BRITISH HOUSEWIVES' NEW WAR JOB

By Iris Carpenter, famous British woman journalist.

Twelve million British women have a new war job.

They are housewives, called to arms in a stirring broadcast speech by Mr. Herbert Morrison, British Minister of Supply, to fight with the attribute which distinguishes the good housewife all over the world: Thrift!

Each recruit in this vast women's army is pledged to be "Up and At 'Em" — by saving every scrap of raw material that can be turned into war material. At this time of increased pressure on shipping millions of tons of space a year can thus be saved for those essentials Britain imports from overseas.

There is no need to stress the importance of their service. Its value may be gauged from the fact that one small London district is already making a hundred pounds a week from the sale of household waste for pig food.

This is only one of five groups of materials which can be saved in the national interest. The others are paper, bones, rags and metal. Unspringing weapons with which to wage a crusade, which will be wielded nevertheless with enthusiasm.

First operation in the campaign was a march to those corners of every home where lumber is kept. Every housewife knows the strange assortment of small objects she keeps because they may one day be useful. The accumulations of twelve million homes represented vast treasure trove. It had to be collected, sorted and got to the factories to be turned into war material with the least possible delay. In every town, every village throughout the country made a battalion of itself to get on with the job — competing with each other in the speed with which they could complete it.

A town in Kent had its ten thousand houses cleared and the material delivered to the factories in less than a week.

This is how they did it. One housewife in every street called on all the others. She made a list of those who would want help in the sorting of their lumber. Those with small children had not time perhaps to give a whole morning to turning out every cupboard in the house. Another list was made of those with time enough to give help to others. Working parties were grouped together. These went from house to house, sorting cupboards, the attic, garage even garden sheds. All salvage was sorted carefully to its proper group. Then carried out to lorries and driven direct to factories waiting to deal with it.

Women in another town enlisted the help of small boys to help with the loading. They borrowed cars and lorries. Drove them up and down the roads. One lorry loaded four tons of scrap metal in less than an hour!

A London Borough asked everybody to hunt out their scrap metal and put it on the pavement outside their homes for collection. Next day the streets presented an extraordinary sight. Outside each house was an incredible assortment of objects. There were beds, tables, pails, old bicycles and prams, lawn mowers, garden raffles, children's toys. Even hair curlers and lipstick cases were to be seen destined for transformation into guns, tanks and aeroplanes.

It must not be imagined, however, that this campaign to turn raw material into war material is a mere skirmish, to be settled by one onslaught on household "junk." Each recruit has helped to launch the first attack with the denouement of her home's reserves. She is preparing now a blockade of daily vigilance. Regarding her home as a battle position which waste must not be allowed to leave unless marshalled in the national interest.

In peace-time Great Britain used three and a half million tons of paper a year. In war much more is needed. Special paper is wanted for the making and packing of explosives. Photographic, tracing and chart papers are needed for the Army, Navy and Air Force. More than 10,000 tons of clean waste paper is available for preservation every week. So the saving of every possible scrap is one of the most important of the Salvage Army's duties.

Each member will tie the paper she saves into a neat parcel to put on her doorstep for collection. There will be newspapers, food cartons, cigarette boxes, letters and wrapping paper. Repurposed and processed these will serve again as riffs and shell cases and food containers for the troops.

There will be other parcels on her doorstep too! One for bones. These are a valuable part of household waste — providing glycerine for explosives. Feeding stuffs. Fertilizers. Glue for aeroplanes.

One for rags and old clothing of all description. These make blankets — even uniforms.

There will be a parcel of metal. Metal tops from milk bottles. Tooth paste and face cream tubes. The tins which have contained vegetables, chocolate, meat, milk and fish. These all have a variety of war uses.

A pail for household scraps must have a place. How valuable these are for the feeding of pigs and poultry can be gathered from the fact that special machinery for their conversion into meal is being installed in various parts of the country. No less than forty pigs can be fed each week from the kitchen waste of every household.

It does not matter how small the parcels are as long as the contents of each are properly sorted for easy despatch to the proper quarter.

It takes only one old envelope to make a cartridge wad.

If each housewife's thrift resulted in the saving of only two ounces of bones a week, Britain would get more than 20,000 tons a year.

One or two tins saved every week from every home would make an enormous yearly tonnage. And it takes only one ton of metal to make 100 cases for 18 pounder shells.

Unimposing though the work of this army may seem to the housewives of other lands, it is an important, if somewhat strange, development of modern war. Every pound each British housewife can save means more than the saving of money and shipping space. Her thrift is providing something a sailor need not risk his life to replace.

As she puts out her parcels on collecting days she can be proud of her service.

Her "doorstep ammunition" will help to shorten the war.

PRAYER FOR PEACE

Drafted by Canadian Women's Clubs in Canada.

Early last winter a national prayer for peace was drafted by a representative group of Canadian women. A prayer in which all women in the Dominion, whatever race or creed, can join.

Several meetings to discuss this plan were called by the Reverend Mother of St. John's Convent (Anglican) and have included representatives of all major churches.

The Ladies' Societies, I.O.G.E., Girl Guides, Women's Institutes, Women's Canadian Clubs, the Salvation Army, Red Cross and many other organized bodies of women sent official representatives. Mrs. Albert Matthews, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, took an active part in the discussions.

Prayer cards were printed for use in meetings and homes.

The following is the prayer decided on:

A DAILY PRAYER

O God, the Father of us all, who hast made of one blood all nations of men, mercifully receive the prayers that we offer for our anxious and troubled world. Give us the grace to love our fellow men as ourselves and to work for the peace and unity of the world.

Thy will be done.

AMEN.

Are your children's eyes beginning to start when they see thousands of school children in uniform in their own neighbourhood? Are you wondering how they can be so neat and clean? Are you wondering how they can be so happy and contented? If you are, you are interested in the new book, "The Story of the Boy Scouts." in any case of war. He and Company of all those who have been mobilized and who are now in the front line of the struggle.

Mr. Chester served in the British Army during the last war. He enlisted in the ranks of the 5th Battalion, King's Royal Rifle Corps, in August, 1914, and served in France until 1918, with the exception of two short periods when he was wounded. He was mobilized with the rank of Captain. In this war he will carry no military rank and wear no uniform, but will be one of the army of civilians, whose work is so vitally important in maintaining the efficiency of our fighting forces. Mr. Chester joined the staff of the Hudson's Bay Company in 1923 and was appointed General Manager for all the Company's operations in North America in 1929.
