

ARMY NOTES

A new lease on our mailing list this week is that of Walter "Bus" Norrington, whose father, Arthur Norrington, was a former Main Street business man, owning the business now operated by W. H. Long.

Pte. A. A. Schrag, of the Third Army Field Workshop, R.O.C.C., was in town last week-end. "Les" who reported in this district for many years for the Toronto Evening Telegram, has turned over the job to his wife, who will henceforth keep Telegram readers posted on some of the Georgetown news.

Gnr. Albert North, of Guelph's 16-43rd Battery, formerly stationed at Sussex, N.B., is now receiving his mail at Fairville, Ontario.

A rumour circulated in town last week that the Lorne Scots were mobilized and would replace the Dufferin & Halimand Rifles at Niagara-on-the-Lake, but, on investigation there proved to be no truth in the report.

Orders to report for one month's training issued recently have been cancelled by the Government, and orders for the new 4-month camps are expected to be issued within the next weeks. Several district men had received their instructions, including Stewart MacLaren, George Henderson, "Sonny" Stockford and Verdun Wright.

Sport fans will be glad that "Shorty" Burrows, who has been doing a good job of splitting goal duties with Reg. Hoare for the Georgetown Intermediates will be finishing the season with the team. Burrows was slated for a month's military training which would have ended his hockey for this year, but with the revision in training camp plans, it is likely that he will be able to ward off a few more pucks in Georgetown's march to hockey victory.

Pte. Thomas Warnes, of the 48th Highlanders, was home for the week end.

Spr. Bill Ritchie and Spr. Sheldon, of the R.C.E., now stationed at Peterborough where they are taking a special course, were in town for the week end.

Pte. Joseph Querin, of the 24th Field Ambulance Corps, R.O.A.M.C., who was on his way to Valcartier Camp, Quebec, after a 26-day leave, called on his sister, Mrs. Garfield McGilvray, on Saturday.

Gnr. Donald Appleyard has joined the R.C.A. and is stationed at Camp Sussex, N.B., with the 16-43rd Battery, 12th Field Regiment.

ACI Ken Mackenzie has been transferred from the R.C.A.F. school at Dunville to the Initial Training School on Avenue Road, Toronto.

Walter Huston, who stars in Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln" on the CBC at 9:30 p.m., DST, Sunday, February 16 is one of the most distinguished living Canadian actors. Son of Robert Huston, a building contractor, he was born in Toronto on April 8, 1884, and was educated for mechanical engineering; he left home, however, when still in his teens, to join a road company, and made his first stage appearance in Toronto in 1902. Three years later he made his initial New York appearance in Hal Reid's drama, "In Convict Stripes". Subsequently he toured in "The Sign of the Cross," after which he left the stage for some years. He reappeared before the footlights in vaudeville as a song and dance performer; but after fifteen years' work in this field, he was given a dramatic role by Brock Pemberton, in "Mr. Pitt" in New York in January, 1924. His performance won him the attention of New York critics, after which similar engagements followed. As the carnival man in "The Barker," as Ring Lardner's immortal baseball rooster in "Elmer the Great," as Dods-worth in the stage version of Sinclair Lewis' novel, and in many other roles, Walter Huston has given Canada and the United States a succession of outstanding stage portraits. His motion picture career, which commenced in 1928, has been equally successful.

Proposed an Ideal German Utopia Back in Year 1521

Four hundred years ago a German Franciscan named Johann Eberlin of Guenzburg wrote an idealistic constitution for the Germans, an ordinance for a sort of Utopia which he called "Welfaria."

Tender, reasonable, full of sense and tolerance, it did away with both imperial and canon law, abolished judgeships and advocates, tolerated Jews and heathens, outlawed heresy, hunting, made education compulsory for children, forbade the erection of "immoderately costly buildings" other than public edifices, abolished war for purposes of "extending or aggrandizing our land," allowed cards and dicing but only for small stated stakes, authorized three hours of village dancing each week, required that no business establishment employ more than three hands, and provided that every governor, from the village headman to the king, should be elected and should legislate only by the advice and with the consent of his local or national council.

Justice and sanity inform every line of this brief and simple document, this text for the governance of a rural hamlet drafted to display the world in which an individual preferred to live. And no individual, German or other, living in a German village in the year 1521, would have lived unhappily under the laws of this modest Solon.

But 1521 happened to be a culminating year in Europe. It was the year in which Luther was condemned by the Diet at Worms. The dynamic contained in more than three centuries of struggles between empire and papacy, in three centuries of exploitation of the pious Germans by a cynical and voracious episcopate, suddenly exploded in this year; and the Germans were started on a career of brutal strife and religious warfare which brought them two whole centuries of darkness and misery.

Not what the individual, Eberlin, designed and desired but what the accumulated past made necessary constituted the substance of Reformation politics; and what the then dominant stratum of German society—the princes—designed and desired determined how the political problems would be met.

Airplanes Fly Below Sea Level in Some Places

Airplanes have flown at more extreme negative altitudes than any submarine is capable of going. Except for test dives that have taken a single United States naval submarine down to a depth of 350 feet, naval submarines are seldom operated at any depth greater than necessary for getting out of sight and avoiding danger of collision with surface vessels. This is easily accomplished by cruising at a depth of from 45 to 65 feet below the surface of the sea. At any greater depths the submarine is blind; it retains vision only by keeping its periscope above water.

On the other hand, there are numerous places on earth over which aircraft have flown, or are capable of flying below sea level. In Death Valley National monument, in California, for example, aircraft are constantly landing and taking off from an airport that is 210 feet below sea level. An airplane skimming the surface of Russia's Caspian sea would be flying approximately 85 feet below sea level; and it could fly up the Volga river for several hundred miles on a course farther below sea level than naval submarines habitually cruise.

The surface of the Sea of Galilee lies farther below sea level than any naval submarine is capable of going with any hope of ever returning to the surface. But for some real "submarine" acrobatic flying, we have only to send our aircraft skimming over the Dead sea of Palestine. There, any competent aviator may start a power dive or spin at sea level, lose 1,000 feet of altitude, then resume level flight with 300 feet of negative altitude to spare!

Badger Makes Comeback

The badger is coming back as a commercially important fur-bearing animal if the reports of western Michigan trappers may be taken as a reliable indication.

A native Michigan animal, the badger has been relatively scarce in the state for the last few years, says the Detroit News. In counties bordering Lake Michigan where extensive trapping is carried on, the catch of badger has been light for at least the last 10 years. But fur buyers covering the western part of the state in 1940 found prime pelts frequent and seconds and small pelts much more numerous than on preceding trips.

Prices varied widely, depending on the size and condition of the pelt. One fur buyer established a scale ranging from 50 cents for inferior specimens to as much as $8.50 for prime large pelts.

No Chemical Shortage No shortage of dyes and other coal-tar chemicals because of the war in Europe is expected. Whereas in 1914 the United States imported more than 90 per cent of her dyes and other coal-tar chemicals, such as medicinals, the country now imports less than 10 per cent and is in fact on an export basis. The imported items are specialty chemicals which, if necessary, can be produced here.

DARREYL F. ZANUCK'S MARYLAND TO BE SEEN AT THE GREGORY THEATRE ON SATURDAY

Thrilling! Brilliant! Spectacular! These are some of the adjectives which advance reports have heaped on Darreyl F. Zanuck's Technicolor production of "Maryland," which comes to the Gregory Theatre on Saturday, and which previewers have said is even greater than "Kentuck."

The picture fuses the color and beauty of the proud South with the stirring heart-story of two spirited young people torn between love and a fierce family pride. The thrilling Maryland Hunt Cup Race, with flaming silks flashing against blue sky and green turf, as stout-hearted thoroughbreds compete in America's most spectacular spectacle, provides a roaring climax for the film.

The picture cast includes three leading members—Walter Brennan, Fay Bainter and Hattie McDaniel—who have been awarded "Oscars." In addition, five members of the production staff have been honored. Brennan, that cantankerous, fire-eatin' old coddler of "Kentuck," gives another great characterization, as do Bainter and McDaniel. Also featured are: Brenda Joyce, John Payne, Charile Ruggles and Marjorie Weaver.

One of Hollywood's most successful directors, Henry King, handled the megaphone on "Maryland." Ethel Hill and Jack Andrews wrote the original screen play. Gene Markey was associate director.
