Canada War at War

A Weekly Review of Development On The Home Front: Week of February 23-29, 1941.

Dominion Parliament reassembles (February 17) with war finance the dominant theme.

(1) Government resolution submitted providing war appropriation of $1,300,000,000 during 1941—42, largest appropriation in Canada's history. Total war costs during year, moreover, expected to exceed war appropriation by considerable amount.

(2) Adding — (a) $400,000,000 for repatriation of securities (b) $433,000,000 for non-war Dominion Government estimates (c) $475,000,000 for probable provincial and municipal governments, total reached of 2 1/2 billions which Dominion, provincial and municipal governments together will have to raise from Canadian people during fiscal year.

(3) This total of $2,700,000,000 is over 50 per cent of national income (i.e. income of individuals) estimated at $5,300,000,000.

(4) Canada to spend approximately $20,000,000 this year on additional airframe construction; namely, about $8,000,000 on airframe chain linking Edmonton with Alaska (recommended by United States-Canada Joint Defence Board) and $11,000,000 on home defence airfields.

(5) Economics: (a) Main Dominion estimates for 1941-42, totalling $433,131,000 for non-war purposes, show reduction of $18,120,000 on current fiscal year. (b) Dominion contributions to direct relief to be discontinued from March 31. (c) Main estimates indicate that for first time since 1927, Canadian National Railways earning enough to pay operating expenses and interest charges on debt. C.N.R. appropriation of $15,000,000 voted 1940-41 not required in 1941-42.

(6) At half-way mark in War Savings Campaign, 675,000 pledge themselves to buy War Savings Certificates.

(7) Subscriptions to Dominion non-interest bearing loan totalled $3,934,588 to January 31, 1941.

(8) Wartime Bureau of Technical Personnel to be organized under direction of E. M. Little, general manager, Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Ltd. Bureau will act as national agency to recruit and place scientific and professional personnel in war industries.

(9) Cost of Living Index, compiled by Dominion Bureau of Statistics, rose four per cent during 1940.

(10) Active note circulation of Bank of Canada rose $94,600,000 during 1940; that amount of high quality paper now being made for the first time in Canada in preparation for production of tanks on heavy scale; contracts awarded during week ended February 7 numbered 2,122, totalled $4,707,468; number employed by Department passes 1,300 mark. Figure includes approximately 50 business and professional men serving without remuneration.

(11) John H. Berry, technical adviser on motor transport to Department of Munitions and Supply appointed Motor Vehicle Controller.

THE MORTAR PLATOON OF THE LORNE SCOTS

The Mortar Platoon (No. 3 in Headquarters Company) is the youngest platoon in the Regiment, as it was just organized last summer. The word "Mortar" does not mean "plaster." It is the name given to a gun—a very special gun. The mortar is a quick firing gun which is very mobile, easy to conceal and half a dozen observers can aim a load report when fired and the flash and smoke are negligible. It is quite accurate and has a range of nearly a mile. It fires over a hill or buildings and drops the bomb on the target from a great height.

The boys built their own practice mortar and took it to camp last summer, where it received much admiration from some of the "high ups." They later made some improvements on it and the "General," at his inspection, remarked very favourably about it. The boys are now working on a sight for their mortar which is a very intricate mechanism and at the same time are keeping up with the other platoons in arms drill and other parts of their training.

The Mortars are doing alright don't you think?

NATURE NOTES

By H. L. Hutt

A couple of weeks ago we mentioned a few of our winter residents among the birds, and asked for reports from anyone who had seen the cardinals we heard from half a dozen before this winter. It was not long before we heard from half a dozen observers in the vicinity of the bowling green, who had had a good look at them and could not be mistaken in their identity.

We are inclined to think there is but one pair, which for the time being is keeping fairly close to that section. Because of the brilliant red color of the male, and his clear musical whistle there is no mistaking him for any other bird. The female, less brilliantly colored is much less noticeable.

A number of other winter residents here are the great horned owl and the little screech owl. Going down our woodland walk through the lumberlot to the post office the other morning, we came on unmistakable signs of a bird of prey the night before, and the evidence pointed to the little owl as being the murderer. No doubt being hungry for mice, which he cannot now find readily, he had made a meal of a starling, and left nothing but a blood spot in the snow and a few feathers to show where he had his repast.

For the benefit of several who have reported hearing phoebes already, let me quote from Taverner, our leading Canadian authority on birds, to prove who was the singer. "The chickadee has another song composed of only several notes of rather high register clear and whistle-like. The first is prolonged and the second shorter, about two tones lower, and has been translated as "Spring's here."

Our dates for the first arrival of the phoebes for the past couple of years has been April 20th. For the three years previous to that they arrived nearly three weeks earlier.

FORMER GEORGETOWN MAN DIES IN WEST

Mr. James Crossman, a former Georgetown resident, passed away at his home in Rosetown, Saskatchewan, on Thursday, February 20th. As a young man he came to Georgetown and learned the trade of blacksmith. After his marriage to the former Ella Monte, he farmed for awhile near Acton, moving from there to Belcarra, Saskatchewan, and later to Rosetown.

He had lived in Rosetown for the past 25 years. He leaves to mourn his loss eight children. He was a brother of Mrs. E. Coleman, of Georgetown.

The southern part of the island is covered with sandy loam soil which supports heavy growths of mixed hardwoods including maple, white birch, beech, red oak and ash. In contrast, the northern section has heavy outcroppings of rock, and contains open stands of white pine, maple and oak. Wild animal and bird life is numerous. Elk and deer inhabit the woods, and fox, racoon, porcupine, and numerous small fur-bearers abound. Stuffed grouse, song birds, and birds of brilliant plumage are prevalent, and waterfowl are observed in adjacent waters.

The fine sand beaches found in the west and east have been ideal for building and swimming. Boats may be anchored in the adjacent waters and the winding trails which cross the island provide delightful hikes through the woods in a number of interesting places. The island offers excellent opportunities for camp life, with a number of organizations including the Y.M.C.A. boys and girls' clubs, and the Y.W.C.A. operate camps each summer on selected sites under special authority.

Georgian Bay Islands National Park

One of the most attractive summer vacation areas in Eastern Canada is the Georgian Bay district in Ontario. Forming part of the Great Lakes system Georgian Bay is an immense arm of Lake Huron, with which it is connected by two main channels. Stretching far inland towards the Ontario highlands on the east, it is nearly 50 miles wide and 120 miles long. The shoreline is broken by hundreds of deep sheltered bays, and along the eastern side lies an archipelago of nearly 30,000 islands. Its sparkling blue waters abound with fish, and form a vivid background for picturesque rock formations, rocky capes, sandy bays, and a myriad of channels winding through green-wooded lakes.

The region is also rich in early historical associations. "Huronis," as it is often called, was the ancient home of the great Huron confederacy of Indians, which was practically exterminated by the Iroquois in 1649-50. Near Midland, on the north shore of Georgian Bay, stood the palisaded Indian village and Jesuit mission of St. Ignace, which was destroyed in 1649; further west, on Christian Island, the Hurons made their last ineffectual stand against their hereditary foes.

In this region the Government of Canada has established Georgian Bay Islands National Park, consisting of 30 islands ranging in size from less than an acre to several square miles. On many of these islands, wharves have been erected to facilitate the approach of motorboats, shelters equipped with tables and camp stoves have been provided, and camping areas laid out for the use of visitors. Beausoleil Island, the largest, is about eight miles north of Midland and two miles west of Honey Harbour. It is more than five miles long and nearly a mile wide, and contains nearly 2,712 acres. On it have been located the local administrative headquarters of the whole park.

Beausoleil Island for many years was the home of a band of Ojibwa or Chippewa Indians, and remains of their settlement are still visible. An Indian village stood near the site of the park headquarters building on the eastern shore, and an Indian cemetery is situated nearby. Ancient legends concerning the district are still related by Indians living in the vicinity, and many of the physical features of the Island bear Indian names. Kitohi-Kewana Bay is named for a supernatural being who is credited with the creation of the Great Lakes System and who formed Beausoleil Island so that he might have a place to rest. Depressions on the island are supposed to mark the spot on the island where his shoulders rested.

The southern part of the island is covered with sandy loam soil which supports heavy growths of mixed hardwoods including maple, white birch, beech, red oak and ash. In contrast, the northern section has heavy outcroppings of rock, and contains open stands of white pine, maple and oak. Wild animal and bird life is numerous. Elk and deer inhabit the woods, and fox, racoon, porcupine, and numerous small fur-bearers abound. Stuffed grouse, song birds, and birds of brilliant plumage are prevalent, and waterfowl are observed in adjacent waters.

Boats may be anchored in the adjacent waters and the winding trails which cross the island provide delightful hikes through the woods in a number of interesting places. The island offers excellent opportunities for camp life, with a number of organizations including the Y.M.C.A. boys and girls' clubs, and the Y.W.C.A. operate camps each summer on selected sites under special authority.
