In the Spotlight

at Ottawa

by Willfrid Eggleston
 Ottawa, November 1 — Canadian business and employment are beginning to display interesting effects of the war effort. It is too soon to look for spectacular changes, and there may be disappointment in some quarters this winter because of business restriction and dislocations which in some parts may seem to more than offset any improvement which is in sight. It would, of course, be a curious tribute to war if one could predict that only good things will come of it. Unfortunately, that is far from the mark. War is waste and destruction, and the price must be paid to the uttermost farthing. Yet no such colossal impact upon the intricate, close-knit world of ours can possibly take place without numerous actions and reactions; some good and some bad. The Canadian war effort eventually will result in a close harmony and determined coordination of all our forces. That will mean full employment of our labour power, our resources and our capital. It may take a year or more to achieve that. When it comes we shall all be in it determined to see it through to a happier day.

(Factors on Bright Side)
 Meanwhile there are several factors on the bright side. The betterment in the United States is by no means solely or even perhaps primarily dependent upon the war; there was a great revival under way all through the summer, war scares and all. Another bullish factor for Canada is the best wheat crop for many a year—the best since 1928 and among the most beautiful in history. Add to that the upswing in oil and mineral production, and the improvement in demand for Canadian lumber and fish, and there is some basis at least for recovery, apart from war stimulus.

So rapidly and completely has been the revival in some Canadian industries that a shortage of skilled workmen is reported, and new stress is being placed upon military building for such workmen. There is an acute scarcity of certain minerals and raw materials required in industry. Naturally every effort is being made either by domestic production or by import to replenish these vital stocks.

The Business Summary of the Bank of Montreal reveals a notable enlargement of retail trade and the maintenance of the tourist trade as compared with 1928. Primary iron and steel are very busy. So are the plants producing machinery and equipment. Textile mills and clothing firms are busy filling orders for military clothing. Footwear and headgear for the forces are also being made in quantity. Producers of newsprint are benefiting from the difficulty which Scandinavian producers are meeting in keeping up shipments to the United States. There is considerable military building and residential construction kept up well so far, assisting the construction and lumbering industries.

Conditions are so shaping themselves, it includes this source, "in demand for the primary products in this country and in current and prospective manufacture of the implements of war that in many respects Canada is in a far more favored position than any other country." There is a good text for the blue-ruin pessimists.

(Wheat Still a Problem)
 The wheat situation is however, still very perplexing. The Dominion Government is being urged to set prices at $1.00 to $1.15 a bushel. Meanwhile the British purchasing agent is unable to buy Argentine and Australian supplies at less than 60 cents a bushel. Even at 70 cents basis No. 1 Fort William our sales have been light. There have been no profits on sales of Board wheat to date, and until the world price improves there cannot be. For a few months there is little likelihood that the importing countries will have to pay much more than current prices for wheat. There is such a heavy carryover. But another year the story may be different. The U.S. winter wheat crop will be smaller. Russia had a lighter crop this year. The ravages of war may cause considerable reduction of wheat acreage in Europe. Other farm prices should be somewhat better. Cheese prices went up 30% in the early stages of the war. Butter is about normal for this time of the year. Bacon, hog should be in good demand, the authorities here say. Barley and flax will strengthen, it is anticipated. Wool is much higher. Milk powder is in greater demand.

TERRA COTTA

It is a regrettable feature that we have to report that the old Halton Brick plant, which had been for a number of years a good going concern, is now being dismantled. Mr. Payne of Toronto, we understand, has purchased all the machinery, brick plant and houses, also the kilns, and has now about twenty men engaged pulling down the smoke-stacks, etc., and when completed will be a bare looking place. However, in the meantime we hope that some other industries may see fit to locate here. We have splendid transportation facilities. So let us hope for the best.

Mr. and Mrs. Jamison have moved to Limehouse. We wish them every success in their new home.

Mr. Duncan has purchased the brick house and property recently vacated by Mrs. Jamison, known as the McAndrew estate, and has moved in. We welcome them to our midst.

Mrs. E. Evis of Grimsby spent a few days with Terra Cotta friends.

Mr. H. Ellwood is having the Hydro installed in his residence, which when completed will add considerably to the appearance.

Our merchant, Mrs. K. Ican, who has been on the sick list during the past week, we are pleased to learn is now able to around again as usual.
