nursery Stations at Indian Head and Sutherland, Saskatchewan. Under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act, special assistance is provided for tree planting. This consists of free carriage of seedlings to farmers throughout what is known as the drought area and financial assistance for planting and maintenance to operators of District Experiment Sub-stations and members of Field Crop Shelterbelt Associations. The Field Crop Shelterbelt Associations are groups of farmers in selected areas which co-operate with the Dominion Experimental Farms in large-scale shelterbelt plantings. The object of these plantings is to determine the value in the protection of crops against wind and soil drifting. Four Associations have been formed at Lyleton, Man., Conquest, Sask., Aneroid, Sask., and Porter Lake, Alberta. Free distribution of trees to farmers in the drought area is generally made through Agricultural Improvement Associations. During the Spring of 1939, a total of 2,374,109 trees was distributed under the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act, bringing the total distribution since the inauguration of the program up to 8,524,370 trees.

NAPOLEON'S QUEST FOR CANNED RATIONS

Canning of food owes its inception to Napoleon. In 1795 Napoleon offered a prize of 12,000 francs for an improved and practical method of preserving food from one harvest to another. The prize was won in 1804 by Nicholas Appert, a confectioner of Paris, whose containers were made of wired and corked glass jars. The introduction of a metal container was due to an Englishman, Peter Durand, who was granted a patent in England in 1810. He called his container a tin can, as the pattern was based on that of a tea canister. Most of the recent improvements in canning have been made in the North American continent.

The link with Napoleon, says the Imperial Economic Committee in its world-wide survey of the trade in canned food, and the fact that "canned foods were used on a large scale in the Crimean War, the American Civil War, and in British colonial wars was undoubtedly emphasis to be laid on the military necessity as a factor in the development of canning. It has undoubtedly played an important part, but the most powerful stimulus was the demand created by the industrial and agricultural expansion in the second half of the nineteenth century, and the development of new areas of food production remote from consuming markets. As the demand in these markets increased, local industries were established for the canning of home-grown produce.

The commercial marketing of canned goods began about 1820, among the first foods so marketed being sardines and peas. In Canada, commercial canning is one of the oldest of the larger organized industries. The first canning factory in Canada was established at Grimsby, Ont., in 1878. Canada is now one of the leading countries of the world in the canning of food, particularly vegetables and fruit.

LESLIE-WILKINSON WEDDING AT BRAMPTON

A pretty lawn wedding was held on Saturday, Sept. 23rd, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Chester, B.A., B.D., officiated. Mrs. Egerton Wilkinson, sister-in-law of the bride, played the wedding music and Mrs. Arnett McClure was soloist, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. McFarlane. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white French marquisette over taffeta, with shirred bodice and bouffant skirt extending into a short train. Her long tulle veil was held with a halo of orange blossoms and she carried a shaver bouquet of Better Times roses and Ivy-of-the-valley. Miss Margaret Muir, of Toronto, the bridesmaid, was gowned in gray chiffon with pink feather hat and pink accessories and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. The groomsmen were Mr. T. H. Hope. At the reception following the ceremony the bride's mother received in a blue lace gown with corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother was gowned in black lace with corsage of red roses. Later Mr. and Mrs. Leslie left by motor for the Adirondacks and New York, the bride travelling in an ensemble of gray French wool with wine accessories. On their return they will reside on the groom's farm near Georgetown.
